Jury Lays Police Laxity to Politics

RAMPANT CRIME CALLED RESULT OF CITY RULE

Blame Corruption on Administration.

The inefficiency of the police department is a reflection on the administration in power, according to the findings of the October grand jury in a letter presented yesterday to Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court upon the discharge of the jury.

In the letter, which took the form of a final jury report, the jurors charged that the police are demoralized, and that the blame can be placed on the "tolerant attitude of the administration toward vice and gambling." The so-called alliance between gangland, the police, and politicians also came in for a verbal lashing by the jurors.

Police and Politics.

"The reason for this condition (the police inefficiency) is recognized by every student of the question," the letter reads. "Instead of being a purely crime detecting and apprehending agency, the police force has been, through the history of our city, the adjunct of whatever political faction happens to be in power. Its activities have been limited to the policy of the administration instead of being governed and controlled by the letter of the law.

"Handicapped by the varying and vacillating policies of the administration, it is always a matter of police uncertainty as to which law shall be enforced and which violation shall go unchallenged. For many years there has been fastened upon the police department an active or a tolerant attitude on the part of the administration toward vice and gambling. Responding to this attitude, the police department has been demoralized and individual members have resorted to grafting and the levy of tribute, without which vice and gambling would soon be suppressed.

Money for Protection.

"Every sophisticated observer knows that these resorts would not be tolerated if it were not for the financial tribute which they pay to the public officials or their political satellites for protection.

"That this condition does much to increase lawlessness and crime and is an important element in the prosecution and suppression of crime has been demonstrated time and time again. Effective police suppression of vice resorts [a comparatively easy matter] would substantially lessen crime and enable the prosecuting officials to devote more time and attention to the more serious things that result from the influences of human passion and avarice."

The jurors contrasted the permanence in the community of the vice lords, the beer and booze kings, with that of the commissioner of police. It was pointed out that during the last twenty-five years only one police commissioner held office longer than a two year period, while the careers of the gangland bosses seem to go on until they are overtaken by the machine gun or sawed off shotgun.

A Capitalistic Enterprise.

The letter says the underworld is so well organized that it has introduced a capitalistic system into its operations and have formed combinations in restraint of trade in the illicit lines of gambling, vice, and liquor.

"The illegal liquor business furnishes a stable means of livlihood for many of our confirmed robbers and burglars, and these captains of the underworld have been able to rally to their support the suffrages of a large portion of our population," continued the report. "By becoming political powers they have been able not only to obtain immunity for themselves but in a large measure to make our city government itself a partner in crime.

"For many years Chicago has tolerated vice and now the underworld and vice have it by the throat. For all this the public is responsible; for the public has allowed it to exist."

Urge Racketeer Prosecution.

The jurors recommended that Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Lounsbury and Charles Mueller, in charge of the newly established anti-racketeering bureau, be given adequate help and assistance. The jurors also adopted a long list of other recommendations, which were rendered several years ago by the Illinois crime survey bureau.

The passing up of too many cases to the grand jury from the Felony court also was criticised by the jurors. Many of these minor cases should be disposed of in the lower court, it was said.

Oil Gusher Places City in Fire Peril

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 31.—(AP)—An army of half a thousand men, military and civil, guarded Oklahoma's capital tonight against the menace of a potential fire dragon—a gigantic wild oil well—that roared at the city's edge.

Nine units of the Oklahoma National Guard were called to assist in protecting life and property in the vicinity of the No. 1 C. E. Stout well, which since last night has been hurling prodigious quantities of oil and gas into the air less than a mile from the main business district.

All activities in the immediate threatened area on the southeast outskirts of the wholesale district were suspended. Householders were warned not to light fires, and residents nearest the well—mostly Negroes—were ordered to vacate their homes. Six schools were closed for the day, making a holiday for more than 2,300 pupils.

Trains and Autos Barred.

Trains were barred from tracks near the well because of the danger of their engine fires igniting the gas. Automobiles and trucks were forbidden entrance to the danger zone.

The well, estimated to have a daily production of sixty thousand barrels of oil and 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas, tore loose last night when sand cut its connections.

Like the "Wild Mary" Sudik, famous outlaw that defied restraint for eleven days last spring, ordinary methods of control failed, and a special device known as a "Christmas tree," a heavy steel conical bonnet, was being forged to drop over the bellowing maw of the well.

The guardsmen entered the area wearing wartime steel helmets and slickers as protection from the rain of oil. They were ordered out by Adjutant General Charles Barrett after an appeal had been made by Sheriff Stanley Rogers for military aid to supplement the efforts of his staff and city fire and police forces.

Just Outside City Limits.

The well is just outside the city limits, but much closer to the heart of the city than the greater part of the residence districts. It is on the south bank of the North Canadian river, which bisects Oklahoma City.

Since motor trucks were not permitted in the area, household goods of the few who moved from the section were transported in wagons drawn over oil slimed streets by mules or horses.

WOMEN'S NATIONAL REPUBLICAN CLUB VOTES 7-1 FOR REPEAL

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—A seven-to-one vote in favor of repeal of the 18th amendment is reported by the Women's National Republican club following a nation-wide referendum of its members which brought replies from thirty-three states.

The total in votes cast showed 1,391 for repeal and 197 opposed to it. The ballots were sent out in September.

The contrast of this reflection of sentiment to another referendum by the club in 1927 on the same question was remarked on by leaders here. The earlier referendum showed 853 wet votes and 107 dry.

Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, president of the club, pointed out that more than 50 per cent of all members have returned the ballots sent them and said an analysis of the vote would be given later in the club's publication, the Guidon.

The club has members in forty-three states.

Temperature 92 on Fifth Day of Los Angeles' Wave

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—A 92 degree temperature marked the fifth day of a baking hot spell.

THE WEATHER

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1930.

Chicago and vicinity—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday; rising temperature; gentle, variable winds, becoming southerly Saturday.

Illinois—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday; rising temperature.

Indiana—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday; rising temperature.

Ohio—Fair Saturday; Sunday partly cloudy, rising temperature.

Lower Michigan—Fair Saturday, slightly warmer in north portion; Sunday unsettled, possibly rain in north portion, somewhat warmer in east and central portions.

Upper Michigan—Fair Saturday, somewhat warmer in west portion; showers probable Saturday night or Sunday; colder in west portion Sunday.

Wisconsin—Fair and somewhat warmer Saturday; Sunday unsettled, possibly rain in northeast portion, colder in west and north central portions.

Iowa—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday; rising temperature Saturday, colder in west and north central portions Sunday.

GENERAL FORECAST.

Mostly fair weather will prevail over the north central states Saturday and Sunday, except for unsettled weather Saturday night and Sunday in the upper great lakes region, possibly with rain in northern Michigan and northern Wisconsin. It will be warmer Saturday over most of the district and in the southeastern portion Sunday. Colder weather will overspread the upper and middle Missouri and the upper Mississippi valleys on Sunday.

SHIPPERS' ADVICE.

Cold Snap and Snow in Dixie; to Stay Awhile

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Southern temperatures dipped to shivering levels last night and today accompanied by snow flurries in three border states and heavy frost as far south as the gulf coast.

Weather bureau indications were that the cold snap is in Dixie for a several days' stay.

In portions of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia, light snows fell. Louisville, Paducah, Mayfield, Hopkinsville, and Harlan, Ky., reported snow, while at Bluefield, Va., an inch was recorded at noon. Snow was general in the Cumberland mountains. Flurries also fell in Knoxville, Nashville, Elizabethton, and other Tennessee points.

Freezing Below Border.

Freezing temperatures were noted at points in all the border states and as far south as northern Louisiana, Mississippi, and at Atlanta, where the mercury dropped to 32 degrees early Friday.

Along the gulf coast and at Pensacola and Apalachicola, in Florida, temperatures ranged downward to 40 degrees. The mercury at Jacksonville went to 46. New Orleans reported a low reading of 47.

The frost caused little or no damage to crops, although tender plants were killed at some points.

Heavy to killing frosts were forecast by the weather bureau for the south tomorrow.

Indiana Also Has Snow.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The general snow in northern and central Indiana also visited here today. The storm was too much for the second crop of apples on a tree owned by Val Wendel. The fruit fell to the ground.

Banker Wills City $375,000; More than Pays All Debts

Pomeroy, O., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The city of Pomeroy has been bequeathed $375,000 by Wyatt J. Plants, millionaire banker, who died yesterday, it was learned today. The money will pay off all the bonded indebtedness and other municipal debts and leave money in the treasury, city officials said.

Motoring Couple and Son Killed by Train at Crossing

CONDITION GOOD SAYS BULLETIN FROM HOSPITAL

Appendicitis Attack Comes at Hotel.

An operation for appendicitis was performed on Mayor Thompson yesterday afternoon at the Passavant Memorial hospital. The mayor was taken to the hospital shortly before noon from a suite in the Congress hotel where the sudden attack of illness occurred. The operation took place at 1 p. m.

A bulletin said that the operation had disclosed peritonitis, an inflammation of the abdominal wall.

A second bulletin stated that "the mayor is resting comfortably at present and is in as good condition as can be expected."

Dr. Milton M. Portis said the comfortable condition described was only a temporary matter and that the course of peritonitis within 48 hours would determine the outcome of an attack.

Illness Reported from Hotel.

The attack is said to have come about 11:30 a. m. at the mayor's suite in the Congress hotel. Last Saturday night with a party of political followers Thompson went for a lake cruise, returning Monday morning. Next day his purchase of the yacht Doris was announced, and on Wednesday night he was host to another yachting party.

Just before the meeting of the city council Thursday morning, while in his office, Thompson complained of stomach pains. City Collector Morris Eller handed the mayor a bottle of stimulants of which he partook copiously.

Thompson's condition provoked comment at the council meeting. His face flushed, eyes bright, and apparently in jovial mood, he beckoned County Treasurer George F. Harding to sit beside him on the rostrum.

Orders Roll Call of Wets.

"The clerk will call the roll and all who are wet will answer aye," the mayor said. Next he introduced the county treasurer as "The Rev. Mr. Harding," and announced that Harding would pronounce the invocation. The council settled down to business amidst chuckling at the mayor's humor.

Instead of going home Thursday evening the mayor engaged the suite in the Congress hotel, where he remained with his aids, Robert M. Perbohner, member of the board of local improvements, and Robert Lyman, his secretary.

That night, in the absence of the mayor's personal physician, Health Commissioner Kegel, who was attending a meeting of public health officials at Fort Worth, Tex., Dr. Allen B. Kanayel, chief of the Passavant hospital staff, was summoned. Dr. L. L. McArthur and Dr. Portis also were called.

Doctors Diagnose Case.

The case was diagnosed as appendicitis and it was reported that an operation was considered necessary.

In the morning Perbohner summoned Corporation Counsel Ettelson, Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe, and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, floor leader of the administration. The mayor refused to be moved until he had assurance that some one would deliver his speech scheduled for the Apollo theater at noon. Corporation Counsel Ettelson, after reading the speech, declined to deliver it.

Ald. Nelson also declined to speak for the mayor. Finally Commissioner Wolfe read the speech aloud and agreed to deliver it.

The address was a series of scurrilous and unprintable charges begin-

Vargas Enters Rio in Triumph to Begin Rule

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The generalissimo of the short lived Brazilian revolution, Dr. Getulio Vargas, arrived here at 6:50 o'clock tonight to become provisional president of Brazil and was hailed as a conqueror.

Despite an intermittent drizzle during the day great crowds were on hand to welcome Dr. Vargas, who was defeated for federal president in the election last spring and conducted the revolt beginning Oct. 3.

Thousands Watch Parade.

For hours before his scheduled arrival thousands upon thousands of spectators surrounded the railway station and stood in masses along the avenue watching the victorious southern troops marching through the streets. The soldiers, most of them gauchos from the pampas of Rio Grande do Sul and other southern states of the Brazilian union, arrived yesterday in advance of their chieftain.

Even early today there was a festive air in this beautiful capital. The Brazilian colors and the state flag of Rio Grande do Sul were draped on all buildings in the downtown section, while itinerant hawkers were busy selling miniature flags and buttons bearing the likeness of Dr. Vargas.

Fallen Man Forbidden Papers.

Meanwhile Washington Luis, ousted as president a week ago today, was still a prisoner in Fortress Copacabana, forbidden to read the newspapers, but able to browse through the garrison library and have his meals brought in from a restaurant outside. The deposed president still refuses to resign, however, and he was held incomunicado even on his birthday, last Sunday.

The prospective change in government following the victorious revolution apparently has generated a new feeling of nationality in the Brazilian press. This was shown in this morning's issues, which devoted practically all of their space to domestic affairs and virtually excluded foreign news.

Propose National Debt Drive.

Diario da Noticias sponsored a project for a nation-wide campaign of voluntary contributions which would wipe out Brazil's foreign loans. The paper estimated that if every one gave a sum in milreis slightly less than $3, all external obligations could be liquidated.

The minister of war today issued orders for the return of all officers now on duty in foreign countries. This was interpreted as meaning the abolition of the Brazilian mission in Paris, which has been maintained there several years for the purpose of buying military equipment.

2 GUNMEN ROB LOOP THEATER IN RUSH HOUR

Two bandits entered the lobby of the Apollo theater, Clark and Randolph streets, at 6 o'clock last evening, held up the box office cashier and escaped with $300. They overlooked $1,600.

The Randolph street rush was at its height when the robbers, who appeared to be Filipinos, walked casually into the foyer and looked at the various posters and pictures. Half a dozen men and women were likewise engaged. When the others departed, the gunmen stepped up to the box office and drew revolvers.

Peter Stroth, 1005 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, the cashier, was inside the tiny office and turned around at the command of one of the men. He observed a revolver stuck between the window bars, but thought, he told police later, that it was a joke. He turned away.

"Are you crazy?" whispered the leader. Stroth then realized it was a holdup and he held up his hands.

Under the guns of the bandits, Stroth sorted out a small stack of $10 and $20 notes, a total of $300. That was all there was, he said. In another drawer was $1,600 in $1, $50 and $100 bills. He shoved the $300 stack across the ledge to the outlaws. The gunmen separated in the sidewalk crowd and disappeared.

SENATE RIVALS WAGE BATTLE ON JOB ISSUE

Mrs. M'Cormick Hits Lewis' Record.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Jobs and prosperity were the chief issues expounded yesterday in the senatorship battle between Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat. Mrs. McCormick argued that the election of a Democratic congress would cause a deadlock between the White House and the capitol that would still business revival. She set forth that if Mr. Lewis were in the senate his vote would cancel that of Senator Otis F. Glenn on the Republican program, and Illinois' influence in shaping economic remedial measures would thus be zero.

Mr. Lewis, devoting himself to economic aspects of the campaign, called for a "new deal" for the west from Washington. He spoke of "broken pledges" by the Hoover administration to the farmers, business men and industries of midcontinent. On the world court and league of nations he said Mrs. McCormick has "revived this issue" because Hoover has not "put in a word in her behalf."

Watch Thompson Activities.

Meanwhile both sides were watching the Thompsonism phase of the campaign, the Democrats with apprehension and the Republicans in contentment. Both sides hold that the activities of Mayor Thompson in behalf of Mr. Lewis have redounded to the advantage of Mrs. McCormick. Reports have been coming into Republican headquarters of a swing to Mrs. McCormick in the last five or six days.

Democrats likewise report injury to their ticket by the Thompson affair. Due to the mayor's operation, both sides avoided the question yesterday as a topic, but Thompsonism is regarded as one of those issues that keeps on working right up to election day.

Both sides moved in new supporting batteries. The veteran L. Y. Sherman, who was senator at the same time as Mr. Lewis, spoke at the Grand theater in Mrs. McCormick's behalf. His tongue was as caustic as ever. He is finishing a 6,000 mile tour of Illinois. He spoke of Mr. Lewis, his quondem colleague in the senate, as the "Don Quixote of civic purity" and on the economic phase said:

"This depression is only a natural reaction from the war that Woodrow Wilson kept us out of."

Harrison Talks for Lewis.

Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, put forth an argument for the election of Mr. Lewis, thus putting the hyphens back into the old Harrison-Hearst-Dunne combination. The wet and dry question was emphasized by Carter H.

"Mr. Lewis," he said, "faces the issue fairly; he proclaims boldly the folly, the futility of an attempt to reform the human character by legislative or constitutional enactment; he believes lessons of temperance should be taught in the home, at the family fireside, in the house of God, by precept and example, not with the six-shooter, the rifle and the bludgeon. He recognizes the carnival of vice, crime and official debauchery that has followed as the necessary concomitant of the 'noble experiment' and is not afraid to say so."

Tariff and League Issues.

Protective tariff and the league of nations were the topics of Mrs. McCormick's night addresses. She dwelt on them as "paramount issues."

"There is no reason for being a Democrat," said Mrs. McCormick, "and there is less reason at this time than ever.

"I can conceive of no political issue which should take precedence over the question as to whether we shall, by our own vote, send senators and representatives to Washington who will interfere with the successful culmination of tremendous programs for industrial revival, for continued improvement of unemployment and for those interests which are closest to our hearts and our homes.

"Two years ago the people, by the biggest vote cast in an election, chose a Republican for our chief executive and placed Republican majorities in senate and house. In the senate, however, the Democrats and assistant Democrats were able to delay passage of the tariff bill for more than a year.

"Need for Cooperation."

"In this hour, when this country is sharing, to some extent, the unfortunate consequences of a world-wide depression and when the things needed in Washington is cooperation and loyalty to the people's interests, you are being asked to send to the senate another Democratic vote. I do not believe Illinois will be so blind.

"One more Democratic vote in the

Now Is a Good Time to Purchase a Hat

H. R. H., the Prince of Wales, ought to be very careful of what he wears. This is what the British hat and cap manufacturers are now saying. It seems that at the polo matches on Long Island a couple of years ago the Prince wore a gray felt snap brim hat. The popularity of the snap brim felt, they now complain, has dwindled the cap business to pretty low levels. Moreover, the derby, that ancient and honorable iron hat of the British Isles, is being replaced by the snap brim number, it is pointed out.

What the Prince wears doesn't seem to have as much or as violent an effect on this side of the Atlantic. The snap brim felt, of course, is popular with us, but if the Prince next week blossoms out in a magenta derby it will be a long time, if ever, before we get a glimpse of one in La Salle street. A lot of foreign impressions about Americans to the contrary, stability in dress is what we really go for.

That's why in Chicago stores you'll see snap brim felts, derbies, Homburgs, and caps all offered in practically equal variety. You choose the type and style that suits you and let it go at that.

Now, by the way, is a good time to buy a head covering—whether it be a snap brim felt, a derby, a Homburg or a cap.

Chicago Tribune THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

senate will mean that Illinois will have in the senate a Democrat whose every conception of government economics is directly at variance with Republican principles and policies. Do the people not prefer, rather, to have a representative in the senate whose vote, joined with that of Senator Otis F. Glenn, would be cast to carry out and not to condemn the great program which is intended to restore normal conditions and carry us on to even greater prosperity?

"No state in the Union has interests more closely touched by the items in the Republican tariff law than Illinois. Chicago has become the great manufacturing center of the country. The tariff protects these industries and labor and gives greater protection than any tariff before to the people on our 225,000 Illinois farms.

"I say, the tariff issue in this campaign is calling aloud for your attention."

Deals with Lewis' Record.

Mrs. McCormick took up the record of Mr. Lewis as senator.

"It is proper to recall," she said, "that he voted in 1913 for the Democratic tariff law known as the Underwood tariff bill, which swept away all protection from the products of our farmers and cost the wage earners $200,000,000 a week before a Republican majority had been returned to congress to pass an emergency revenue bill which would correct that disastrous Democratic error.

"Mr. Lewis spoke for hours in fervent appeals to the people to follow the Democrats in their plan to place the United States in the league of nations. Was he really representing the opinion of Illinois when he so vigorously advocated this step into entangling foreign alliances? Was his position and the position of the leader of his party not overwhelmingly repudiated by Illinois as soon as it had opportunity to vote on the question?

Attacks Vote on Peace Deal.

"As a climax to a career in the senate he offered a resolution in 1918 proposing to give Woodrow Wilson a free hand in completing the treaties of peace in Europe and of making any arrangements and commitments for this government he might think wise to make. What a dangerous piece of statesmanship!

"Mr. Lewis defends that astonishing resolution by saying it was in the form followed by resolutions offered in connection with peace negotiations in previous wars. However that may be, the senate, to their lasting credit, let Mr. Lewis' resolution remain on the table, where it presumably still is and from which it speaks a word of warning to Illinois voters."

Sherman Attacks Lewis.

Former Senator Sherman, speaking at the Grand theater, said of former Senator Lewis:

"No bill did he father in his time in the senate, nothing did he do except carry out the orders of Woodrow Wilson and the cabinet on the league of nations.

"Now comes this Don Quixote of civic purity to rescue Illinois from those who would corrupt the state and defile the ballot. He ignores or forgets the national committee of his own party, in debt half a million dollars last July, used to purchase the worst beating it has had for 50 years.

"Astride the Democratic jackass he prances gayly into the ring ridiculing Mrs. McCormick and deriding her fitness. By inference he recommends himself as the ne plus ultra of earthly perfection. And this is the greeting given the first woman nominated for high office under the 19th amendment. And by whom? The defender of the league of nations, the supporter of Woodrow Wilson, the whip of the senate.

Touches on League Stand.

"Is anybody deceived by his answer that he did not vote for the league? His term had expired before the final vote was taken, but up to March 4, 1919, his every act in every preliminary move before curtain was dropped was in alliance with the allies of the league of nations.

BACK 'NEW DEAL' FOR WEST, LEWIS URGES VOTERS

Chides Rival on Issue of Unemployment.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

James Hamilton Lewis appealed to the Independent, progressive voters of Chicago in his meetings yesterday to forget the "insignificant bickerings" that have clouded this campaign and back him in an effort to get a "new deal" for the west from the administrative forces at Washington.

He chided his Republican opponent for the senatorship, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, in a gentle manner for "her failure to present any method of alleviation for the despair of the people," and, for his own part, suggested that the government use money that has been set aside for armament building to loan to the Chicago civic committee in the present emergency.

Mrs. McCormick, he said, had recently returned to her "old stuff" and had revived the world court and league of nations issue, attacking President Hoover. This, said the colonel, was because she had been notified by her scouts in Washington that the President had refused to speak a word in her behalf in the Illinois conflict.

Speaks at Theater Rally.

Ex-Senator Lewis spoke at the Garrick theater at noon, and at Oak Park, Lawndale and North Side Turner hall in the evening. The noonday rally was as large as usual, although the rival attraction of the Thompson meeting next door drew the larger crowds. The Garrick meeting was under the auspices of the United Democratic Service league, with Col. Samuel T. Lawton as chairman.

"I wonder if my fellow citizens are really giving their attention to great events," Mr. Lewis said. "You are living in something of a new era. A new order has taken the republic. Old standards have passed. Let us allude to New York, where the Republican party has spilled out of existence the old Republican machine; and their candidate for governor has taken exactly the stand of the new Democracy in Illinois. In New Jersey the thoughtful Republicanism has put the old Republican machine in the cellar and has nailed Morrow on a platform like that of the Democracy of Illinois."

It Sees a New Order.

He cited the situation in Michigan, Wisconsin, and Oklahoma as indicating the march of the new order toward a "noble tomorrow," and said that citizens bent on this reform were not being thrown off the goal by old signals whistled in the woods; that would lead them to destruction.

"How pitiful it is to see so many little things brought up," he said. "Behold the world in revolt. Behold the masses rising. On guard! Beware! Too much time has been consumed in ridiculous and insignificant things.

"I see the lady candidate has issued a statement about our distinguished mayor. I know no details. I regret to read that the mayor says I imputed to him an honorable design of running for an office, and that there was no foundation for my statement. If it be true that he is not inspired by any natural thought of such elevation, I beg to withdraw the imputation. It only proves how little I know of what he is thinking.

"I cannot understand why the lady is content to remain silent on the present day crying necessities, silent on employment, or restoration of hope. I regret that her board of elocution and oratory that writes her daily manuscript for her, that board of straddling strategy, has abandoned these matters. They ask what about the world court and the league of nations? She leaps again on the shoulders of President Hoover, as if he did not have enough assailing him. There is something of vindictive temper here. It is not because of the cause the President is for—the world court—but she has received information that the President has declined to utter a word for election of lady.

Makes Reply on League.

"Then she turns to me and wants to know if I was advised of the plans of the Wilson administration to put guns behind the league of nations. I don't know why the lady brings out that old stuff, Noah and the ark, Jonah and the whale. I never knew of any Democratic administration that ever advocated a league or union with guns behind it. The only people I know who advocated such a league was that group the lady joined, when she deserted the Republican party for the Progressive, and said that whatever Ted Roosevelt stood for in the way of principles, she stood for. Roosevelt was worthy of following and since she said his principles were hers I read to you what he said in 1916."

The candidate then quoted from a statement by Roosevelt in which the latter advocated a league of nations with the guns of the army and navy behind it as the only kind that would succeed.

"For myself," continued Mr. Lewis, "I do not know what action the future will call for. Sufficient to the day is the evil thereof. I abide in hope and feel there is a power, dreaming of peace, anxious in brotherhood, whatever name it is under, that will do that only which is consistent and justified. The one rule I follow is that of Decatur—'My country, may she always be right, but my country, right or wrong.'

Raises Issue of Jobs.

"The great question of the hour is this: Why do we not hear from these masters, who, professing to look over the unemployed, that their minds may be at rest, do anything? There are millions and millions at Washington, laid aside for the increase of the army and navy. Why do they not send some of this into great Chicago to be expended to bridge over necessities and returned by the taxpayer? Millions are provided for the waterway. Why cannot that money be placed at the service of Illinois?"

MRS. LOTTIE O'NEILL SAYS SHE'S RUNNING FOR SENATE TO WIN

Sterling, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent senatorial candidate, today branded as false and malicious all rumors that she was not running in the senatorial race to be elected.

"I'm tired of hearing reports that I entered this race without the intention of winning it," Mrs. O'Neill said. "I'm out to win, and my opponents know it, too.

"And I am not a candidate to help elect a Democrat to the United States senate. Although I respect Col. James Hamilton Lewis for his outspoken manner and fearlessness, I am entirely opposed to his wringing wet banner. The dry cause is sacred to me, and I certainly do not intend to lend support to one who is anxious to repeal the 18th amendment.

"I am campaigning to win this election for the drys of Illinois and those citizens who put principles before party labels. I'm not in the race for fun. I do not expect to get wet votes. I leave those to Col. Lewis and Mrs. McCormick. But I do expect to get the votes of all the drys."

LEADERS IN BOTH PARTIES FOCUS EYES ON ILLINOIS

Senate Battle Holds Their Attention.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Senatorial contests in Illinois and Massachusetts held the attention today of the rival campaign managers at the national headquarters of the Republicans and Democrats.

The developments in the Illinois campaign were being closely followed in both camps. Thus far there has been no definite claim from the Democratic national committee as to the Illinois outcome, but the party leaders are showing increasing optimism as to the possibility of the election of James Hamilton Lewis over Ruth Hanna McCormick. The Republicans, on the other hand, are admitting some apprehension, but continue to believe that Mrs. McCormick will emerge victorious.

Coolidge vs. Smith.

The Massachusetts situation was of particular interest as a result of the first appearance of former President Calvin Coolidge in the campaign last night in behalf of former Senator William M. Butler, the Republican senatorial nominee, and also because of the speech of Alfred E. Smith for Marcus A. Coolidge, the Democratic candidate, earlier in the week.

A week ago the Republicans were of the opinion that the tide had turned toward Butler and the Democrats were inclined to admit that their early hopes of capturing Massachusetts might not be realized. The speech of Mr. Smith, however, cheered the Democrats to a marked degree.

Reports to national headquarters were that the Boston Democrats, who were previously understood to be somewhat lukewarm toward the Marcus Coolidge candidacy, were brought into line by the former presidential nominee. One Democrat estimated that the Smith speech assured the party's senatorial nominee 20,000 additional Boston votes.

Coolidge to the Rescue.

Former President Coolidge's speech of last night, the Republicans contend, offset to a considerable extent the effect of the Smith address. The Republicans continue to think that Butler may pull through, although by a narrow margin.

The Illinois and Massachusetts contests seem to be regarded at headquarters of both parties as probably the most doubtful of any in the numerous states where active campaigns are in progress.

The Republicans admit discouragement over the situation in Ohio and West Virginia. The Democrats definitely claim the election of Robert J. Bulkley, their senatorial nominee in Ohio, over Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, and former Senator Neely, their nominee in West Virginia, over J. E. Jones.

Oklahoma also seems to be conceded to the Democrats, but administration Republicans will shed no tears over the defeat of Senator W. B. Pine, who boasts of his opposition to Hoover policies, by former Senator Thomas P. Gore.

Rhode Island Tangle.

The Democrats also believe they are certain to win in Rhode Island and Kentucky. The Republicans, on the other hand, think that Senator J. H. Metcalf will defeat former Senator Peter H. Gerry in Rhode Island and that Senator John M. Robsion will manage to survive the attacks of Judge M. M. Logan in Kentucky.

The Republicans claim and are conceded by the Democrats to have the advantage in Delaware, Minnesota and South Dakota. In Colorado the Republicans also are believed to have the edge, but are hard pressed by the Democrats. The Democrats insist they will lose no senate seats except one in Iowa.

E. H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, in a statement today asserted that over two-thirds and possibly four-fifths of all candidates for the senate and house are dry.

STUDENT PAPER CALLS HARVARD NAVY CLASS 'A HAVEN FOR LAZY'

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The courses in naval and military science at Harvard were characterized today by the Harvard Crimson editorially as "A haven, a refuge for dull and lazy students."

In its editorial the undergraduate daily comments on an editorial appearing in the Socialist, published by the Harvard Liberal club, whose first issue appeared yesterday.

"The primary objection to the existence of military and naval science departments here is not, as the Socialist would indicate," the Crimson said, "a matter of their interference with the development of Harvard. As has been pointed out before in these columns, the real question is: should a liberal arts college give credit to students for taking part in the unacademic pursuits of military training? To add to the incongruity of the situation, the courses offered by both naval and military science are so far below the standard of the rest of the university that they have become a haven of refuge for dull or lazy students."

The Crimson recently made several bitter attacks on the American Legion following the legion's convention in Boston.

MAYOR IS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL IN SUDDEN ILLNESS

ning with an accusation against THE TRIBUNE by inference of responsibility for the assassinations of Abraham Lincoln and Carter Harrison Sr.

The mayor reached the hospital at 11:45 a. m. At 12:55 he was wheeled to the operating room. At 1:45 he had a brief word with his wife, who had arrived alone at the hospital. Mrs. Thompson departed at 4:45 p. m. for the Thompson apartment.

The physicians' first bulletin attracted attention, indicating that the appendicitis attack was less sudden than appeared. The bulletin follows:

"The appendix was found to be actuely inflamed. There was evidence of former attacks. There was free fluid in the abdomen, which speaks for a beginning of peritonitis. There is no immediate cause for alarm, but no definite statement can be made within 48 hours."

HUNTING LODGE USED BY YOCUM CAPTORS FOUND

Woman Who Cooked Meals for Banker Held.

BULLETIN.

Kewanee, Ill., Oct. 31.—(Special.)—Word was received here tonight that Floyd Winslow, one of the two fugitive kidnapers of Earl Yocum, Galva banker, was seen driving a truck through Princeville, about thirty miles from Peoria. He was believed headed for Peoria, where he is known to have friends. Chief of Police J. D. Krumtinger of Kewanee notified Chief of Detectives Fred Montgomery of Peoria to post all roads to insure Winslow's capture.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kewanee, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The lonely hunting lodge where Earl L. Yocum, Galva, Ill., bank president, was held captive for three and one-half days by kidnapers, was located late today by Sheriff Charles Nash on the Illinois river near Lacon, Ill. Mrs. Frank Stockers, who was found in the place, admitted housing the men.

The discovery furnished the final confirmation of the confession of Vernon Ahlgren, 29 years old, to the kidnaping. He and Harry Whiskers are in jail charged with kidnaping for ransome, while the hunt for the two remaining members of the gang was continued.

Believed Yocum in Hiding.

Mrs. Stockers was held as an important witness, but authorities said she was apparently unaware of the kidnaping. She was told by Floyd Winslow, one of those sought, to remain in her bedroom when the men entered and left the house. Her duties consisted of cooking food for Yocum, one of the captors carrying the meals to him. She believed, she said, that Yocum was in hiding and that the other men were his friends.

A number of reports were made to police today that Winslow and Orville Whiskers, the fourth member of the gang, had been seen in various places. The information believed most authentic was delivered by L. A. Eby, a farmer, who reported that he had seen a man lurking about his farm two and one-half miles north of Toulon, Ill., at 4 o'clock in the morning.

Fugitives Believed in Hiding.

Winslow, Whiskers and Ahlgren escaped yesterday morning after being surprised by state highway police on the Lone Tree road where they awaited a payment of ransom. Ahlgren was captured at noon on a farm several miles away. The two other fugitives are believed to have separated. Both have friends in the farming region about here and it is the belief of police that they are being kept in hiding or were given assistance in fleeing the district.

Ahlgren and Harry Whiskers were held to the grand jury under $10,000 bonds by Justice of the Peace J. N. Cummings today. The jury meets Monday and indictments will be voted speedily against the two men, States Attorney Carl Melin declared.

Death Penalty to Be Asked.

"We will ask the death penalty," the prosecutor said. "This was as bold a kidnaping as was ever staged. When a leading citizen is taken from his doorstep and held for ransom under threat of death, the penalty cannot be too severe. A conviction will serve as a lesson to other would be criminals that kidnaping may seem an easy way of getting money but that it cannot succeed in this country."

Police early today arrested a man answering the description of Whiskers. Questioning revealed that he was a hobo, who gave the name of William Murray, and had no connection with the case.

Banker in Seclusion.

The bank president remained in seclusion in his home, which is still under heavy guard. Mrs. Mae Yocum, his wife, met interviewers. She was asked if her husband had changed his attitude of apparent disinterest in the capture of the kidnapers.

"Why should he have anything to do with the case?" she asked. "He couldn't even be a witness. He never saw the men at any time and never heard their voices, because they talked in whispers all the time."

Authorities have not yet communicated with the banker to ask him if he would assist in the prosecution.

Confession Slightly Changed.

One change was made in the original confession of Ahlgren, as given out by the authorities. The kidnaper originally said that the banker had been chloroformed when he was thrust into an automobile at the gateway of his estate. It was stated later that the banger was merely picked up and carried to the car. He made no opposition when informed that the kidnapers had guns and would shoot him if he struggled or made any noise.

Extortion Plot Bared.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—An extortion plot against Claude P. Kreitzer, cashier of the Ellsworth, Ill., state bank, was bared by Sheriff Walter Niersteimer today. The sheriff said Krietzer received three letters within two weeks, all of them threatening death unless $20,000 was paid over.

In the first letter, the sheriff said, Krietzer was instructed to meet the senders Oct. 23 on 19th street in Chicago and pay $10,000 as a first installment. Krietzer went to the scene with two Chicago detectives. No person met them.

$20,000 Demanded.

Later, the sheriff related, a letter, postmarked Detroit, stated that Krietzer had been watched in Chicago. He was to make the next trip alone and pay $20,000. This letter was ignored.

Wednesday another letter was received and turned over to the sheriff, who took it to Chicago for examination of finger prints. He said he did not know the contents of the third epistle.

Kristzer declined to discuss the affair. Rumors that a guard had been placed about the banker's home last night following a supposed bombing threat were discredited by the sheriff.

FIRST SKYSCRAPER IS TO HAVE ANNIVERSARY —'TWAS IN CHICAGO

Pinehurst, N. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—A celebration in 1934 of the fiftieth anniversary of the first skyscraper was decided upon today by the American Institute of Steel Construction which is holding its eighth annual convention here.

The Home Life Insurance building, Chicago, erected in 1884, is considered the first skyscraper by the institute.

Details of the celebration were left for a committee to complete. It will consult with the American Institute of Architects, American Society of Civil Engineers and other bodies interested before arranging them.

The institute resolved also to hold a national architectural competition for plans for dwellings of all steel structures.

JURY ACQUITS CAMPBELL OF KILLING GIRL

Ballistic Report Is Not Presented.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Acquitted by a jury which deliberated only forty minutes, Herbert M. Campbell was free tonight and the murder of Miss Mary Baker, with which he was charged, remained a mystery and the capital's most sensational crime in a decade unsolved.

The case went to the jury at 3:27 p. m., and it was understood that a unanimous verdict was reached on the first ballot.

Acquittal of Campbell followed an unexpected anti-climax of the battle of ballistics experts which has figured strongly in the trial, when Col. Calvin Goddard, Northwestern university firearms authority, announced that he needed more time to complete his study of guns and bullets used in a courtroom demonstration to test his ability.

Goddard Asks Delay.

Rather than delay the trial, counsel for both sides agreed to proceed without his report. Col. Goddard's failure to match the bullets with the Campbell weapon more promptly was admittedly a blow to the prosecution, but there were no intimations that he could not perform the feat if given sufficient time.

The jury's verdict evoked a dramatic demonstration in the courtroom. Campbell's wife, elbowing her way through the crowded aisles, embraced him several times as other relatives congratulated the attorneys. The defendant's aged father, who silently has watched his son's fight for his life from a corner seat, broke down and was led from the courtroom sobbing.

Appearing fresh and debonair in a new suit of clothes, Campbell smilingly signed autographs, shook hands with everybody, and posed for a dozen photographers.

"It's going to be a Halloween over at our house," he said. "Come on over and join in."

Campbell, a real estate dealer, has been in jail since July 20, three months after the body of Miss Baker, a navy department employé, was found in a culvert near Arlington National cemetery. She had been raped, strangled and finally shot. Campbell was arrested after he had helped the authorities capture a suspect, and had told them a fantastic story about his gloves, similar to a pair found near the body, being stolen. Later he confessed that his story was a myth designed to obtain publicity for a miniature golf course he owned.

Find Farmer Shot Through Heart, but No Hole in Suit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 31.—Mystery surrounds the death of Herchel McGrath, a farmer living near Athabaska, whose body was found with a bullet hole in his heart lying in a field. While the man had been shot he was fully dressed and there was no bullet hole in any of his clothing. Mounted police also discovered a .22 rifle lying under the body but here was no empty shell in the gun. McGrath had been missing for about ten days.

Pola Negri's Double Gulps Poison in Suicide Attempt

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gladys White, 32, film actress, who doubled for Pola Negri during the latter's American starring pictures, today swallowed poison. She was taken to a hospital, where it was said she will recover. The slump in the movies made her despondent, Mrs. White said. She worked as a waitress, but fell ill and worried when her 4 year old daughter lacked food.

BILLION DOLLARS' WORTH OF WORK PLEDGED BY U. S.

Forget Retrenchment in Job Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Government construction and public works projects involving a total expenditure of a billion dollars will be under way or contracted for within the next two months, White House officials said today in reporting on the progress of the federal campaign to find work for the nation's unemployed.

Projects on which 576 million dollars will be expended are contracted for and under way, according to White House report. Contracts for another 370 millions dollars worth of government construction are to be awarded before Jan. 1, it was said. These figures do not include contracts for airplane purchases and other supplies, which are expected to boost the total contract obligations to well above the billion dollar mark.

A Diversified Program.

Included in the billion dollar program are buildings to house postoffices and other federal agencies, warship construction, private shipbuilding financed by loans obtained through the shipping board, public roads, waterway development, and repair activities. Routine department expenditures are not included in the tabulation.

Partly because of accelerated federal activities, the number of persons employed directly or indirectly by the government has jumped to 1,033,000 in the last four months, it was stated. This represents an increase of 43,000 over the number employed on July 1. Further increases are expected as the construction program gathers momentum.

New evidences of the modification of the original Hoover retrenchment plan came today when it was disclosed by the navy department that $24,000,000 worth of contracts held up temporarily in the interests of economy have been let or will be awarded in the near future.

Army Barracks to Be Built.

At the war department it was learned that army housing contracts totaling $18,000,000 have been let since the first of the current fiscal year. Another $5,000,000 worth are to be awarded before Jan. 1.

In addition contracts involving the expenditure of millions of dollars for airplanes for the army and navy are to be awarded without further delay.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced late today that he had ordered the speeding up of repairs on government buildings, which ordinarily would be distributed through the year, and the making of surveys for new construction that ordinarily would await actual appropriations.

The interstate commerce commission today waived old regulations and permitted the Chicago and North Western Railway company to reemploy 1,700 men during November and December in making repairs to cars and locomotives not now in service. The work involves an expenditure of about $500,000, it was announced.

HOOVER MAY LOSE HIS VOTE; BALLOT LATE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The possibility arose tonight that President Hoover might not be among those whose votes are counted next Tuesday.

Although the White House wrote last week to Palo Alto, Cal., for absentee ballots for the chief executive and Mrs. Hoover, they had not arrived late today. They had been expected for several days.

If they come tomorrow, however, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover plan to dispatch their ballots by air mail and they would reach California by Tuesday.

PERU SOLVES ITS JOBLESS CRISIS; SOUP KITCHENS CLOSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 31.—While the economic situation continues unfavorable, it is worthy of note that the soup kitchens established by the government immediately following the revolution will be closed tomorrow as unnecessary. This follows the government's action in shipping several thousand unemployed workmen from Lima and Callao to various sections of the republic, where workmen were required for public works or agricultural and mining enterprises.

The payment of depositors in the savings account section of the Bank of Peru and London, which suspended payments on Oct. 11, continued throughout the week, with no untoward incidents.

It was estimated, however, that the final reorganization or liquidation of the institution will require from two to eight months.

Pair Held to Grand Jury on Stolen Auto Charge

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Arthur Jenkins and James MacKenzie, both of Chicago, were bound over to the federal grand jury today under bonds of $1,500 each at a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Jenkins on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile.

VENTURA BRUSH FIRES SPREAD; ROUT FIGHTERS

Some Mountain, Beach Resorts Near By.

Ventura, Cal., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Brush fires forced several hundred fire fighters to retreat today and then swept out of control, rolling through the Santa Monica mountains to the Simi hills on ever widening fronts.

Intense heat from flames roaring through dry brush forced crews of men out of Sycamore and Grimes Canyon. Stiff winds carried the flames over concrete roads and fire breaks which fire wardens had held as last stands.

In Sycamore and Grimes Canyons it was admitted the only hope was in laying attac klines beyond Canyon ridges.

The Santa Monica mountain fire in the Malibu district approached to within two miles of the Seminole Hot Springs mountain settlement. Fire officials said they would prevent flames from reaching the clubhouse and thirty cabins.

This fire, which raged near the Los Angeles-Ventura highway yesterday, spread to a twelve mile front, heading toward the ocean and toward Topango canyon through which runs the Los Angeles city limits. Twelve miles away at Malibu beach is a colony of beach homes of Hollywood movie folk. Fire officials said the cottages were not yet endangered.

Los Angeles county officials recruited 130 new fire fighters and Ventura county 110 additional men. Half were sent to the Simi hills fire and the remainder to Malibu.

Kokomo Factory to Provide for 2,000 Idle Employes

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Pitsburgh Plate Glass factory here which has been shut down for months announced today that it would maintain the families of its idle employés during the winter, with housing, food, and fuel. The company owns scores of tenant dwellings here, most of which have been retained by former employés.

HOW NORRIS GOT POWER LETTER IS UP TO MAIL MEN

U. S. Inquiry Requested; Senator "Willing."

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 31.—(AP)—United States postal authorities tonight had been drawn into the Nebraska senatorial campaign through a demand for an investigation of the manner in which United States Senator George W. Norris came into possession of a letter written to Thorne Browne of Lincoln, Neb.

The demand was made by Browne, director of the Nebraska section of the National Electric Light association. Browne asked that postal authorities determine the manner in which Senator Norris, Republican, came into possession of a letter intended for Browne.

The demand, made here, is to be turned over to postal authorities at Lincoln.

Appraised here of Browne's demand, Senator Norris said that he will welcome the investigation and that there was nothing dishonorable in the means he took to procure the letter.

Letter Read During Speech.

The letter to Browne, admittedly written by J. R. Wootan of Chicago, editor of the Public Service magazine, was read by Senator Norris last night at a campaign meeting at Blair, Neb. He is running for reelection on the Republican ticket, opposing Ex-Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Omaha publisher and Democratic nominee.

"I would be delighted to have them investigate," Senator Norris said today. "Their conclusion that some one tapped the mails was just as silly as their conclusion that Senator Nye's office tapped telephone wires. That is silly. There is nothing to it."

The text of Wootan's letter, as exhibited by Norris, referred to reports that "Senator Nye or one of his confederates" had sought to make arrangements to tap telephone wires in the Lincoln hotel, but later had dropped the matter.

Norris Exonerates Nye.

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, chairman of the senate committee on campaign expenditures, disclaimed knowledge of any attempt on his part to obtain the letter. He was exonerated by Senator Norris, who stated here that "Senator Nye had absolutely nothing to do with it." Norris, however, would not reveal the manner in which he came into possession of it.

Brown, a former member of the Nebraska railway commission, made a written demand for a thorough inquiry in a letter today to Postmaster T. E. Gillaspie at Lincoln, who announced that the letter would be turned over to postal inspectors.

Asks How Norris Got It.

"How did Senator Norris come into possession of that letter?" Browne inquired in a written statement today. "Mr. Wootan sent the letter. He said to me over long distance in Chicago today that no one had taken any mail from his office. But the letter never arrived at my office. Senator Norris has the letter. Some place between the mails and office building in Chicago and its arrival at my office in Lincoln that letter was abstracted by some one."

Senator Norris saw in the letter and in Browne's investigation demand verification of his previously expressed opinion that "power trusts" are seeking his defeat.

"It is not so much a question of whether Browne got the letter as it is whether Wootan wrote it," Norris said, "and that is admitted.

Sees Effort to Defeat Him.

"It is evident that Power Trust magazines and publications, as well as power officials, are trying to defeat me. It also shows that this cry that they are not in politics and not interested in senatorial campaigns is absolutely untrue."

The senior Nebraska senator willingly exhibited the letter, apparently an original, to newspaper men. It was pasted in two places where it had been torn. It bore the signature, in ink, of J. R. Wootan. Norris stated that he did the pasting, commenting that "when it came to me it looked as if someone had read it, torn it up, and thrown it in a waste basket."

Senator Nye, campaigning in North Dakota, said his committee's investigation of the Nebraska primary campaign will be resumed Nov. 15, and the letter may interest him then.

NEW YORK CITY BOARD OF ESTIMATE ADOPTS BUDGET OF 620 MILLION

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—New York City budget of $620,340,183.37, the largest in the city's history, for 1931 was adopted today by the board of estimate.

It now goes to the board of aldermen, then to the mayor for his signature. The budget means a basic tax rate of $2.66 or $2.67 per $100 of taxable property.

BERLIN, Oct. 31. — (AP) — The staunch little monoplane Columbia, twice conqueror of the Atlantic, made its second visit to Berlin today. This time bearing Capt. J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry P. Connor, now on a tour of Europe after spanning the ocean.

PICKET SENATE OFFICE BUILDING TO SEIZE LIQUOR

Dry Agents Asked For by Curtis, Says Doran.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—It was disclosed today that for at least three months during recent sessions of congress the small office building was picketed by special agents of the prohibition department.

Dr. James M. Doran, former prohibition commissioner and now chief of the industrial alcohol division, admitted he had placed the men about the building at the request of Vice President Charles Curtis. Mr. Doran said he did not have the power to place the men inside the building.

In Shadow of Capitol.

Mr. Doran did not explain why Mr. Curtis made the request. The office building is where the various members of the senate conduct their business when they are not on the floor of the senate making the dry laws more dry. It is located in the shadow of the capitol and around the corner from the headquarters of the Methodist board of prohibition, temperance, and public morals.

So effective were his agents, according to Dr. Doran, that they captured George Cassiday, "the man in the green hat," who is charged with carrying a pint under his arm from his car up the office building steps.

That Mysterious List.

Another result of the picketing is the framing of a mysterious list of names of which one newspaper says: "A sensational phase of the investigation by the under cover agent was the seizure of a bootlegger's customer list containing the names and office numbers of senators and congressmen who have been making illicit purchases of liquor on Capitol hill. The list now is in the possession of high officials in at least two of the departments of the federal government."

At the coming session of congress, an effort may be made to force publication of this list.

Curtis Gave His Approval.

Hutchinson, Kas., Oct. 31. — (AP) — Vice President Charles Curtis tonight said he had approved the stationing of an under cover prohibition agent in the senate office building at Washington.

"It is true, but I do not understand why I should be asked to make a statement about it," said Curtis, who was here for a Republican rally. "The agent was employed by the secretary of the senate and he can give the necessary statement. He needs no authority from me. I understand the appointment was made with the full coöperation of other officials concerned. He simply asked me for my approval, and I approved it."

Vice President Curtis said he hoped the ones violating the law, if there were such, would be found.

Speedboat Pueblo Again Seized; Has Large Cargo

New London, Conn., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The speedboat Pueblo, which was captured last week at the same time the speedboat Helen was fired on and beached by coast guardsmen, was again seized today by a coast guard patrol boat. She was laden with an estimated liquor cargo of 800 sacks.

HOOVER ASKS SUPPORT FOR $80,000,000 DRIVE OF COMMUNITY CHESTS

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—On the eve of the annual campaigns for funds by community chests throughout the nation, President Hoover today indorsed the movement in a message to J. H. Case, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve bank and president of the Association of Community Chests and Councils. The President's message read:

"The magnificent response of the American people to the present community chests campaign is characteristic of the generous impulse and friendly spirit of coöperation and good will, which is one of the most powerful constructive forces in our democracy. This movement is wisely conceived and administered, and deserves the support of all our people."

Mr. Case said the total sought has been increased $5,000,000 to $80,000,000.

WALES TO TAKE HOOVER TRAIL IN SOUTH AMERICA

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The prince of Wales, in his rôle of traveling salesman for England, will cover much of the territory visited by President Elect Hoover on his South American tour in a trip which the prince will undertake early next year.

Sir Godfrey Thomas, private secretary, said today the prince would include Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, and Cuba in his itinerary. The royal party will leave England probably in December on an ordinary passenger steamer, going direct to Havana.

British business, whose South American investments total a billion pounds sterling, has been hard hit by American and German competition. Business men are elated over the royal tour and plan to make of it an occasion to induce South America to give more thought to British goods.

PARTY LEADERS PREDICT HEAVY VOTE TUESDAY

Expect 1,200,000 at Polls in Cook County.

BY PARKE BROWN.

On one thing only the Republican and Democratic leaders of Cook county are agreed. They say that the vote next Tuesday will be large.

With more than 1,500,000 registered in Cook county for the first time—the big figure being produced by the operation of the new law requiring registration in the country towns outside the jurisdiction of the election board—it is estimated by both leaders that, given anything like fair weather, there will be 1,200,000 men and women go to the polls on election day.

Various reasons are given to account for this belief, but the one most widely heard is that recent political events in Chicago have aroused the so called silent vote to the fact that a campaign is in progress, something to which they had not awakened ten days ago.

Organizations leaders, as usual, are inclined to hook up with their predictions some credit for their own workers, but this is not accepted outside their own circles as accounting fully for the public interest manifested recently, particularly in the form of packed meetings in all sections of the city.

"We have felt right along," say the Republicans, "that there would be a big vote out ,that it would be brought out by the referendum on the wet and dry question, the income tax question presented by the proposed amendment to the state constitution; but now there are new causes bringing out the voters. Recent clashes over the senatorial race have aroused thousands of people who otherwise might not have gone to the polls and now they are alive to the real issues of the campaign."

Business Conditions Seen as Cause.

"There is certain to be a big vote," say the Democrats, "because of the liquor question and the positions taken on it by the canidates for senator, but the big reason for public interest is the employment situation, and business conditions. The people have been aroused to express themselves on these questions."

With the arrival of the final Saturday the number of meetings is cut down sharply today. The rule from now on will be for a small number of large meetings with the ward organizations and their auxiliaries concentrating on detailed work among the voters.

Perhaps the biggest question among Republican organiaztion leaders was whether the money promised by Mayor Thompson for the manning of the polls will be available at his office today, as he said in his original announcement on this subject. There was considerable doubt yesterday because of his sickness whether the currency would be ready for distribution, but the best information obtainable was that the committeemen who call at his office will be paid promptly.

Call Democratic Meeting.

The Democratic leaders trampled on precedent when they called a special meeting of the county managing committee for noon today. Ordinarily the ward chiefs are permitted to spend the final day with their local units while the big bosses confer. But they say a committee meeting is necessary to get a line on what the Republicans are doing.

"We find their programs differ throughout the city," said Chairman Clayton F. Smith. "In some wards apparently they are supporting only one county candidate and in most wards there are not more than three or four candidates being pushed. We want to know what they are doing so we can make special efforts to protect some of our candidates against such tactics."

Chairman Snow of the Republican county committee said that as the battle went into the final grapple he was well pleased with the situation.

Calls Organization Unified.

"Considering that he had a warmly contested primary in April and that the Democrats deliberately avoided a test of the strength of their organization at that time," he said, "the Republican organization is remarkably yunified despite factional questions that have arisen even late in the campaign. Our ward committeemen report that they have been offered trades and deals of many varieties, but that they have declined them because the offers themselves were proof of our strength.

"There has been an constantly growing Republican trend in straw votes and canvasses for some time now and the tide is so strong that it is going on right up to election day."

Most of the county candidates and other seekers of local offices will continue campaigning until Monday night; but many of them concede that their own fate depends on the outcome of the fight at the top of the ticket—the United States senatorship. There is little heard in private conversation in either headquarters of a landslide that by its momentum will carry either ticket in its entirety over the gfioal line on Tuesday.

WORKMEN FIGHT FOR JOBS ON NEW OHIO STATE OFFICE BUILDING

Columbus, O., Oct. 31.—(AP)—A demand for employment on the new $6,000,000 state office building was made on officials early today by between 700 and 800 unemployed men of Columbus after they charged that the Cuyahoga Wrecking company of Cleveland, which started the wrecking of old buildings today, was using between 60 and 70 Cleveland men on the project.

Spokesmen for the Columbus laborers said the Cleveland men had been routed twice from their places on the office building site by the large delegation of Columbus men who had been refused employment.

Adjt. Gen. A. W. Reynolds promised he would look into the matter to see why the Clevelanders were brought here by the wrecking company.

Several of the delegations told officials that if the state did not take care of them on the project they would take the matter into their own hands.

UNCROWNED KING OF IRELAND, CLAN HEAD, DIES AT 80

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The O'Mahoney of Kerry, head of the County Kerry branch of the oldest clan in Ireland, died today, aged 80, at his home in County Wicklow.

The original chief of the famous old clan married Sainha, the daughter of Brian Boru, high king of the Irish, who drove the Danes from Erin in a battle near Dublin on Good Friday in the year 1014. The O'Mahoney, who never forgot the glory of his name, wore the Irish kilt to the end of his days.

His full name was Pierce Charles De Lacy O'Mahoney. For many years he was active in politics and only recentl yhad he retired to the peacefulness of his garden.

CONTINUE EMBEZZLEMENT CASE.

Two charges of embezzlement against Charles J. Wolfe, former president of the People's State Bank of Maywood, yesterday were continued until Nov. 7 by Justice of the Peace Richard C. Betts of Maywood when the state asked for more time to prepare its case.

IDENTIFY MADDOX IN SHOOTING OF POLICE SERGEANT

Gangster to Be Charged with Murder Attempt.

Claude Maddox, gangster and public enemy, has been identified as one of the gangsters who shot Sergt. James of the Bellwood police as the latter was riding in a street car on Thursday, Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne announced last night.

Maddox with another public enemy, James ["Fur"] Sammons, was under arrest as a result of the bold attempt to kill Sergt. McBride to prevent his testimony against another public enemy, William ["Three Fingered Jack"] White, who must again face a jury for the murder of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Bellwood, which occurred five years ago.

"A warrant will be issued in the morning charging Maddox with attempted murder," Prosecutor Ditchburne said after announcing the identification.

Won't Name Accuser.

The prosecutor would not say who had identified Maddox—whether it had been McBride or the passengers of the street car in Maywood in which McBride was riding to the Criminal court when an automobile load of gangsters drove alongside and fired sawedoff shotguns at McBride's head. Earlier Mr. Ditchburne had said the investigation must be secret because of the terroristic methods of the gangsters.

Maddox had been taken to the West-lake hospital in Melrose Park, where McBride is in a critical condition, with part of his face shot away, his jaws shattered, and his vocal cords affected. Sammons, who is said to be a machine gun expert, had been taken before the policeman earlier and there was an unofficial report that Sammons had not been identified.

After leaving McBride's bedside Maddox was taken to the Melrose Park station by Mr. Ditchburne and detectives of the state's attorney's office. Then the prisoner was taken back to the prosecutor's office, where Sammons was locked up.

The attempted murder of the policeman-witness was regarded as the most glaring defiance to law enforcement officials. Special guards were placed around the hospital. McBride, who saw his partner, Pflaume, shot down by a man he said was White, was certain the White gang would try again to kill him. His wife and family believe he was shot at the instance of White in order to hamper the prosecution in the murder case. White was once convicted of the murder, but the supreme court set aside the verdict and the case was dropped, only to be reinstated recently.

Gangsters Forfeit Bond.

Maddox had forfeited his $10,000 bonds in Judge Jonas' court on Thursday morning when his case was called 40 minutes after the shooting of McBride. Sammons appeared in that court to surrender after having forfeited bonds there the day before. Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office said tests showed that Sammons could have reached the courtroom in 20 minutes from the scene of the McBride shooting in Melrose Park.

Immediately after obtaining his release on bonds again on Thursday night, Sammons went to White's home in Riverside and he was arrested there by Roche, who found him armed with several guns. Sammons, who served 20 years of a life sentence for murder, and White, who served several sentences, were workmates in the gang headed by George (Red) Barker and Klondike O'Donnell, both public enemies. They shot whomever they were told to shoot, according to Roche.

Maddox Is Arrested.

Attorneys Milton D. Smith and W. W. Smith represented Sammons and Maddox yesterday. They were at the Criminal court to defend Sammons on three charges and they brought Maddox with them—to surrender him, they said. Sergt. Joe Keating, however, anticipated their purpose and seized Maddox in a restaurant near the court building.

Sammons was on trial for assault with a deadly weapon, driving an automobile while intoxicated, and carrying concealed weapons. The attorneys waived a jury trial before Judge Joseph B. David and the testimony was introduced, showing the charges to be the outgrowth of an automobile accident. Sammons' car collided with a car driven by William Tooke, 1154 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, last summer.

None of the witnesses could say positively that Sammons was intoxicated. County Highway Policeman Frank J. Carsella testified that two pistols were found under the back seat of Sammons' car. A bottle of liquor found on the seat beside Sammons had been "lost," the policeman said. Judge David termed the charges a joke and criticized the prosecutor's office for having obtained indictments instead of trying the case in a police court.

Prosecutor Explains Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Abe Merovitz explained later that the state's attorney's office brought the cases to the Criminal court because of Sammons' status as a public enemy, as it had reinstated the murder charge against White.

Spud Resembles Gump Hopeful

Stops Peeling

Nick and Pete stopped potato peeling operations yesterday at their Stadium cafe at 529 South Halsted street when they discovered among their spud supplies one freak tuber that has several human-like features.

In the center is the largest portion which grew somewhat in the shape of a body with shoulder-like appendages. On top of the "shoulders" sits a head with two smaller projections resembling ears, sufficient eyes to have two prominently spaced and a rather warty nose.

Opposite the head is another portion of the potato which is as large in itself as the ordinary table spud. The entire vegetable weighs around two pounds, or enough for a meal for a small family.

GOVERNOR TALKS ON RADIO FOR TAX AMENDMENT

In a talk over W-G-N, The Tribune radio station, Gov. Emmerson last night pointed out the possible benefits to be derived from the proposed tax amendments which will be passed on by the voters next Tuesday. The amendment, if approved, will, he said, relieve some of the burden which rests heavily on real estate.

Gov. Emmerson admitted, however, that the amendment as drawn was a compromise, that it was not the only one which could have been prepared to give the legislature the authority it needs to remedy existing conditions. The amendment, he said, was not altogether satisfactory to many members of the legislature who voted to submit it to the people. It was not, he conceded, exactly phrased as he would have phrased it.

Part of the opposition to the amendment, Gov. Emmerson said, is based on a fear of income tax measures which might follow its passage. The question of whether or not the people want an income tax is not pertinent at this time, the governor said.

TWO DIE IN CAR COLLISION.

Paxton, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Allie Paris, 65, of Mahomet, Ill., and Sam Christlieb, 70, a Paxton farmer, were killed early last night when an auto in which Mrs. Paris was a passenger crashed into the rear of Christlieb's wagon.

THREE BOATS FAIL TO FIND VESSEL IN LAKE STORM

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two downbound freighters, the Mullen and the Youngstown, and the coast guard cutter Seminole tonight reported they found no trace of a ship or barge believed in distress in Lake Superior off Michipicoten.

The lightkeeper at Michipicoten, on the Canadian side, radioed that he saw either a steamer or a barge wallowing in heavy seas. The coast guard cutter and the freighters, picking up the wireless, cruised several hours in the vicinity where the keeper said he saw the vessel but were unable to find any ship.

Capt. Fisher of the Seminole said that radio communications were hampered by magnetic disturbances coincident with the storm. He said he expected further reports from the Seminole during the night. He had received no reports of a missing vessel.

JEWELRY MAN ROBBED.

Toledo, O., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two robbers got between $25,000 and $50,000 worth of jewelry from Jules S. May, Brooklyn, N. Y., after they forced his auto into a ditch one mile south of here today and then left him handcuffed to a bench in a shack, May told police a few hours later.

S. S. MENKEN QUITS SECURITY LEAGUE POST

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—S. Stanwood Menken, first president of the National Security league, an organization devoted to military preparedness and strongly nationalistic patriotism, resigned as chairman of its board of directors last Monday after all of the eleven other members present at the monthly meeting at the Bankers' club had voted in favor of a resolution opposing American recognition of soviet Russia, it was learned today. Mr. Menken, whose announcement on Sept. 3 that he favored recognition under certain conditions precipitated the vote, immediately wrote out his resignation.

Upholding his views that the United States should recognize Russia if that nation pays its debts to Americans and agrees not to conduct communist propaganda here, Mr. Menken said today that he intends shortly to resign as a member of the board of directors.

NITTI, CAPONE'S MANAGER, UNABLE TO FURNISH BAIL

Lodged in Cell Pending Plea for Writ.

Frank Nitti, public enemy and business manager of the Capone gang, spent most of yesterday in the lockup of the United States marshal's office, the companion of the day's grind of drug addicts and small fry alky cookers. At 5 p. m. he was taken to the county jail, the first Capone hoodlum arrested by federal authorities who could not make bail.

Federal Judge Woodward refused to reduce Nitti's bond of $50,000 despite arguments of Attorney Benjamin Epstein that this amount is excessive in a case involving evasion of income taxes. The attorney said he would seek a writ of habeas corpus from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on Monday and in the meantime, he asserted, Nitti will have no chance of getting out.

No Cash for Nitti.

Bail money totaling $75,000 in cash which had been put up for Jack and Sam Guzik, two other Capone gangsters charged with evading income taxes, was released on Thursday when real estate bonds were substituted, but this cash was not forthcoming yesterday for Nitti.

The arrest of Nitti, who has eluded authorities since his indictment on March 22, was made early yesterday, after Nels E. Tessem of the intelligence unit, internal revenue department, had trailed him to his apartment at 1201 Clinton street, Berwyn. Tessem learned the elusive Nitti's whereabouts by following the movements of Louis Greenberg, head of the Roosevelt Finance company, 3159 West Roosevelt road, described by federal authorities as a loan shark and banker for the Capone mob. Greenberg was questioned several times by A. P. Madden, chief of the intelligence unit, and although he denied dealing with the Capone gang, he visited Nitti in his apartment.

More for Speedy Trial.

The government moved yesterday to bring about a speedy trial of Nitti, sending out five day notices for arraignment and plea. Nitti was questioned by the federal agents, but he was reported as refusing to talk. He told reporters he was 40 years old, that he was born in Italy, came to this country at the age of 3 and later became a naturalized citizen.

Nitti was described by federal agents as a genius of underworld finance and he was reported to have done most of the collecting and bookkeeping for the Capone mob, having an income of $750,000 in three years, on which he paid no taxes. He was well dressed and had the clean cut, keen eyed appearance of a successful business man.

KING OF ETHIOPIA IS ANGRY; EXILES U. S. NEGRO FLYER

"Black Eagle" Crashes in Royal Airplane.

ADDIS ABBABA, Abyssinia, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The emperor of Ethiopia, Ras Taffari, has clipped the wings of his "Black Eagle"—the one time Harlem Negro, "Col." Herbert Julian—and ordered him out of the country in disgrace.

His majesty's wrath was aroused because Julian took the royal airplane into the air against orders and descended suddenly and unintentionally in a mass almost at the potentate's feet. "Col." Julian was not hurt, but the plane was a wreck; and it was a plane of which Ras Taffari was particularly proud.

Flyer Blames "Spite Work."

His majesty had obtained the plane from the daughter of Gordon Selfridge, London department store owner, to demonstrate to foreigners at the forthcoming coronation ceremonies that an Ethiopian could fly as well as any one else.

Julian, well known among American Negroes for his parachute jumps and his ill-fated flights "around the world" and "from Harlem to Liberia," attributed his accident to spite work and jealousy on the part of a French airman.

The Frenchman, a captain, until recently was head of the Ethiopian air forces. Julian said the officer did not want him to become the "ace of Ethiopia."

Won Royal Decorations.

Up to the very day of his crack-up in the royal airplane, Julian was a dazzling figure here. The Abyssinians to whom flying still is a most amazing accomplishment, were greatly thrilled by his parachute jumps and his flying feats.

On one occasion Julian parachuted from a height of 5,000 feet, landing almost at the feet of the astonished Ras Taffari. His majesty was so pleased he presented him with $300 and decorated him with the Star of Ethiopia. The more he thought about the performance, the more delighted the emperor became, and he subsequently gave Julian an additional $1,500 to send to his family in New York.

The smashup of the plane, however, made a painful impression on Ras Taffari and on the Abyssinians as well. His highness was incensed not only at the wrecking of the craft but also at the Harlem Negro's defiance of orders in taking it into the air.

Ras Taffari conferred with his foreign minister. The advisability of putting Julian in jail was given earnest consideration. The idea was abandoned after the emperor decided it would be too expensive for the government to feed the prisoner.

The foreign minister appealed to the American consul general. A temporary visitor's visa was sought, so Julian might return to the United States. The visa was granted, but the Harlem "colonel" was in a bad state of finances. Americans here, however, came forward with loans for Julian to pay his railroad fare to Djibuti.

SOME OF HIS EXPLOITS.

The fall in Ethiopia was not the first in the aerial career of Herbert Julian, whose business card used to describe him as "the world's champion daredevil parachute jumper."

In April, 1923, he was called into court for violating the New York Sabbath ordinance. He had jumped from a parachute and landed on a Harlem tenement, clad in a flaming red suit. In November, 1923, Julian parachuted from a plane and landed atop a police station.

On July 4, 1924, Julian attempted a flight to circle the Atlantic, touching on four continents in 31 days. His plane came down in the Harlem river.

Only 29, but Arrested for Deserting Fourth Wife

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Fred W. Kirchner is only 29 years old, but he was haled into court today on a charge of deserting his fourth wife and was sentenced to a year in the reformatory. Judge H. C. Ring paroled him with the understanding he would support her.

INSURANCE MAN KILLS HIMSELF IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Believed by friends to have been worried over stock market investments, Edwin I. Simpson, an insurance broker, 59 years of age, shot and killed himself in the garage at the rear of his home in West Philadelphia today. His suicide was the fourth in the city attributed directly or indirectly to stock market operations within eight days.

Dr. Wilmer Krusen, president of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science and a close friend of Mr. Simpson, was summoned when the broker's butler found the body. Dr. Krusen said the dead man was a heavy investor in stocks through Clothier, Jones & Co., which last week went into bankruptcy after being suspended from the stock exchanges of New York and Philadelphia.

"There is no question in my mind," said Dr. Krusen, "that when the firm was suspended from the stock exchange, Mr. Simpson believed he would lose all his investments and the possibility preyed on his mind."

PRINCETON GRADS WEIGH PROBLEMS OF COLLEGE LIFE

Alumni Meet on Eve of Football Game.

A trainload of Princeton alumni descended upon Chicago yesterday and at noon met with a crowd of Chicago Princetonians in the Stevens hotel, where a rousing chorus of voices, singing the glories of the Orange, came from the main banquet hall and reverberated through the corridors of the hotel.

Today the Princeton and University of Chicago football teams meet at Stagg field and the alumnly yesterday were limbering up their voices for the occasion.

Yesterday's gathering, however, was not wholly a pre-game pep meeting, for while the Maroon-Tiger sectional contest today provided the occasion for the assembling of Princeton men, the object of the get-together was to talk over some of the current problems of undergraduate life at Princeton.

Undergraduates Arrive Today.

The "rah-rah" aspect of today's festivities is expected to begin with the arrival of Princeton undergraduates who, held over in New Jersey yesterday by classroom duties, will roll into town this morning with the university's band and cheer leaders and other collegiate whoopee makers.

The team arrived yesterday over the Pennsylvania lines with the vanguard of alumni and a group of university leaders. In this group were Dr. John Grier Hibben, president; Dr. Robert R. Wicks, dean of the university chapel; Walter E. Hope, assistant secretary of the treasury; Walter Johnson, president of the National Alumni association, and David Lawrence, alumni trustee and editor of the United States Daily.

"I'm not a prohphet," was the laconic reply of President Hibben to a request for a prediction on today's game. Dr. Hibben is stopping with Cyrus H. McCormick, who met him at the Union station.

Ask Alumni for Opinions.

No opinionated advice on how to solve undergraduate problems was given out at the annual meeting of the alumni association, held following yesterday's luncheon. The speakers instead raised a number of questions and asked the alumni to help them find the answer.

President Johnson of the alumni association reported that a committee has been appointed to find out if Princeton's scholastic standards are too high, whether they are keeping athletes and secondary school graduates from entering Princeton and whether the entrance requirements are keeping desirable students from enrolling. The answers found by the committee will be submitted to the board of trustees, he said.

Nelson P. Rose of Columbus, O., chairman of the undergraduate council, also raised the question of scholastic standards. He suggested that in its progres stoward higher scholastic standards the university might also endeavor to raise the standards of its extra-curricular activities. Incidentally he mentioned Princeton's recent athletic depression.

Tells Work of Chapel.

Dean Wicks described the work the university chapel is doing to persuade the undergradsutes to give some thought to religion. Compulsory chapel attendance has been abandoned, he said, in favor of a more acceptable plan, whereby atheists, agnostics, and hard boiled revolters may sit down with the faithful and "talk it out."

"These students are not mean and cantankerous if you stop calling them bad boys because they object to religious service," he said. "Treat their difficulty sincerely and they act like the normal gentlemen that they really are."

Calvin Fentress, president of the Chicago Princeton club, welcomed the visitors to Chicago.

LONGSHOREMEN GO ON STRIKE; SHIPPING TIED UP IN TEXAS PORTS

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 31.—(AP)—More than 3,500 longshoremen were idle at the ports of Houston, Galveston, Texas City, and Corpus Christi today after the International Longshoremen's union declared a strike last night pending acceptance of the new wage scale.

Eight vessels were tied up at Galveston, six were waiting at Corpus Christi, and Houston reported nearly all ships in port there awaiting settlement of the differences.

An agreement to a new wage scale was believed reached on Oct. 21, but it developed later that the Lykes West Indies line declined to accept the contract, refusing to pay more than the coastwise rate of 65 cents per hour, while longshoremen sought 80 cents.

500 GALLON STILL SEIZED.

A 500 gallon still was seized by prohibition agents yesterday at 5219 West 29th place, Cicero, and a 200 gallon still was found at 1534 South 50th court, Cicero. No prisoners were taken at either place.

SO. PARKS PLAN $800,000 IN JOBS FOR UNEMPLOYED

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The south park commission proposes to make a substantial contribution for the relief of unemployment in 30 days.

The commission has $800,000, voted in a bond issue approved two years ago, with which to complete Soldiers' field. This is for finishing, equipping and otherwise making usable the space under the stands, which involves a floor area of about 250,000 square feet.

"The money is available, the plans are nearly complete and it was decided informally at a recent gathering of the commissioners that work will be started at soon after Thanksgiving as it is practicable to award the necessary contracts," said Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, yesterday.

Work Can Be Done in Winter.

"A large part of the work is finishing the interior. It can be done as well in winter as in summer so far as the temperature is concerned. In addition, working in the winter will avoid any interference with the utilization of Soldiers' field. If we were ready to start work now, it would be inadvisable because of the football games scheduled for November at the field. The last of them is Thanksgiving. Immediately thereafter we will get busy."

"We discussed our ideas at length with the committee on conventions of the Association of Commerce yesterday," added George Donoghue, superintendent of the south park system. "This committee is headed by John L. Coyne of Mandel Brothers and the expressions indicated that the committee not only approves of the proposals made but is enthusiastically for them.

"In addition to getting the benefits from the improvements, the expenditures will provide employment for mechanics in the buildings trades. Probably work is more scarce among those trades than any others in Chicago, because of the lack of building.

Jobs for Perhaps 300 Men.

"How many will be employed on this job?" Mr. Donoghue was asked. He replied:

"The work will probably be done by contract, but perhaps 300—possibly 400—men could be employed. But that is only a rough estimate on my part. We do know that it would supply some employment. The plans are about 90 per cent complete and as soon as we get the specifications ready, I understand it is the intention of the commission to initiate the program."

"To what use are you planning to put the space under the stands?" was next asked.

"Exhibition purposes, principally," replied Mr. Donoghue. "Of the 250,000 square feet there will be 150,000 feet of good space and 100,000 feet of space which will not be so good. That should attract exhibitions, such as the road builders, the dairy show, or the ice cream manufacturers.

Hope for Year Round Use.

"Those who have studied the space, which is about six acres, its location, and its shape, believe that Soldiers' field can be made a utility for twelve months' use instead of only six months a year. It is asserted that the space will be suitable for tennis and basketball games, and probably other sports."

About $6,700,000 has been spent so far on Soldiers' field. The added $800,000 will complete the job, according to present estimates.

Ernest J. Stevens of the Hotel Stevens, who has taken an active interest in the lake front, is in favor of spending the $800,000 on Soldiers' field. He said:

"I think the commissioners should let the contract and proceed with the work. It would be something definite towards relieving the serious unemployment situation."

HALLOWEEN FETE NETS $1,005 FOR GOOD FELLOWS

Other Parties to Bring In Needed Funds.

The Good Fellows last night received a check for $1,005, the proceeds of a Halloween party given by the employés of May & Malone, Inc., loop merchants. The money will provide necessities through the winter for two of Chicago's 75,000 destitute families.

Other Halloween parties were being held last night for the benefit of the Good Fellow fund, and they will probably report their donations today. Among the larger parties was one arranged by guests of the Hotel Shoreland.

Others Sent in Funds.

In the meantime, Good Fellow clubs in offices, shops, factories and churches are mailing contributions, large and small, to help buy coal, shoes, milk, and groceries for women and children. For example, a cleaner sent $47.76, two per cent of his weekly pay roll, and a laundry mailed $19.45, a pay day collection among the employés.

Other Good Fellows are requesting names and addresses of destitute families with the intention of making personal visits to the homes and of offering aid directly.

"This should be discouraged," said Mrs. Edwina Lewis, executive secretary of the Chicago council of social agencies. "Many of these families are having their first experience with charity and it's hurting their pride. A benefactor without experience in this work might cause much sorrow.

Good Fellow Only Plan.

"The plan of the Good Fellows is the only one acceptable to the United Charities, the Central Charity bureau (Catholic), the Jewish Social Service bureau and the Salvation Army. Let the trained social service worker who is acquainted with the family introduce the benefactor.

"There is also a chance that a well meaning Good Fellow might do more harm than good for a family if he were to turn money and gifts over to the destitute without the supervision of an experienced social worker. There are problems other than poverty in many of the families, problems such domestic estrangement and sickness. Furthermore, the families must be taught to take care of themselves by living within a budget."

A Good Fellow, if he wishes, can make an appointment to visit the family he is aiding by calling or writing the Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE offices at 1 South Dearborn street.

WALKS 12 MILES A DAY FOR ONE OF SALLY'S JOBS

Father of Family Is Waiting for Chance.

The last man to leave the Illinois free employment service, 116 North Dearborn street, where offers of jobs received by Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE are sent to aid the unemployed, was "J. B." He left jobless, returning once more to his wife and four children, the oldest of whom is 8, with the familiar report, "No work today."

"J. B." walks 12 miles a day to and from the employment office. Before the depression he was a janitor. He has worked as a watchman and is a union plasterer. He wants any kind of job, even that of a handy man. What he does not want, he says, is charity.

Hopes for Job for Him.

Mrs. Lila H. Walter, acting superintendent of the employment office, a state institution, said of him:

"More than any other case I have, that of this man has troubled me. When I went home last night I could not get my mind off it. O, if only I had a job for him today. And now, just at closing time, I had to tell him again that there was nothing. We have work for him for Monday morning, but it will only last three hours.

"You can't force charity on him. He is very proud. He was paying on a home before he lost his job. He waits here all day, until the last batch of jobs from Sally Joy Brown comes over. We had a job for an experienced cabinetmaker at $25 a week today from her, and others, but none he could fill."

Without Work for Months.

Another man, who formerly received $40 to $50 a week for driving a truck, has been without work for months, Mrs. Walter said. Recently he got a day's work shoveling coal and while he was working his overcoat was stolen. Another temporary job, as a window washer, yielded enough for him to buy a coat from a second hand shop. When he next appeared before Mrs. Walter he apologized for his appearance. He has two children he is trying to keep in school.

Still a Lack of Jobs.

Yesterday Sally Joy Brown received offers for better jobs than have been offered formerly, but still there is a great lack of jobs for men. One man, owner of a building, called and said he had windows to wash. Sally Joy Brown asked how many he had. "Twelve dollars and fifty cents' worth," he replied with enthusiasm. "You could divide it between two men." That was done.

Sally Joy Brown suggests to householders that they may create the following jobs: Having storm windows put on; flower boxes made by a carpenter; bookcases made by a carpenter or cabinetmaker; wood chopped for firelaces; basement steps mended; ashes carried out; furniture painted and woodwork washed. She urges that adequate pay be given.

ILL WOMAN KILLS HERSELF.

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Despondent over the thought of leaving her home, Mrs. Arthur Kiser, 49 year old wife of Beardstown's night policeman, committed suicide last night by slashing her throat. The body was found by Kiser this morning when he returned home from work. Mrs. Kiser had been ill for three days. She was to have been taken to a hospital today.

PARIS COURT CUTS NUPTIAL TIES OF POLA AND PRINCE

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Pola Negri, film star, obtained a divorce today from Prince Serge Mdivani at the Seine tribunal.

"I am happy to have finished with the divorce so I can consecrate my life entirely to art," said Pola after the decree was granted. The prince did not appear in court, but his lawyer was there to defend his interests. Pola alleged abandonment of their conjugal domicile and did not ask alimony, explaining that property rights were all settled. The question of the ownership of a contested automobile came up, however.

"I am going to Cape Ferrat to visit my mother for a few weeks and then return to America to make pictures," Pola said.

CUBA QUIET ON EVE OF ELECTION OF NEW CONGRESS

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Order continued to prevail throughout Cuba today as final preparations were made for tomorrow's congressional elections, and no trouble was expected.

The government believes that ample precautions have been taken to insure against disorders, but today named a special commission, working under the department of the interior, to handle any difficulties.

Election day will be celebrated as a national holiday with a cessation of all business activities throughout the republic.

THE SANITARY DISTRICT AND COUNTY BOARD.

When the voters have plunged to about the 35 yard line of the ballot next Tuesday they will encounter the candidates for county commissioner, and, a little farther along, the sanitary trustees. So far as the quality of local government and the size of future tax bills are concerned, these are the most important offices to be contested at this election.

Within the next six years the sanitary district has to borrow and spend $120,000,000 in the construction of sewage treatment plants. It would be more accurate to say that the sanitary district has to build sewage disposal plants which, according to estimate, will cost $120,000,000. If we have the kind of sanitary board which we had up to a few years ago the $120,000,000 will be spent and the treatment works will be far from completed.

The program of constructing has been laid down by the Supreme court of the United States, and there is no dodging the responsibility to carry it out. The court has required the sanitary district to spend more money on these works than the drainage canal cost to build. At best, the district's borrowings will add appreciably to the taxpayers' burden and at worst the additional taxation will be crushing.

There are three regular vacancies on the sanitary board to be filled as well as two vacancies caused by death. For the regular vacancies THE TRIBUNE recommends one Democrat, Mr. Dennis Horan, and two Republicans, Mr. Tegtmeier and Mr. D'Esposito. For the vacancy caused by the death of Trustee Berger we recommend Mr. Thomas Bowler, a Democrat, and for the vacancy caused by Trustee King's death we recommend Mr. Moderwell. The election of these five in support of the better men now on the board will assure a substantial majority of able, conscientious and honorable members. There has been a marked improvement in the board in recent years which will not be maintained if incompetent or doubtful candidates are elected.

Of the men recommended, Mr. Bowler and Mr. Horan are now members of the city council, where they have creditable records. Mr. Moderwell served with distinction as president of the school board. Mr. D'Esposito was the engineer in charge of the construction of the Union station and has a long record of achievement in his profession. Mr. Tegtmeier is a business man who has taken a leading part in community activities in Englewood.

The selection of the county board is particularly important in this year of business depression and unemployment. The county government administers public charity. It maintains the county hospital and the Oak Forest infirmary, and it is also in charge of the distribution of food and fuel to the needy. It is of the utmost importance that this work be handled with the maximum of benefit to the unfortunates and with a minimum of favoritism and duplicated effort.

Ten members of the county board are elected by Chicago voters. For these offices we recommend five Democrats and five Republicans. The Democrats are Messrs. Cermak, Whealan, Ryan, Weber, and Miss Sears; the Republicans are Messrs. Reich, Anderson, Schoeppe, Pedersen, and Schulze. We would single out for especial emphasis the qualifications of Miss Amelia Sears. She holds one of the more important executive positions in the United Charities and for thirty years has given proof of her integrity, her sympathy with the unfortunate and her knowledge of public affairs.

Five members of the board are elected by voters living outside Chicago. For these vacancies THE TRIBUNE recommends one Democrat, Mrs. Fleming of Evanston, and four Republicans, Messrs. Busse, Lonnquist, Miller, and Kriz.

DR. HIBBEN GOES PRIMITIVE.

Princeton is in Chicago today, led by Dr. Hibben, president, to play the University of Chicago. The Tigers have lost three games in succession, which sets a new record for the stripes, and they are here in distinguished custody to see if something cannot be done about the fourth one. Chicago is struggling with a game, willing, but until now not powerful team which, like Illinois, gives its best and has it taken by the other team in its stride. It also is determined to see if something cannot be done about it and consequently there should be a game of sheer desperation. The two sets of young men may battle each other to a standoff or some one may be very happy tonight. No predictions are offered in this corner of THE TRIBUNE. The Wake no doubt will supply a forecast as usual.

Mr. Hutchins, president of Chicago, may feel that he should not put himself forward to assist Mr. Stagg, Mr. Stagg having been identified with the university sports so long and Mr. Hutchins with its scholarship so short a time, but Dr. Hibben has the sanction of his long service at Princeton, and Mr. Roper, who is retiring as Princeton coach at the end of the season, can step aside gracefully and allow the learned doctor to do his stuff.

It is a pleasure to find Dr. Hibben in this enthusiastic, parochial undertaking in which he wants distinctly more for Princeton than he wants for any other football team in the country. He is for this occasion genuinely concentrated in the interests of the university of which he is a distinguished part. He has no truck with cancellation of touchdowns or determination by opinion of the court of international justice. Dr. Hibben's sentiment just now is: "A plague on altruism and the devil take humanity."

Dr. Hibben is for Princeton, for force and more of it, for rough work and snappy running. He will sit with a smile of satisfaction if his young men can chew hunks out of Mr. Stagg's young men. Dr. Hibben has turned primitive. If he will just keep going that way into fields of large action and matters of weightier importance Princeton could sacrifice a whole season and be creditor to the national gratitude. It is to be hoped that Dr. Hibben will not think of himself as another good man gone wrong. He is more impressive as parochial fighter than he has been as an internationalist.

USES OF ADVERSITY.

While the present period of business depression has basic factors which were present in all our previous depressions, it has some others which were not and it is only common sense, not artificial optimism, to take them into account. If the international factor is more potent than in some other depressions, it is also true that our credit and monetary conditions are much stronger. The United States is not fighting with its back to the wall. It has retreated, but its reserve power is enormous and it is ready to advance vigorously at the turn of the tide.

But apart from these economic forces of recovery, it is impossible not to be impressed with a social aspect of the situation which, if not entirely novel, is more important than ever in the past. We refer to the efforts to meet the problem of unemployment. We have had soup kitchens and other humane efforts at amelioration, but we have never had anything like the swift organization of the most powerful agencies throughout the whole country which has now become the most striking phenomenon of the present time. From the President, who acted immediately, and his administrative aids, the leaders of industry and innumerable state and local agencies, official and unofficial, the nation has mobilized its forces for the conquest of unemployment. This represents, it seems to us, individualist democracy at a high level of social morale and intelligence. It represents a long step forward in social efficiency, and we believe it is an advance from which we shall not in the future retreat. It has entered into the American system and sets a precedent which will be followed when need returns. The problem of preventing business depressions and dislocations is one which cannot be solved by one country and must be labored upon for many years. But we are dealing with the immediate effects of our own conditions with more regard for the human element, more sense of a common responsibility, and more efficiency and power than ever before. Both the humanitarian and the economic profits will be virtually immediate. The social gains, we are confident, are likely to be permanent.

MR. COX EXPLAINS ALL.

Mr. J. M. Cox, who may be recalled as one who formerly ran for the presidency, suggests that statements of recent Republican Presidents are responsible for much of the loss suffered by small speculators in the stock market. He wonders how many who lost their savings were torn from their moorings of caution by Presidents engaged in "auctioneering blue sky stocks from the steps of the White House," as he phrases it.

We do not know, but our guess is few, indeed. The wave of speculation which swept the country can be explained, like most of the preceding waves of speculation, by the desire of a very considerable portion of the human race to get rich quick with a minimum of effort. It is possible, though far from certain, that violently bearish statements from the White House might have had a sobering influence. It is even possible that bearish statements by leaders of the Democratic party might have been helpful. On the other hand, statements that business was good and likely to get better were pretty largely superfluous. That creed was already firmly believed. It needed no affirmation.

Anything the Presidents said counted infinitely less in inducing the Widow Jones to buy on margin than the fact that Brown, the grocer, had made enough money in the market, or thought he had, to buy a new car. If presidential advice counts for as much as Mr. Cox seems to think it does, it is astonishing that Mr. Hoover has not been able as yet to restore prosperity to the country.

Editorial of the Day

MODERN CRIME.

[Manchester Guardian.]

You would not, offhand, expect to find in any civilised country the sort of conditions that now prevail in China. And yet this gangster business, if you examine it closely, is not so unlike China, though on a smaller scale. All the machinery of law exists in America, but the thing does not work properly. It does not work properly because the public conscience does not function as it should. Though the gangsters are an inconsiderable proportion of the whole population of America, they carry on their activities unchecked, and the only reason for that can be that at bottom the public does not mind them, does not feel that what they do is wrong. You cannot blame the police in such a case; the police are merely the instrument whereby the public sense of what is right and wrong expresses itself. If the public has no clear sense of what is right and wrong, then the police are powerless. Nor is this state of affairs peculiar to America. There is a general tendency everywhere to tolerate violence, and this inevitably leads to some form of tyranny. Civilization is based on the annihilation of violence. It sets up certain ideals which transcend violence, and out of these arise law and government. Their final sanction is religion or belief, and without such sanction the machinery whereby they work is as useless as a motor car without petrol. We are inclined to forget this—to imagine that so long as we have wealth and law courts and colleges and libraries we are civilised. Chicago has probably more of such symbols of civilization than any other city in the world, but its gangsters multiply nevertheless. And, after all, the most important thing of all is to be civilised. There is no point in existing as a people just to produce and consume even in the most efficient manner conceivable. We have got to realise some ideal socially or we are just savages decked out in the fine things of our own invention. The economic problem is properly the least of all our problems. Our essential difficulty is that the principles on which our elaborate social organisation was built up have collapsed. They were faulty. They need renewing. Even then they will not be right. But they will be righter.

EXERCISE AND ACID.

A. C. H. writes that he has read that exercise causes us to manufacture acid and that the body must remain alkaline to be healthy. He says he has the habit of doing a daily dozen in order to preserve his health. He asks if the facts cited mean that he should stop his exercises, keep very still, and thus live in health a century or more.

The answer to A. C. H. is that the facts he cites are essentially correct, but the conclusion drawn is not justified. Other facts of overshadowing importance are omitted from the calculation.

When a muscle does its work it uses up stored glycogen, a form of sugar, converting it into lactic acid. It uses up some other substances, but they do not enter into this discussion. This lactic acid accumulates in the muscle and remains there for a while, thus causing soreness and stiffness. In a few days some of it has been changed back to glycogen and restored to the reservoirs. Some has been converted into carbonic acid and excreted by the lungs in the breath.

The presence of lactic acid in the muscles is responsible for soreness and stiffness after exercise. This acid, and also the carbonic acid uses up some of the excess alkali carried in reservoirs for just such emergencies. When a fox is run until he dies of fatigue postmortem rigidity follows close on the heels of death. The explanation, both of death and quickly following rigidity, is that so much lactic acid is produced that the alkali reserve is used up, or nearly so, and the tissues become acid or almost acid.

So much in elaboration of the foundation. Now for the superstructure. The weight of the body, after the weight of the bones has been subtracted, is not very much more than the weight of its muscles. The brain, lungs, heart, and liver are very important organs, but they do not show up well in the weight column. These muscles need exercise.

Every living thing must work or suffer and die. All living things produce poisonous substances as by-products of their work. Provision is made for the removal of these by-products. It is true that a working muscle produces lactic acid and that this product uses up some of the body's alkali resources. It is true that this does harm.

But the harm done is far less in the long run than would be that of inaction. In the first place, the amount of lactic acid produced is small as compared with the amount of alkali available. Because flying across the Atlantic ocean is dangerous it does not follow that an aviator should worry about flying across a creek. Or, using another illustration, the beating heart muscles use up glycogen, make lactic acid, and draw on the alkali reserve. But we would not consider stopping the heart to avoid that.

FIND OUT FOOD POISON.

H. S. S. writes: I have had asthmatic bronchitis and hay fever most of the summer and for the last month my body has been broken out in large white blotches. For the last two weeks my tongue swells so that I can hardly close my mouth. My eyes are puffy most of the time and my ears itch in near the drum. What can I do for relief?

REPLY.

You are like Rover, you have it all over. You have hives and asthma, and a few other kinsmen. Find out what is poisoning you and avoid it.

HAVE A PHYSICIAN.

Mrs. L. M. K. writes: My grandson twists a little in his walk. It began when he was 9 years of age. Will you please tell me if there is anything wrong and what could be the cause.

REPLY.

I cannot guess what it is but there must be some trouble. Could he have had a mild attack of infantile paralysis? Children by the thousands do. Have a physician see what is the trouble.

VITAMIN D FOODS.

E. C. H. writes: Will you name some of the foods which contain vitamin D?

REPLY.

Cod liver oil, radiated foods, liver, and particularly fat livers and, in lesser measure, cream, butter, various oils and fats, and many vegetables.

A BIT VAGUE.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Have a mortgage at 92d and Michigan, I gave a woman a note for $80. She is now in arrears three months. If she doesn't make payments: 1. I will lose the place. 2. Can I foreclose on her? 3. Or can I get some one else to take it over? L. R.

1. We do not understand what facts are back of this statement.

2. Yes, and for this purpose you should employ an attorney.

3. Obviously you cannot force any other person to take it over.

STOCK DIVIDENDS.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother is a holder of ten shares of a preferred stock in a certain corporation since 1918. At different times have read in THE TRIBUNE when dividends are declared and have been told that since 1918 they had cut three melons, but she never received anything but a quarterly disbursement of $1.75 a share. Can you give me any information? G. M. F.

Stock dividends ordinarily go to holders of the common stock. We suggest that you write to the officers of the company for more specific information.

CAL said in his radio speech the other night that he wouldn't discuss issues because "issues have a way of disappearing after an election and never coming up again." THE MACHINERY OF OUR GOVERNMENT

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 1, 1914.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—War has been officially declared between Turkey and Russia, according to a private message transmitted from Constantinople to the United States through the channels of the American government.

LONDON. — Turkey's raid on Russian ports in the Black sea has forced Great Britain into war with the Ottoman government, the foreign office announced. The Turkish government summarily shut off communications with the British embassy at Constantinople on Oct. 31. Whether the sublime porte received the ultimatum sent yesterday by the allies is unknown. The ultimatum, which set a time limit believed to be twenty-four hours, demanded an explanation of Turkey's naval action in the Black sea, dismissal of German officers from Turkish ships, and dismantling of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, said to have been purchased from Germany.

LONDON.—The German attempts to reach the channel ports were renewed with energy. The Germans undertook general offensive tactics from the coast at Nieuport to Arras. The Observer's correspondent says: "A German officer taken prisoner estimated their losses in west Flanders at 150,000 in dead and wounded. Thousands were drowned in their trenches when the sea was let in by the Belgians."

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 1, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Caroline K. Sherman objects to the Chicago Woman's club ignoring the fact that there are women members of the board of education and demands recognition of herself and Mrs. O'Keefe as such members. At the board's meeting last night Mrs. Sherman criticized a letter from the club because it was addressed to "The Board of Education, Gentlemen." She wanted it sent back for the proper address and the board sustained her.

PARIS.—George Gould was appointed permanent trustee of the fortune of his sister, Countess Boni Castellane, formerly Anna Gould. The appointment marks the not unexpected climax of the wild extravagance of Count Castellane, who has squandered the money amassed by Jay Gould at a rate of something like a million dollars a year. It transpired that the decision of the Gould family to assume control of the Countess Anna's fortune was decided upon some months ago when the count was in New York. Gould is authorized to pay debts and control expenditures. A divorce is now freely predicted.

CHICAGO.—William Jennings Bryan was to have spoken in a big tent on the lake front tonight. He will probably speak there, but the tent will be missing. A. Montgomery Ward saw the tent going up and immediately had it stopped as a defiance of the decree of the Supreme court concerning structures in the park. So the tent was taken away.

NOVEMBER 1, 1880.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Sunday Capitol, the only Democratic paper in Washington which expresses its opinion without fear of consequences, celebrates the obsequies of the Democratic party. It speaks of the defeat of Hancock and English and makes suggestions as to the policy of the Garfield administration.

NEW YORK.—Eli Perkins, writing to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, says: "I believed two weeks ago that the wicked slums of New York and Brooklyn would give a Democratic majority of 75,000. As public opinion stands today, however, New York and Brooklyn will not give over 40,000 majority for Hancock, while the state will come down the Hudson with at least 85,000 for Garfield. Garfield's majority will be from 25,000 to 30,000 in New York state."

LONDON.—The disturbed condition of affairs in Ireland is further complicated by a proclamation signed by nine magistrates prohibiting the holding of land meetings called for Dungannon, in County Tyrone, during the first week of November. It is understood that the action was due to a report that if the meetings are held 10,000 organized Orangemen will interfere to break them up by force.

DEBUNKED HISTORY.

Chicago, Oct. 27. — Your editorial urging the teaching of debunked history aroused my curiosity. What is its aim? The study of history, as I understand it, should help us to comprehend our present institutions, social, political and economic. If that is so was THE TRIBUNE'S editorial directed toward training young minds to discern the buncombe in our national life and to attack it fearlessly? And where are we to find the teachers who can or who dare do this? Who would be valiant enough to point out the errors in the accepted and intrenched notions of our national life, if his or her job would be forfeit on the first intimation that all was not well with our great republic? We have our fetishes, and those who attack them are anathema.

But perhaps THE TRIBUNE is intent on raising up a group of martyrs to the public cause. In that event, may I suggest that THE TRIBUNE itself disregard the expediences of its counting room and take the lead in the movement for the strictest honesty of thought and deed, as regards the welfare of the nation?

A PLEA FOR TRAILERS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The service on the Madison street surface lines is simply wonderful since they took off the trailers. There were 149 paid passengers crowded into one car last night, which did not include the transfer passengers, and the car poked all the way home. When they ran the trailers I always had a seat. Now it is simply a matter of standing and the cars jerk so without the trailers it is almost impossible to keep one's feet.

When they took the trailers off, the service was supposed to be speeded up, but on an average the time gained only amounts to about three minutes, and the discomfort of standing in a crowded car and being shoved around when you are used to getting a seat more than offsets it. S. A. L.

THE TAX MUDDLE.

River Grove, Ill., Oct. 22.—To ordinary taxpayers like me it appears that the board of review and board of assessors are juggling the tax books between them. Since Aug. 15 I have visited the offices of the board three times with the intention of filing an objection to my high taxes. Each time I was advised the books had not arrived from the board of assessors and they did not know when they would come. It seems possible that the idea is to delay all the hearings until it is time to send out the next tax bills, which it will be too late to file complaints. Or are they too busy with election? EDWARD MILLER.

JUDGE LYLE.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Your editorial, "The Municipal Judges," in this morning's TRIBUNE states, "The bar association committee on candidates finds that Judge Lyle is lacking in the judicial temper." The basic objection of the bar association as announced by its committee is that Judge Lyle lacks the capacity for judicial office.

In six years appeals were taken from his decisions in civil cases on 104 occasions, and he was reversed seventy-five times. During 1928 and 1929 he was reversed 59 times, or more than three times as many as any other judge or more than any three other judges of the 27 in the Municipal court.

The different branches of the Appellate court in reversing him held that his conduct was improper and irregular, unjudicial and erroneous, subversive of the rights of litigants and violative of law and ethical judicial procedure; was full of procedural errors and unjudicial conduct, prevalent with erroneous rulings, intemperate, improper and prejudicial remarks, all entirely uncalled for and violative of law and judicial precedent; were not conducive of a fair trial, of no benefit to either party, and only caused each side continued expensive litigation.

This is probably the easiest and most effective way to kill time and waste energy. You wouldn't print this anyhow.

MANUEL W. GOON.

WHERE ALL IS WELL.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Reports in the daily press estimate that the unemployed throughout the world are about 20,000,000, including some 4,000,000 in the United States. Reports in the press estimate the unemployed in France to be only 1,900, and France is said to be the most prosperous country in the world. It seems the logical course for the rest of the world, including the United States, would be to send a commission of experts—not "real estate"—to France to find out how they do it and apply the remedy to their respective countries.

The answer of the commission probably would be Thrift.

CHARLES T. MURPHY.

FOR LOWER BUS FARES.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—May I suggest that if the Chicago Motor Coach company is insistent upon pressing this one man type of bus upon the public that the riders demand a decrease in fare to the same price that is charged by the surface lines, because certainly with fewer employes operation cost is less, and ten cents is too much to be charged by a corporation that expects its patrons to be well versed in football tactics in order to board and leave one of their coaches. TAMMANY MUST BEAT TUTTLE TO SAVE OWN SKIN

And All Signs Say They Will Do It.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Although the campaign in New York is ending with Tammany Hall under fire as it has not been since the days of Tweed, all signs point to the reelection of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for governor and outstanding candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1932.

The indications are that Charles H. Tuttle, the Republican candidate, will carry Republican upstate New York by a plurality considerably below normal partly on account of the defection of dry Republicans alienated by their party's declaration for prohibition repeal, and partly because of unpopularity of the party in power at Washington as a result of hard times and unemployment.

But this upstate Republican plurality will be overwhelmed by the plurality that will be rolled up for Gov. Roosevelt in Democratic greater New York City, partly the consequence of dissatisfaction with the Hoover administration, but chiefly due to the desperate necessity of Tammany to defeat Mr. Tuttle in order to save its skin.

Tiger Is Alarmed.

The election is occurring in the midst of an investigation of alleged Tammany corruption of the courts and of the city government, the disclosures of which up to date are of ominous import. Several Tammany made judges have resigned or been removed as the result of scandals involving them. Another has been indicted on charges of buying his appointment to the bench from a Tammany leader for $10,000. An inquiry into charges of wholesale auctioning of judgeships by Tammany is in progress.

By virtue of the limitations placed on the inquisition up to date by Gov. Roosevelt, Tammany has been enabled to successfully resist the efforts of the grand jury to pry into its closet of skeletons. John F. Curry, head of Tammany Hall, and a score of other Tammany leaders, nearly all of whom hold office in the city government, have been summoned by the grand jury and dismissed after refusing to waive immunity from prosecution for fear of self-incrimination. The inquiry is stalled for the time being, at least.

Tuttle After Tammany.

Mr. Tuttle promises that all this will be changed if he is elected governor next Tuesday. He will remove the limitations Gov. Roosevelt has placed on the investigation and there will ensue, according to Mr. Tuttle, a procession of prominent politicians to the penitentiary.

Thus Tammany finds a life saver in the person of Gov. Roosevelt, who in his younger days was wont to excoriate the organization as the embodiment of the worst evils in politics. And Gov. Roosevelt, according to his critics, is clinging to Tammany as a life saver to his ambition to reach the White House.

Tammany, according to the politicians, simply cannot allow Roosevelt to be defeated, even if it has to steal the election. And there is plenty of evidence that the organization is preparing for an unprecedented effort to carry the day with an avalanche of votes in New York City.

Tammany displayed unusual activity in the registration of voters, as a result of which there are 15,000 more on the polling lists now than there were in the mayoralty election last year, when Tammany rolled up a 500,000 plurality for Mayor Jimmy Walker. The city registration this year is 1,568,020, which represents a drop of 800,000 from 1928, but an increase of 231,000 over the last off year state election, 1926.

Tammany Men Confident.

Tammany Chief Curry estimates that Roosevelt will carry New York City by 530,000 plurality and the state by 350,000. He does not allow Mr. Tuttle a greater plurality than 180,000 upstate.

William J. Maier, Republican state chairman, predicts the election of Mr. Tuttle, but avoids figures, though privately he has said that to elect Gov. Roosevelt Tammany will have to carry New York City by 400,000, indicating that he expects the Republicans to come down to the Bronx with nearly that margin for Mr. Tuttle. The most optimistic Republican leaders think Mr. Tuttle will win by a small margin, not exceeding 70,000.

Conditions are such this year that it would be extremely surprising were the Democrats to carry New York City by less than 400,000 or the Republicans the upstate by as much as that figure. In 1928 Mr. Hoover himself came down to the Bronx with only 446,000, when the dry Republicans were solidly behind him. This year they are off the reservation in large numbers.

Dry Vote Is Split.

Many will vote for the independent dry candidate for governor, Prof. Robert P. Carroll. Many others will not vote at all. Apathy in the Republican bailiwick upstate is disclosed by a decreased registration in 20 dry counties.

The leaders of the bolting dry Republicans look for a vote of between 200,000 and 300,000 for Prof. Carroll. In 1926 Franklin W. Cristman received 231,000 votes as the dry independent Republican opponent of wet Senator James W. Wadsworth. This defection beat Senator Wadsworth for reelection. The indications this year are that Prof. Carroll will receive not to exceed 125,000 votes. Republican leaders calculate that this defection will be more than offset by the return to the Republican fold of wet Republicans who hitherto have been voting for wet Democratic candidates for governor.

What Drys Think.

The keynote of the dry bolt was struck by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor union and editor in chief of the Christian Herald, who said that Mr. Tuttle and the "respectable" wet candidates in other states must be defeated or the drys will be "shoved over the cliff to extinction."

Mrs. Leigh D. Colvin, president of the New York W. C. T. U., admitted that the vote for Prof. Carroll would tend to insure the election of wet Gov. Roosevelt.

"However," she commented, "it is not that we prefer Mr. Roosevelt, but our object is to defeat Mr. Tuttle because of his stand for repeal and to prevent the spread of the repeal movement to the national Republican party."

The drys nominated a candidate for governor only, being satisfied at the time with the remainder of the Republican ticket, including Caleb Baumes, author of the Baumes habitual criminal act, who was named as Mr. Tuttle's running mate as a sop to the prohibitionists. Mr. Baumes, though hitherto a steadfast dry, proved a great disappointment to the dry organizations when, crowded into a corner, he stated that he stood on the Republican platform declaring for prohibition repeal.

W. FRANKFORT UNION REPUDIATES STRIKE OF MACHINE MINERS

West Frankfort, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Condemning the action of the so called policy committee in advocating a strike Nov. 15 of all men working on loading devices in the mines, local union No. 4280, of this city issued a statement today disowning the policy committee and denying any affiliation with it.

The statement was signed by President W. M. Gibbs, Vice President H. E. Taylor, and the recording secretary.

The impression had gained considerable circulation that local 4280 was fostering the strike movement. The officers and members vehemently deny the charges.

SURVIVOR OF R-101 DESCRIBES DEATH THROES OF GIANT

Quiz Board Hears How Craft Became Pyre.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Four men who escaped with their lives from the inferno of the dirigible R-101 when she crashed and burned on a hillside near Beauvais, France, today recounted those terrifying moments just before the wreck at the court of inquiry investigating the disaster.

So harrowing was the experience that two of them asked the court not to compel them to describe the agonized screams of their comrades, perishing in the flames, and the commission was as gentle as circumstances permitted in questioning A. J. Cook, H. J. Leech, and V. Savory, engineers, and Arthur Disley, the radio operator.

It was a vivid story Mr. Cook told, and the others supported it with detail.

Bounces After Crash.

About 2 o'clock in the morning, a few minutes before the crash, Mr. Cook had gone on duty as engineer in charge of the fourth unit engine. The commander rang for reduced speed shortly after he reached his post. The ship dived sharply, then seemed to lunge toward the earth. In a moment she had struck with a terrific jar and seemed to bounce before striking again. Then there was a rendering explosion which split the ship from bow to stern.

When he got the order for reduced speed, Mr. Cook said, he felt that something must be wrong, for the craft had been going smoothly at normal cruising speed for some hours.

It confirmed a suspicion he had had earlier when from his bunk near the gas bags he observed the containers surging about heavily.

Faces Wall of Flame.

He had barely time to look over his shoulder through the engine room window when the ship went into a deep dive. She seemed to recover for a moment, then headed downward in the sharpest dive he had ever experienced. Then she struck. It was a matter of seconds between the first and the second times the craft hit the earth, he said. He then tried to scramble out of the engine gondola toward the ship when he realized what had happened, but found the main body of the dirigible a wall of flame.

"The heat was terrific," Mr. Cook testified. "I turned back and tried to get out from the other side, but I was trapped. A longitudinal beam had blocked the opening. I lay down on an oil tank and gave up hope.

"But I didn't stay there long.

"I must have been desperate," he said, "because I remember pushing the girder to one side and jumped over the side of the gondola. I landed in a tree."

Becomes Human Torch.

It was pitch dark but for the flames from the blazing dirigible and Mr. Cook's overalls. He beat out the flames in his clothing and wandered for a time in a daze. As he passed the burning ship he heard one or two minor explosions.

Mr. Leech was alone in the smoking room when that first dive began. It was a 30 degree pitch, he said, and the glasses slid from his table into his lap. He was thrown against a bulkhead, but the ship came back to an even keel after about 45 seconds.

"I had time to pick up the glasses," he said, "and I remember one of them was broken. Then she dived again much more steeply than before. She fell for about two seconds, then she crashed."

There was a blast of flame.

"I wouldn't call it a violent explosion," Mr. Leech said. "It was more like a 'woof!' as when you light some gasoline poured on the floor. There was no concussion to it."

Squadron Leader Booth, commander of the R-100, also testified today. His evidence was of a technical nature. The inquiry adjourned during his testimony until Nov. 30.

5,700 MEN GET OLD JOBS BACK IN DETROIT IN PAST TWO WEEKS

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Factories and shops in Detroit have recalled 3,466 men this week, James N. Duncan, manager of the municipal employment bureau, said today.

Duncan said that a survey showed that 2,261 men were recalled to jobs last week, making a total of 5,727 in a fortnight.

These men are in addition to those for whom jobs have been supplied by the bureau, which has been placing from 100 to 300 men a day.

SAVAGES' WIVES END LIVES TO LET MATES GO TO WAR

TOKIO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The capture of many head hunting savages of the rebellious Taiyal tribe of central Formosa by the Japanese punitive expedition headed by Maj. Gen. Kamata was reported today in dispatches from the island.

The Japanese forces, made up of 2,000 soldiers and police, occupied three villages near Musha, the scene of the uprising last Monday in which savages killed and beheaded 86 Japanese. Most of the savages, however, had withdrawn into the wilderness after firing their own huts. Japanese airplanes bombed rebel concentrations and mountain guns and machine guns were brought into play against the savages. Aviators reported the advance of infantry into the burning villages was continuing steadily.

Several women of the tribe were reported to have committed suicide in accordance with custom, so that their braves might go into battle without family cares.

MOUNTED POLICE CHARGE STRIKERS IN SPAIN; JAIL 13

BADALONA, Spain, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Spasmodic labor demonstrations reached such proportions late today that mounted police charged crowds several times and were reported to have injured several persons. Thirteen men and women were arrested. The trouble began with parades following the burial of two workmen who were killed yesterday in a battle between rival labor organizations.

A general strike was declared which is keeping all industry tied up. The labor troubles arose from the fact that the authorities gave the two slain men a hasty funeral. This caused parades of strikers protesting against the municipality.

Spanish Students Quieter.

MADRID, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Events today in the university centers indicated that Spanish students were quieting down from recent riots directed against the government educational plan. University of Barcelona students rioted again today, but there was no property destruction nor were any personal injuries reported. Students at the University of Seville resumed classes on regular schedule today.

HELD FOR HOBO CAMP MURDER.

Anna, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Clarence Lamp, an itinerant laborer, was held by the coroner's jury here today, following an inquiry into the death of L. B. Maddox, said to hail from Chicago, presumably murdered in a hobo camp here.

BOOKS

Carrying Mail Offers Thrills for the Boys

Wherein Fact Outclasses Fictional Recitals.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of children's work for branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"How They Carried the Mail," by Joseph Walker. [Sears.]

"Rama," by Dhan Gopal Mukerji [Dutton.]

"Robin and Tito," by Mabel Robinson. [Macmillan.]

"Awisha's Carpet," by Dahris Martin. [Doubleday-Doran.]

Every now and then one runs across a book of such exceptional worth, one that so evidently has its place awaiting it, that the question immediately comes to mind, "Why was not this book written long ago?"

Such a book is Joseph Walker's "How They Carried the Mail." In it we have a true story of real adventure which can meet the "thriller" on its own ground, and substituting fact for fiction, outrival it in every respect.

It is the story of mail from the days of 3000 B. C. to the present and it is a fine epic of heroism and loyalty.

The story begins with the carrying of the seal of King Sargon, carries the reader through the time of the Egyptians, lets him run with Phillipidas the first marathon runner, carries on through the middle ages and down to the founding of our own postoffice under Benjamin Franklin.

From that time on progress in the United States only is followed.

It is a volume which any boy of 12 to 16 years would delight to own. It is without doubt one of the season's most valuable offerings. It is the November selection of the Junior Literary guild for older boys.

Another book of merit is Dhan Gopal Mukerji's "Rama," an English translation of Valmiki's "Ramayama," the great epic of India. The author tells us that it is the one story universally known in India and that it is, in one form or another, the favorite of all story tellers. Like all of Mr. Mukerji's books, it is beautifully written, but the theme is a complicated one, and the story is quite too difficult for those who enjoyed "Chief of the Herd." It is rather a book for the student of folk lore than for young readers.

For the younger children there are Mabel Robinson's "Robin and Tito" and Dahris Martin's "Awisha's Carpet." The first is a story of a little American girl in Sicily and of her friend, Tito, the gray donkey, and the second tells of the story of a little Arab girl and of how she realized her heart's desire to weave a beautiful rug which would sell in the market place. Both present good pictures of child life in other lands.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

Success, by Lion Feuchtwanger [Viking], is a powerful modern novel by the author of "Power."

Vagabonds, by Knut Hamsun [Coward-McCann], is a lusty and humorous novel by the Nobel prize winner of 1920.

These Authors Depict Nations in Their Books

Galsworthy, Edith Wharton Fill In Pictures.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"On Forsyte 'Change," by John Galsworthy. [Scribners].
"Certain People," by Edith Wharton. [Appleton.]

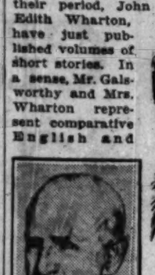
Two of the outstanding novelists of their period, John Galsworthy and Edith Wharton, have just published volumes of short stories. In a sense, Mr. Galsworthy and Mrs. Wharton represent comparative English and



EDITH WHARTON.

JOHN GALSWORTHY.

American novel writing of their day, each of them chronicling typical groups of their respective countries, usually groups which have the charming dust of time upon them.

Mrs. Wharton has no great pageant like the panorama of the Forsytes, her characters are not to be found decorating any family tree of an enormous American elm (as it were), as some of Mr. Galsworthy's decorate the sturdy Forsyte oak. But more nearly than any other American writer she counterparts Mr. Galsworthy's interest in the typically national.

They are of approximately the same age (Mrs. Wharton is a few years the elder), and they published their first books within one year of each other, Mr. Galsworthy in 1898 at the age of 31 and Mrs. Wharton in 1899 at the age of 37. It is interesting that these two novelists should have published volumes of short stories just now—interesting and illuminating.

"On Forsyte 'Change" is a group of stories, nineteen in number, of various lengths, which fill in some of the gaps in the Forsyte saga. A couple of them sound as if they had been written for that purpose alone. The others, all of them, have the same vividness, the same power, the same intense Englishness that the saga itself had, and that the best of Mr. Galsworthy's work always has.

Some of them have real humor—which is a quality rare in the solid fineness of Mr. Galsworthy's work. They are all rich in the fragrance of the past—all except the last one. "Soames and the Flag," which is rich with the essence of the war's reaction on that monument of English conservatism, Soames Forsyte. They are written with the same beautiful and meticulous care that Mr. Galsworthy gives to his novels—more than he has given to some. In a word, they are as fine work as their author is capable of.

That is not true of "Certain People," however. Mrs. Wharton has proved that she can do short stories with great distinction. Two of the novelettes which comprised "Old New York" were as brilliant as any of her work, and her most famous volume is certainly not full novel size—"Ethan Frome" remains one of the masterpieces in parvo of the American literary tradition. There are six long short stories in "Certain People." Two of them, "A Bottle of Perrier" and "Mr. Jones," are frankly horrorish stories, and "After Holbein" has its grisly and horrific moment. But they are not horror stories that are lustily horrors—they are more like skillful exercises in the business of shocking.

There is one medieval tale which is good, but not exciting, and a story about a woman who went to see a man whom she loved when she heard he was dying and saw only, instead, a grim sister. That leaves only "The Refugees" with the typical Wharton touch of a social drama skillfully portrayed. And that is mostly the idea and not the treatment which gives it a flair.

The two volumes interested me tremendously in comparison, for there has been much twittering back and forth about the short story being an American rather than an English form. Here we have the work of one of the best of our American writers not comparing favorably to the work of a corresponding English writer. Mr. Galsworthy's is by far the truer work of art. The answer is that any literary form is not national at all, but individual.

Tells Own Madness.

"Confessions," by Arthur Symons (Cape Smith), is a strange volume, beautifully written (as anything Arthus Symons ever did has been) records of the author's temporary madness recalled in lucidity. It is subtitled (well) "a study in pathology."

Sullivan Holds Mirror Up to Our America

Wherein Roosevelt's Reflection Is Large.

"Pre-War America," by Mark Sullivan. [Scribners.]

"Pre-War America" is the third volume of Mark Sullivan's incomparable history of "Our Times."

MARK SULLIVAN.

Like the two preceding volumes it is a complete delight to those who remember the days that the author chronicles and to their children it is a gleeful picture of the truth about what mother and father should have remembered. Just how good the good old days were Mr. Sullivan sets down in facts that cannot be contradicted by memories all rosy and glowy.

Without commenting upon the period the author gives the reader the essence, the flavor of it, by the statement of fact. That fact he has gathered by the almost inconceivably lengthy process of reading, comparing, collating the newspapers of the day. "Pre-War America" is concerned with the years 1906, 1907, and 1908.

While the people who remember those days and their children will find "Our Times" thrilling, any author writing about the period covered by the volumes will find them a lode of pure gold. Mr. Sullivan has done research work of absolutely inestimable value to any student of the period. "Our Times" seems like a casual sort of record. It is written with that ease that years of writing for newspapers gives a man—and with the sense of interest and knowledge of a good "story" that is inherent in the good journalist's pen (or typewriter). But "Our Times" is something far more important than any mere journalism. Mr. Sullivan has recorded the real spirit of contemporary thought—as well as its letter. The result is not a catalogue, but history.

Since the most spectacular personality of the period covered by this volume was Theodore Roosevelt, much of "Pre-War America" is devoted to him, and the picture of T. R. which Mr. Sullivan leaves in the minds of his readers (always with that refraining from personal comment, but that stupendous piling up of fact) is as sharply drawn and clear as any biographer has given of that too often hazily pictured man. It is the customary thing in writing of Roosevelt to be either sentimental or bitter. Mr. Sullivan blandly is neither, merely accurate.

As in the previous volumes there is a complete record of the popular songs, the popular fads, the popular books, the popular plays, the artistic triumphs of the years which are surveyed. For that alone "Our Times" is an encyclopedia unrivaled.

There are over two hundred photographs, cartoons, drawings, handbills—most of the pictorial effects of the time which appeared to influence public opinion. The styles are always good for a nice clean laugh. Reproductions of cartoons bring home the political points as they did in their immediate power. Unknown or forgotten photographs of the great men of their day add the last touch to this very alive current history. F. B.

Story of California.

BENNETT, GALSWORTHY HEAD LONDON BOOK LISTS FOR AUTUMN

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—The English publishers are lifting the veils which shroud their autumn publications, and the promise is good.

ARNOLD BENNETT.

There will be Arnold Bennett's new long novel, "Imperial Palace," and a new collection of what Mr. Galsworthy calls "footnotes" to the "Forsyte Saga" and the "Modern Comedy." These footnotes, the title of which will be "On Forsyte 'Change," take us back to the early days of the family and bring us to the war, with "Soames and the Flag."

Miss Margaret Kennedy has a new novel, "The Fool of the Family," which links up with "The Constant Nymph." Miss Rosamund Lehmann's "A Note in Music," Mr. J. B. Priestley's "Angel Pavement," and Mr. John Van Druten's "A Woman on Her Way" will all be assured of wide popularity.

A new novel to which I shall look forward very eagerly is George Blake's "The Seas Between." Mr. Blake is a Scotsman, is young, is talented, sincere, and sure handed. "The Seas Between" is said to be the study of a boy whose father's sins bring shame upon his head.

Mr. Sassoon is contributing a preface to a new edition of Surtees' "Handley Cross," for which the original illustrations by Leech have been reproduced in facsimile.

In connection with the publication of his book on "The Drama in English," now announced, Walter Prichard Eaton is, I hear, to pay his first visit to England. He will find the London theater less full of American plays than usual, for English dramatists have been looking up this year, and there are several successes here now which have not, as is usually the case, already been successes in New York.

Miss Storm Jameson has turned aside from the novel for a moment in order to write a book called "The Decline of Merry England." But it is not a picture of present day unemployment troubles. On the contrary, it is a study of the rise of Puritanism in the seventeenth century, and as such should be of great historical value.

Divorcee Symposium Includes H. G. Wells, Maurois, and Russell

"Divorce" [John Day] is a symposium of the ideas of well known writers of four countries on the question. Bertrand Russell talks on divorce by mutual consent, Fannie Hurst considers whether divorce is sordid and ugly, H. G. Wells whether it is inhuman.

Theodore Dreiser writes of modern marriage as a farce, Lion Feuchtwanger about marriage based on common sense.

André Maurois thinks that divorce should not be too easy, Rebecca West that it is a necessity. And Warwick Deeping talks about perseverance in marriage, which does not mean trying husbands like Peggy Joyce in the hope that somewhere in the world there's the right man.

The publishers inclosed a national ballot with each copy which is to be answered by the public. Among the six questions about which one is asked to answer yes or no are: Should adultery be ground for divorce? Should mutual consent be sufficient ground for divorce? Is divorce a problem of the church or the state? It is hoped to get a poll of importance.

Authors Gather for Parties in Gay New York

Some of Them Give One for Publisher.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—People and climate rank high among the enthusiasms of Elinor Mordaunt, English writer of fiction and of travel tales, whose latest novel, "These Generations," comes from the press simultaneously with her second visit here.

ELINOR MORDAUNT

Guest of honor at Joseph Brewer's tea on Tuesday, Miss Mordaunt told us she first discovered America two years ago via "some delightful Americans I met in Italy." Thus lured to cross the Atlantic, she investigated our continent from coast to coast and finds it as per sample.

Though her voice is crisply English, Miss Mordaunt registers the smartly-groomed cosmopolite in appearance, as well as in the easy friendliness of her manner. That twinkle in her eyes, as she tells of discovering by his brogue a Boston taxi driver who had worked on her grandfather's place in Ireland and who gallantly offered her a tour of the city "with the flag down"—that twinkle in her eyes is a heritage from County Galway.

Wednesday brought the turned-tables of a publisher who was guest, not host, when Judith Anderson, Arthur Richmond, and Edward Wassermann gave a cocktail party in honor of Blanche M. Knopf. Many Broadway celebrities were present and the literati glimpsed in the throng included Fannie Hurst with her marmoset, Carl Van Vechten, whose "Parties" is going strong; Isa Glenn, whose "A Short History of Julia" is just out, and Wood Kahler, author of "Smart Setbacks."

The week brought to town, too, Mathilde Eiker, who adds this season "My Own Far Towers" to "Mrs. Mason's Daughters" and "Over the Boat-side." From her home in Washington, D. C., she has come for a month's stay in this city "which looks more and more like fabled Bagdad." "With need for a flying carpet," she added after abandoning the taxi and experiencing her first subway crush in an effort to get to the Commodore for tea before half past dinner time.

The talk meandered, as all good talk does, to such diverse topics as the expertness with which Charles II. and Louis XIV. picked the really beautiful women of their time and the indebtedness of a Broadway play for its biggest laugh to James Branch Cabell's "Jurgen."

"Thunders of Silence" Urged by Critic for Contemner of Hoover

"The Great Mistake," by John Knox [National Foundation Press].

Irvin Cobb once wrote a wonderful story which he called "Thunders of Silence." It was concerned with a political man who blatted about the country and flashed into the headlines with sensational stuff until somebody got the brilliant idea that what the man was after was publicity, not the good of his country, and that the cure for his incriminations was not ridicule or denials or consideration of any sort in the press, but "thunders of silence."

He was treated to that and his previously loud words trailed off into an echoing silence. He was dead as a chicken in the highway which had never believed in modern progress and motors.

It is to "thunders of silence" that "The Great Mistake" by John Knox should be treated. We would so treat it except for the fact that it has already been made much of in the press. It is a scurrilous attack on Herbert Hoover, making out that his private fortune was founded not at all upon his engineering skill, but upon a shady manipulation of mining stock, that he is not an American but an "internationalist" who once registered in a hotel [after living half his life there] as from London, that the Belgium relief business would bear looking into and that the Food Administration has its shady pockets.

It is so cleverly done by willful twisting of what has been written about Hoover and quotation from only portions of hearings that, while certainly intentionally libelous, it might not necessarily be legally so. The book already has been put in the class of "The President's Daughter" and "The Private Life of President Harding" by many who have merely heard of it. There is no sex whatever in "The Great Mistake."

WAR UPON G. O. P. IN INDIANA LED BY LAW DEAN

McNutt Is Chief Speaker for Democrats.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Indiana's off year political fight has reached its apogee and is tapering off for the day of reckoning at the polls next Tuesday when the voters are to decide who got hurt.

While prosperity and the business depression have been the dominant issues in the campaign, the Democrats, led by Paul V. McNutt, dean of the Indiana university law school and former national commander of the American Legion, have assailed the Republican state administration for alleged mismanagement and high taxes and as a consequence Dean McNutt himself has become an issue.

Dean McNutt, while not a candidate, has been keynote speaker of the Democratic campaign, stumping the state in behalf of the ticket and arousing the anger of the Republican leaders who have expressed resentment over the dean's participation in politics.

Pays Dean's Personal Tax.

Eliza O. Rogers, Republican state chairman, in a reprisal to Prof. McNutt's allusions to high taxes and business depression, went to Bloomington, seat of the university and home of the dean, and paid the last installment of McNutt's personal property taxes amounting to $16.85.

In a letter to the dean, advising him of the tax payment, Mr. Rogers said: "Your statements lead me to believe that you are having trouble to pay the last installment of your taxes, and I did not want the leader of the great Democratic party in Indiana embarrassed."

Dean McNutt ignored the Republican chairman's action and political experts said the incident has been a boomerang to the Republicans. Reports that the state administration would curtail the appropriations for Indiana university if Dean McNutt did not refrain from his assaults were denied by Gov. Harry G. Leslie, in a campaign speech, said there was no basis for the reports and that there was no intention of withdrawing support from the university.

Editorials Assail McNutt.

The Republicans have circulated reprints of editorials appearing in the Bloomington Daily Telephone criticizing McNutt and asking, "Is Indiana university to be sacrificed to the burning ambition of Prof. McNutt." The professor was pictured as the "boy Moses attempting to lead the Democratic party of Indiana into the promised land" and declared he really was attempting to create a great demand for himself with the idea of becoming the Democratic candidate for governor or senator in 1932.

In another release the Republican state committee, quoting the Bloomington editorials, the professor's speeches were condemned and described as agitating threats of retaliation upon the university.

As one of their final moves, the Republican state committee is circulating throughout the state quotations from the recent speech of John J. Raskob, the Democratic national chairman, emphasizing his statement that business has turned upward following a thorough deflation. The Republicans say this statement has killed the arguments of all the Democratic campaign speakers who have deplored the business outlook.

Claims of Party Managers.

Both state organizations express optimism for victory on Tuesday. The Democrats, who now have only three of the state's 13 congressmen, claim they will gain four more seats and possibly two or three others which they class as doubtful. The Republicans insist they will lose no places and feel they have a chance to gain one or two.

The only state offices involved in the election are secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, clerk of the Supreme court, and six judgeships on the Supreme and Appellate courts. The Democrats forecast a clean sweep of the state posts and the leading political writers of the state have been inclined to agree. The Republican organization has not displayed the unity it normally does and with the other factors involved in the campaign, a difficult contest is presented.

Hard Fight for House.

Both parties are extremely eager to gain control of the next house of representatives, all of the 100 representatives posts to be filled at this election. A number of important legislative programs are pending, among them the task of redistricting the state in accordance with the last census figures, which will cut the Indiana districts down to 11 from 13. Naturally, both parties are eager to do the redistricting and if a Democratic house is elected a turbulent period is in the offing, inasmuch as the senate will remain Republican because of 23 Republican holdover senators whose seats are not involved in this campaign.

U. S. ACTS TO END FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL DEADLOCK

American Envoy Confers with Tardieu and Duce.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 31.—France will accept any solution of the naval deadlock that American Ambassador Hugh Gibson can arrange with Italy except one—the recognition of parity.

Ambassador Gibson, acting as mediator between Paris and Rome on the eve of the league of nations' preparatory disarmament conference opening at Geneva next Thursday, is seeking to obtain Premier Mussolini's adherence to a building program which will be limited until 1936.

Last Tuesday, in a long conversation with Premier Tardieu here, Mr. Gibson obtained France's revised naval construction schedule for the next five years, which, the premier promised, would not be augmented unless the Fascists' building program so increased as to menace France's relative position.

May Make Reservations.

Quai d'Orsay today declined to comment on Mr. Gibson's activities, pointing out that the American ambassador to Belgium had discussed the situation with Premier Tardieu instead of with Foreign Minister Briand, who was ill in bed.

The foreign ministry spokesman, however, indicated the government's desire to reach a compromise accord with Rome. He pointed out that France can ratify the tripartite London treaty with the tentative figures set down for France by adding reservations similar to Great Britain's escalator clause, stipulating the right to increase tonnage if her neighbor started additional construction which might menace France's security.

"The French government prefers to abstain from any action which might seem to isolate Italy," said the informant, discussing the possibility of France ratifying the naval treaty and making it a four power pact, leaving Italy out in the cold.

May Accept Lower Figure.

During recent conversations here, M. Tardieu convinced Minister of Marine Dumesnil that France can safely accept the 560,000 tons allocated at London, as that is only 25,000 tons below the government's previous revised estimates. This tonnage is based on Italy maintaining 320,000 tons, which Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy asserted during the London conference, was all that the Rome government required.

It is believed here that Mr. Gibson is applying powerful pressure to Premier Mussolini by speaking in behalf of the three signatories of the London treaty—Japan, Great Britain, and the United States—and urging Il duce to make extreme concessions for a temporary accord with France until 1936, when the next phase of naval disarmament comes up.

Gibson's Visit Stirs Rome.

ROME, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The unexpected arrival of Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, and his conferences today with high Italian officials made the Italo-French naval situation the chief topic of conversation in Rome tonight.

Although Mr. Gibson denied that he was a special appointee of President Hoover to attempt settlement of the Italo-French naval disagreement, saying he merely was here as a member of the league of nations preparatory disarmament commission, he said Italian and French conversations were continuing, and he predicted some results from them.

Official circles confirmed Mr. Gibson's statement that he was not here in a special capacity to compose differences of the two nations, but added that it would have been impossible for him to have discussed disarmament without referring to those differences.

Received by Mussolini.

They likewise confirmed his statement that the Italo-French naval conversations, which recently failed at Geneva, had not been entirely broken off, and believed talks would be resumed at the preparatory commission's session, which will begin at Geneva Thursday.

Government spokesmen said the French attitude had become more conciliatory of late and they were more hopeful of results.

Mr. Gibson, who is chief delegate for the United States to the preparatory commission sitting, will remain here several days. He was received in audience today by Premier Mussolini and he also conferred with Dino Grandi, foreign minister, and Augusto Rosso and Gen. De Marinis, disarmament experts.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila Fay married King George despite the opposition of her uncle and guardian, John Donohue, and her former suitor, Jim Molloy, and disapproving friends.

King, known as "the wild boy of Harvard," must wait several years before receiving the principal of the fortune left by his father, Joshua George, of chewing gum fame.

After the wedding they slip away to avoid the reception. Instead of going to Monterey, where their baggage had been shipped, they slip off to Lake Tahoe. King is strangely restless and irritable, and a phone call which Sheila overhears King make reveals to her the cause—he is a drug addict and because of their changed honeymoon plans is without a supply. Sheila determines to fight for King's regeneration and consults a federal narcotic agent, who suggests a program, which if rigidly carried out would effect a cure.

King had entered his favorite horse, Wind, in the Tia Juana races and intends to ride him himself, so they go to San Diego. The day before the race Sheila overhears her husband and his trainer planning to dope Wind to insure his winning. The day of the race King asks Sheila to place his bets for him on Wind. Instead she places them on his opponent, who wins. After the race Sheila tells King what she had done and why.

King had promised Sheila to go with her to Alaska, after the races. Jim Molloy is in Nome and he meets them there, at Sheila's request. He helps her to carry out her plan to take King to a remote spot, there to help him fight off his baneful habit.

INSTALLMENT XII.

SUBTERFUGE.

Jim had agreed with Sheila as to the wisdom of giving King a long rope of freedom at Nome. To betray suspicion of his frequent unexplained absences might endanger her program by creating a counter suspicion and alertness. She was counting heavily on his haziness of mind to carry through the formidable conspiracy.

Although her observation had therefore relaxed, it was apparent that nostalgia or boredom had increased his indulgences. Were she to be cross-examined, now, by the government agent to whose questions she had given hesitant, ignorant answers, she would be found quite adequately informed. For though still fiercely secretive as to his habits, King was beginning to get accustomed to so intimate a companion as a wife; had accepted as characteristic her carefully maintained unobservant pose. Several times, when he had supposed her to be sleeping, she had heard him snuffing, or what the narcotic agent had odiously termed snorting snow. If alas, it were only that, she mourned. For twice she had caught a glimpse of a spotted thigh. Which confessed the use of the needle—of morphine.

All of the symptoms recited to her in the government offices had now been fulfilled: emaciation, distorted pupils, secrecies, increased furtiveness, nervous motions—the characteristic flicking of the nose, and the last development of which she intended to make bitter use, an uncertainty of memory.

So far, she reflected, there had been no slip in her plan. The last details of furnishing for the Siliscovich cabin had been completed. The two Eskimos were already installed in their shack. The fireplace in the master cabin was finished. The ice cellar was stocked. "You'll be eating the season's berries, as late as you'll let 'em last," Jim had told her the day before. "The native woman is 'putting them down,' I think that's the Alaskan vernacular, in air-tight casks which will be packed in ice." The boxes of new and heavy winter apparel had already reached the shack, and their trunks, which King thought had been sent aboard ship, were stored in the warehouse, awaiting their owners' exit the following summer.

Yes, inexorably the program had moved along. Sheila had confided to Jim that she was now but a cog in machinery which had been set in motion; he, too, was following schedule. Her husband's unconsciousness of the plotting and his eagerness to be on the way "back to civilization" smote her afresh each day. Not even an unselfish purpose could make it seem right for herself and Jim to have confidences which excluded King, or to hatch plans which involved his liberty.

She was dressing for the Horton's "last night" dinner, when Jim Molloy telephoned up from the lobby of the hotel.

"Yes, I'm alone, but I'm expecting King back any moment. Better come up at once."

Her frock, of jade velvet, lay on the bed. It demanded a few stitches before it could be worn. Hastily, she chose another dress from the collection on the clothes hangers—a yellow slip-on which was fully adjusted before Jim's knock sounded.

She was at the door, waiting for him. "I'm so glad for this opportunity. I've been getting fidgety, now that tomorrow is here. Is everything all right?"

"Okeh. Only—I've been getting fidgety, too. About you." At this eleventh hour, he wanted to persuade her she was not the only one who could successfully "see the thing through." He pleaded to take her place.

"Banish him, and not share his banishment? It's unthinkable," she resisted.

"Rubbish, Sheila. You're letting sentiment guide you. This is a full sized man's job."

"It's my job."

'Twas impossible what Jim was urging. He had always disliked her husband, and although King had not yet expressed himself, it was obvious that he detested Molloy. Not since their first week in Nome had she again attempted to force a friendship between the two men.

"You should have married him, Sheila," King had then said to her.

"Would it have been better for you, King?"

"It would have been better for you."

Did Jim imagine she would let King come to consciousness in the apparently remote cabin to find the man he resented, as his keeper, there? What did Jim think she'd be doing, those seven or eight months of anxious waiting? Expect her to play bridge, and gamble on the dog races, at Nome? Impossible. There were to be no last second changes. To comfort the kindly, scowling Jim, she added: "In a few months, it will be over."

"I'll be an old man by then. You don't know what you're taking on yourself. I've just been talking with a doctor——"

"Be yourself," she said, sharply. "That's King's step."

The door from the hall was flung open. King paused on the threshold, staring.

Molloy rose from his chair.

"Going with us to the Horton's?"

Stiffly, their fingers had touched, Sheila observed.

"Sorry. I've some last boat mail to sign, and get off. I only came——" he glanced at Sheila, who smiled and nodded back at him "to remind you and Sheila of your breakfast date with me tomorrow."

Surely, she thought, King would read the guilt in their faces. She held her breath for his answer. She had not yet told him, but it had been agreed he would be thus casually reminded; they were counting on his unwillingness to acknowledge forgetfulness. There were still so many—so many ice bridges through which they might fall.

"Breakfast, O yes," said King.

Had they actually crossed, so easily? Perhaps King had consented, intending to back out the last minute; a way he had. Well, she would play the spoiled girl's rôle if he did. Schedule had to be followed; the exit from Nome had to be from King's cabin.

"If you wait, Molloy, I'll throw a cocktail."

"Sorry. I can't. These last hours are confoundedly full. I'll be going, Sheila."

King's stare had moved on to his wife. "Your come-hither gown, Sheila! She always ought to wear that golden stuff, eh, Molloy?"

Jim was escaping. "I like her in gingham, too!"

"It's good night, not goodby," Sheila called after him.

As soon as the door was closed, King demanded what Molloy had meant about breakfast. Weren't they going aboard that night?

"Had you forgotten we changed that plan? Why, King, you agreed to eat breakfast at his rooms tomorrow, just before going to the steamer." She was busying herself with her lip stick before the mirror, getting a full view of the shamed eyes and flushed cheeks of the girl who had said she was a poor liar. Only one day more of lies and subterfuges. "Too poor for such as he?" Jim had asked. Would she risk the failure of the entire plan because of a pride in truth, because she was not eagerly willing to sacrifice that pride and make a good job of a lie?

"Too poor for such as he——"

"You can't have forgotten the waffles, King?"

Over her shoulder, she could see his reflection in the mirror of the ugly dresser. He was looking at her dubiously. She was wondering what she should say next if he insisted he'd not been consulted as to the waffle party. Suppose he refused flatly to go?

"Turn around, Sheila."

Inwardly quaking, she faced him. Life, happiness, honor depended on the smooth, steady flowing of her secret schedule; would she let it be stopped by a last minute obstruction? Would she let her face betray her? More lies, a last minute obstruction? Would she let her face betray her? More lies, Sheila! More fiction! You can bewilder if not convince him.

Good morning!

A hash of leftovers, this one!

Again you encounter the Foreign Legion battling Riffs on the Sahara, meet hard men at their hardest, and follow the fortunes of four deserters, who end up by dying nobly for the flag they have dishonored.

Forts, desert sands, Riffs, camels, French soldiers, prisons, blood, blackguardry and a fair, false woman are all mixed up in this movie's scheme of things. The fair false one, impersonated by the rapier-bodied Myrna Loy, lends the picture some slight distinction. Miss Loy gives a sinister and blood-curdling performance with a directness and sincerity that makes it believable, and her exit provides a grewsome and astounding final touch.

Warner Baxter in the featured rôle of an ex-officer of the legion does the best he can with soggy material. Noah Beery, as a brother renegade, looks mean and talks through his chest, but forgets half the time that he's supposed to have a German accent. Gregory Gaye is clever as the third of the ill-favored musketeers, and George Cooper as the young deserter injects a little—not much—comedy into the piece.

The picture is too long. The slight plot struggles amid a welter of detail. Direction is not worthy of Mr. Fleming. Sets, photography and sound pass muster.

You get the idea that economy and charity instigated the production of "Renegades." The economy you smell in the use of old sets and props. And surely it was charity to give employment to so many extras!

Well, "somewhere in South America" you meet the doughty Victor McLaglen, loving, hee-hawing, and running revolutions. He's lost Edmund Lowe in the shuffle and this trip has as side-kick a hyena-roaring youth named Humphrey Bogart, who may be an actor but is just a P. I. T. N. so far as I'm concerned.

After accomplishing a number of feats, including the saving of a fair Rosita from kidnapers and repelling and capturing the leader of bandits who attacks her hacienda, Jerry waxes extra noble. He has discovered that the gal that he loves loves the pal that he loves, and presents the two with his blessings! He quiets their regretful tremors on his behalf with a lusty "Hell, I ain't no marryin' man!" and sets forth to find new countries in need of a fighting man.

The story is so weak and ordinary and the dialogue so blah that the good players in the cast have little chance to make a showing. Photography, sets, and sound are all right. Direction's just so-so.

But the McLaglen teeth stay nice and white.

Divorcee Claims Men Treat Her in a Light Way

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a divorcee, only 26. I have been going out with a young man who has told me often how much he loved me and what I meant to him. When I finally told him I was a divorcee his love for me cooled. He offered me common law marriage instead of the real thing.

"And he's not the only one. I've gone out with three others since I got my divorce, and I am sorry to report their attitude and conversation was the same. Is there anything wrong in being a divorcee?—Anna R."

In the printed confession of two divorced women in magazine articles recently the "lightness" with which divorced women are often held by men was commented upon. As first class marriage material, divorcees are outranked by single girls and widows, one judges from the first hand confessions.

In view of the fact, however, that divorcees seem to be remarrying in large numbers, one might believe the confessional statements to be slightly exaggerated. But there is to be said about women who are temporarily without marriage protection that their conduct and mode of living has to be of excellent tone to escape the implication that they are easy prey.

A certain amount of sophistication and world wisdom is charted against them because of a marriage in their pasts. Certainly they cannot pose as inexperienced young girls or flighty young creatures whose youth is sufficient alibi for their flirtations. Consequently, a high order of conduct is expected to forestall experiences of the nature outlined above.

I recall a divorcee in her late twenties telling in mournful cadences of her broken illusions once she abandoned the protection of marriage.

"Men have said things to me since I was free they never would have dared say when I was married. I mean men friends of my husband, too."

She happened to be one of the women who sough, freedom for freedom's sake, if the truth were told. Free, she imagined her life would be a prolonged romantic session, instead of which she found her company not nearly so desirable nor herself so worthy of compliments as was the case when she was wed.

Bulgar State, Church Greet the New Queen

Report Train Was Fired On Officially Denied.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Czar Boris of Bulgaria and his Italian bride, Princess Giovanna, today received the "nuptial benediction" of the holy synod of the Bulgarian Orthodox church in Sofia cathedral.

The ceremony took place shortly after the arrival of the czar and his bride in the Bulgarian capital from Bourgas, a Black sea port.

There was no exchange of rings, and certain other ritual details were omitted, thus satisfying the Vatican's demand that the Roman Catholic ceremony at Assisi last Saturday be considered the one valid and binding.

The president of the synod in his speech after the ceremony, however, took the occasion to congratulate Boris on "founding at last the real Orthodox dynasty" so much wished for by the Bulgarian church.

Along a tapestry strewn with white chrysanthemums Boris and his bride walked earlier in the day from the train to the waiting room. There Premier Liaptcheff awaited them with other cabinet officials, members of the royal household and representatives of the municipal government of Sofia.

Soldiers with bright red bands about their khaki caps kept the crowd at the curb and veterans of Bulgaria's war of liberation swung along ahead and behind in their baggy campaign uniforms.

The czar wore a dark blue full dress uniform, with decorations on his left breast and a vivid crimson sash about his waist. He was among his own people now, much more at ease than at Assisi.

Reports published in Bucharest that seven shots had been fired at the royal train carrying Czar Boris and his bride to Sofia were denied here.

Reports Attempt to Kill.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A Sofia dispatch published here today reported that the royal train with Boris and his bride aboard was fired on last night at the Manole station between Bourgas and Sofia [illegible] shots, one of which slightly wounded a soldier of Boris' bodyguard while another bullet struck the rifle of a second soldier. The assailant escaped in the darkness.

Two Rouges Better than One for Makeup of Milady's Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Two rouges are necessary for make-up for evening wear and for day wear, too, if you are particular about keeping your face in fine, smiling condition. A cream rouge for the foundation work and a compact for the finishing touch are the two.

Cream rouge you must get in the habit of using. There is a subtlety about it that the compact alone does not give, perhaps because the compact is a hurried performance, at best. More likely, though, you do not blend the compact rouge into the skin the way you do the cream rouge. Any way, try the cream rouge, if you haven't done so yet.

It is not hard to apply skillfully. If you don't get it on right at first, just blot it out with a bit of cream and tissue and do it over. It has a staying power, too. If put on carefully you can go a whole day on it, with perhaps one or two "lifts" from the compact.

Apply the compact in small dots the shape of a triangle. Don't swab a large lump on. Work the cream into the skin with a finger. Just be careful not to get your rouge of any kind down low on the cheek. That gives a curious aged look. Blend the cream in neatly, so that you cannot see where the cream leaves off at any point. After the rouging with the cream rouge, apply your powder smoothly, lightly and then as a last minute touch up dust the compact rouge lightly over the cheek area already treated to the compact.

At night dab the chin lightly with the compact and give a bit of color to the lobes of the ears when you are at it, and if you are going to wear your ears exposed.

A rule about rouge using given by one of our leading authorities on makeup is to bear in mind that if the eyes are large and bright you can afford to rouge brilliantly. But if they are small, a heavy rouge dims the glow, detracting appreciably from the beauty of the eyes and the face.

A delicately colored woman, also a mature, conservative one, might try the crushed rose tints just to see if the faint flush is not more becoming than a raspberry or a geranium shade. It usually turns out to be more flattering.

THE STAGE

"TWELFTH NIGHT."

Shakespeare's comedy, given by Frits Leiber's repertory company at the Civic theater Oct. 30, 1930, under the auspices of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare society.

THE CAST.

Antonio ..... Ralph Mensing
A sea captain ..... Frank Peters
Sir Toby Belch ..... Lawrence H. Cecil
Sir Andrew Ague-Cheek ..... John Burke
Malvolio ..... Fritz Leiber
Fabian ..... Thayer Roberts

Olivia ..... Maxine Arnold
Viola ..... Mary Hone
Maria ..... Virginia Bronson
Priest ..... J. Augustus Keogh
Balentine ..... Philip Quinn

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

[From yesterday's late editions.]

MR. LEIBER'S company approaches Shakespearean comedy with a subdued and modern twinkle in its eye. Its repertory reached "Twelfth Night" yesterday evening with quiet, agreeable results. There is something of the little theater method in this casual, colloquial treatment of the story of the masquerading Viola and her love lorn duke, and her twin brother and the winsome widow of Illyria. The spirit of a high romantic romp is missing, but the cast gets much easy fun out of the piece and provides its audience with frequent opportunities for chuckling.

Mary Hone, new in the organization, is a surprising young realist in the rôle of Viola. She understates it at every point. She seems to be doing nothing more than giving it a confidential reading and characterizing it as a modern girl with a subtle sense of humor and a heart that does not throb in the old Victorian way when it is touched. The result is unlike any Viola that ever was acted—and yet is utterly charming. Miss Hone is a refreshing addition to the company.

Mr. Leiber is a shrewd, direct Malvolio; Lawrence Cecil is admirable as the blustering Sir Toby; John Burke is directly in the tradition as the mincing Ague-Cheek; Maxine Arnold is an attractive Olivia, and Virginia Bronson is a competent although mild mannered Maria. Fabian's ballad is admirably sung by Thayer Roberts.

As Shakespearean comedy, simplified and shorn of many of its traditional romantic gestures, this is an effective performance. Several of the secondary rôles, however, are merely walked through.

"Strike Up the Band" will end its engagement at the Selwyn theater within the next fortnight. The management announces the booking of a new play called "Cradle Call," to open Monday night, Nov. 17. It is new to the stage and is a [illegible] at Atlantic City. In the cast are Lesita Lane, Enid Romany, John Sheehan, Lee Kohlmar, Lester Barnard, Percy Kilbride, Joseph Allenton, Lysle Talbot, John T. Dwyer, and George Sweet.

Nydia Westman has been added to the cast of "Lysistrata," which will be staged at the Majestic theater next Tuesday night, in the rôle of Kalonika. She comes out of the New York company.

Within the next two weeks the Theater Guild will place two new plays by American authors in rehearsal. They are "In the Meantime," by Claire and Paul Sifton, and "Green Grow the Lilacs," by Lynn Riggs.

"His Majesty's Car," an adaptation from the Hungarian which was recently staged in New York, will be withdrawn tomorrow night. This is the play with which the Dramatic League of Chicago intended to open its season.

France and Nicaragua Decorate Maj. Gen. Feland

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Three decorations had been added today to the long list of medals bestowed on Maj. Gen. Logan Feland, commandant of the department of the Pacific of the marine corps.

Gen. Feland, three other officers, and two enlisted men of the marine corps were decorated yesterday in simple ceremonies here by the French and Nicaraguan governments.

Gen. Feland was presented with the City of Verdun medal for his heroism in the Verdun sector as a colonel in the Second division during the world war. The Nicaraguan presidential medal of merit and the Nicaraguan medal of merit were bestowed as recognition of his services as commandant of the marines in the Central American republics in 1927 to 1929.

The Verdun medal also was bestowed on Lieut. Col. Fred D. Kilgore and Sergt. Carl M. Eakins. Nicaraguan medals of merit were given Lieut. Col. Percy F. Archer, Maj. Raymond R. Wright, and Chief Quartermaster Clerk Amos E. Potts.

Witches Kinder, Goblins Calmer, This Halloween

Differing Thus from Days of Wilder Pranks.

Witches, goblins, and all the motley crew tradition connects with that holiday were abroad last night. Yet their capacity for mischief done under cover of annual revelry paled into insignificance in comparison with the destruction that featured the celebration in former decades.

All the energy once expended in rowdyism and vandalism, or at least an appreciable portion of it, had been directed comprehending adults into lines that made it safe for the older generation and exhilarating for the younger.

One of the largest of the events during the day or evening was the masquerade staged at Tuley High school yesterday. More than 3,000 students and teachers entered into the spirit of the occasion and thronged to the school at 1313 North Claremont avenue in costumes of hoboes, colonial dames, soldiers, sailors, red riding hoods, Indian chiefs, clowns, and jazz babies. All these paraded about the neighborhood in the wake of the school band. By last evening there was sufficient pep left in the crowd that took part to make a great event of the dance that closed it.

Under the supervision of the board of education, playgrounds all over the city had been made a magnet for the children and their elders to keep them amused and diverted and to save property that might have been damaged by roving youngsters. Bonfires, bands, weinie roasts, Indian war dances, dancing and apple ducking contests featured the entertainment at eighteen small parks and sixty-four public playgrounds. Herman J. Fischer, director of recreation for the board of education, was in charge.

Six thousand children from eleven public and parochial schools on the south side gathered at Cornell park, 51st street and South Wood, for a parade over two miles of streets in that vicinity in costumes of every period of history and of all nations, to say nothing of ghosts, animals and mythical personages. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes when the line of march had brought the multitude back to the starting point.

The schools represented were Fulton, Seward, Henderson, Hamlin, Hedges, St. Joseph, St. Basil, St. Rose of Lima, St. Michael, St. Augustine, and St. John. The boys' band from St. John's school led the procession, with members of the James J. Bentak post of the American Legion.

Business men and civic organizations of the west side sponsored a ten mile parade of floats and bands, from Garfield park to Augusta and Laramie avenue, with the entire celebration supervised by the west park board.

North side merchants pooled their contributions and purchased more than a ton of candy for distribution among children in the six small parks of the Lincoln park district.

A Halloween party was staged at St. Luke's hospital yesterday morning for the juvenile patients there. The scene was the eighth floor of the main building. The school of nursing of the Presbyterian hospital also gave a party.

Mellon Grants Free Entry as Prince of Wales Asked

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon has authorized an exhibition of paintings and drawings by British artists—sponsored by the prince of Wales for former British soldiers—on board the British steamer Oquitania in New York harbor late in November.

At the request of the state department, the treasury secretary also has granted free entry for any pictures which may be purchased by visitors to the exhibition.

The state department said today the embassy in London forwarded a request of the prince of Wales, through Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, that customs authorities in New York allow purchasers to take off works without paying duty.

Society Busy with Arriving Princeton Men

BY THALIA

There is a gay hubbub of activities engaging society's interests over this week-end. The beginning of the excitement yesterday was the arrival of the Princetonians for the meeting of the National Princeton association.

There were meetings of that organization yesterday and a banquet in the evening. Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick gave a tea at the McCormick residence at 40 West Burton place for the wives who have accompanied their husbands to Chicago, in the afternoon, with wives of the members of the Princeton committing assisting her.

These included Mrs. J. Paul Welling, Mrs. Calvin Fentress, Mrs. Frederick H. Scott, Mrs. John A. Chapman, Mrs. Howard Phillips, and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr.

The James Simpsons gave a gay Halloween dinner-dance for Elsa Armour last night at the Saddle and Cycle with the guests including some of Princeton undergrads, and the Tavern had a Halloween dinner-dance, too.

Today's events include one of great moment to the very young set, the opening of the Junior league's children's theater plays at the Selwyn theater with "The Bluebird." Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. and Miss Peggy Hambleton are taking the leading parts of Tytyl and Mytyl.

Among the mothers who will be escorting groups of youngsters to the play at 10:30 o'clock this morning will be Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Alexander Revell Jr., Mrr. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, Mrs. Cyrus Hill, Mrs. John L. Cochran, Mrs. Eugene Talbot, Mrs. Walter Wilson, and Mrs. John Borden.

There are to be numerous pre-football game luncheons before the Princeton-Chicago fracas this afternoon, among them one President and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins are to give for Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, and one the Edward L. Ryersons are having at the Blackstone. After the game, there will be many informal gatherings to celebrate or lament the score, among them one that Edward F. Swift Jr. is to have at his apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue.

The most interesting affair for the evening is the debut dinner-dance Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith are to give for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Smith, at the Blackstone this evening, and since Mr. Smith is a Princeton graduate, class of '04, there will be visiting collegians to swell the stag line.

Charles Stuart is host to one of the early parties who have come on from the east for the Princeton-Chicago football game this afternoon. He arrived with eight guests yesterday afternoon in a private car from New York City, and they are all to put up at the apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive, occupied by Mr. Stuart's father, Charles Stuart; his sisters, Miss Harriet and Miss Elizabeth Stuart, and his brother, Harold Stuart.

The Opera club is having its opening dinner dance of the season this evening. Among the members who have made reservations to have parties of guests are the Benjamin H. Marshalls, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. Horatio B. Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Corley. Several of the theatrical stars in Chicago now will put in an appearance after the theater for supper and to give an informal program.

Mrs. J. Russell Adams has returned from a three months' trip in Europe and is occupying her apartment at 1360 North State street until the middle of the winter. Then she will depart, according to her annual custom, for a sojourn in California.

Children Possess Unsuspected Fund of Moral Courage

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

If your young child's questions (early sex education) are difficult to answer, helpful reading will be suggested by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Shock of any kind — physical or mental or emotional, and, of course, they're all tied up together—is something we should spare children whenever possible. Anesthetics and operations can be robbed of much of their shock if a child is intelligently prepared for them. It is thrilling to see how their courage rises to the occasion.

Here is an interesting letter:

"Dear Mrs. Evans: I have just read your advice to a mother whose seven year old girl was nervous and afraid when taken to the dentist. I noticed your last word was to caution her about telling the child it would not hurt. I'd just like to tell you my experience.

"When my little girl was four it was necessary to give her an anesthetic. Not thinking how it would affect her I did not prepare her for it and the shock to her nerves was terrible.

"A year later it was necessary to have her tonsils removed and this time we talked it over, she knew she might be sick afterwards and that at the best she must suffer some and while she was afraid she did not once flinch and the Sisters in the hospital complimented her on her behavior.

"Now at seven her teeth are bad. Her four of her six year molars have gold inlays. I take her to a dentist who is wonderful with children and the last time, I left her there to have her work done while I did some shopping and it seemed to her and to me a perfectly natural thing to do. She watches the assistant make the inlay to go in her tooth and is so much at home there that she really gets some pleasure out of going.

"When a child knows that a thing has to be done and that it will hurt—it seems to challenge them to be their best. Never tell them a thing won't hurt when you know it will for that is not true.

"I know this letter is too long but I have heard so many people telling their children things like that, that I do believe it should be stressed to them."

Patterns by Clotilde

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' OUTFIT.

This dress and coat is just the thing for sports, street and travel, and will find a place in the winter wardrobe of many smart women. The tweed coat flares attractively towards the hem and the lines are beautifully molded from top to bottom. A black, beige and red mixture collared in red fox is shown. An interesting feature is the finish of the sleeves at the wrists. Velvety woolen and broadcloth lend themselves perfectly to this model for more dressy wear.

The pattern, 2623-2625, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards of 54 inch material with 2⅝ yards of 39 inch lining and 1⅝ yards of 5 inch wide fur, and ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—President Hoover had a group of men dining with him this evening. Mrs. Hoover accompanied their son, Herbert Hoover Jr., tonight when he started for Asheville, N. C., after spending a day and night with his parents at the White House. They will join Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. at Asheville, in the house which the junior Hoovers will occupy for the winter.

Mrs. Hoover Sr. will return the first of the week. She and her son had with them when they started south Capt. Joel T. Boone, the President's physician, and Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President.

Mrs. Thomas Ewing, wife of former commissioner of patents, arrived today at the Mayflower and will be here several days. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Archibald Stone, have recently taken possession of the house at 1621 35th street for the winter. Mr. Stone is secretary of the Canadian legation, and their marriage took place last summer.

Mrs. Allan A. Ryan Jr. of New York is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Newbold, for a short time. Mrs. Newbold is a brother of Mrs. Frank B. Noyes, formerly of Chicago, now living in Washington.

Mrs. Stephen Colladay gave a luncheon yesterday, preparatory to sailing next week for her former home in France, where she will visit for several months. Her guests, with the exception of Mrs. Huron W. Lawson, were French women who married officers of the American army during the world war, including Mrs. Lee McCarthy. Mrs. Harold Giese, Mrs. Edwin P. Lefevre, Mrs. S. M. Frites, Mrs. L. P. Hartley, and Mrs. John R. Benney.

It is a comfort almost past telling to rediscover an opera in this generation that is not afraid of tunes.

"The Jewels of the Madonna" is rowdy in its music, rowdy in its drama, rowdy in its action from the beginning of its opening chorus to the apache dance in the third act, a dance, by the way, wherein the participants mopped up the floor with each other most fervently. But the music is real music, the action is alive. And the flaming center of it all last night was Miss Raisa.

Mr. Cortis was without question the best Gennaro the opera has ever had since Wolf-Ferrari came to Chicago to see the first performance these more than several years ago. Passionate religion and passionate love burned in his face and voice. Mme. Claessens is ideal in a mother part. Mr. Rimini makes Rafaele one of the most distinctive and vivid characterizations of his career. The smaller characters were, generally speaking, genuine characters. The choristers sang resonantly and deported themselves intelligently. Mr. Moranzoni conducted with great spirit and great suavity by turn. So all was well.

But Miss Raisa made the center of the stage where she happened to be at the time. It was as gorgeous a performance of singing and characterization as ever she has been known to give. In fact there would be no trouble at all in giving the title of the opera a slight twist and applying it to her, a jewel of a prima donna.

Only a few episodes marred the general excellence of the performance. The fleshly ending of the second act, written in deliberately for the purpose of giving the audience a thrill, is always awkward. Having seen the action tried at least a dozen different ways, I am of the opinion that it always will be awkward, especially when the curtain falls as slowly as it did last night. Also in the camorrists' scene of the third act the high C's of the sopranos were squealier than is compatible with good singing tone, which may have been true to life but was hardly good opera.

But speaking generally, the performance had sparks in it.

André Skalski and his orchestra began their series of concerts at Kimball hall last night, playing different programs of something over an hour each at 6:30, 8, and 9:30 o'clock. From all appearances they are opening up something attractive in the way of evening music. The orchestra numbers about forty-five players, and Mr. Skalski is a conductor with ideas and the ability to transmit them to his forces. The Borodin symphony, with which the first program opened, was played smoothly, with good balance, and excellent tone.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Countess Alfonso P. Villa had among her guests for luncheon at the Hotel Pierre Mrs. Reginald T. Townsend, Mrs. Talbot Ewart, Mrs. Ernald Anson, and Mrs. Xavier M. Audibert.

Mrs. E. Marshall Field has added Mrs. William Bertles, Miss Mabel Choate, Mrs. Daniel O'Day, Mrs. Grover Whalen, and Dr. Shirley W. Wynne to her already long list of patrons and patronesses for the supper dance she is arranging for the benefit of the Henry Street Visiting Nurse service to be given Nov. 6.

Whimsical Frock Takes on Looking Glass Airs

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The adventures of Alice in Wonderland, recently translated into French, are creating a furore among the literary élite as well as among the children. Perhaps that is the reason that so many of the new costumes are turned hind-side before, so that, like Alice in the Looking Glass garden, you don't know whether they're coming or going and just where to offer a chair is a question.

These new clothes, though they sound illogical, are really too smart and attractive for words, as you can see by the above example from Martial et Armand.

Mme. Vallet, the wittiest creatrice in couture, is just the person to interpret adorably the whimsies of Mme. Mode. She makes the blouse jacket of this black crêpe de chine ensemble open in the back, but fastened in the front. It is cut with a point in front; the backs continue into long ends which cross surplice wise and tie round the waist in a bow, giving the effect of a draped hip girdle and slightly lower waistline. The same thing happens on a smaller scale at the neckline.

Three shaped flounces of white tulle, piped with black crêpe de chine, make the original round collar and cuffs.

The princess frock of black crêpe de chine has an inverted plait panel for the sake of fullness in the front. The skirt is trimmed with five small circular flounces.

Food Talk.

A delicious chicken timbale, tender, yet shaped into an attractive form served with the fitting accompaniments is one of the loveliest dishes we can serve at a luncheon or informal dinner.

These vari-shaped timbale molds that one sees are certainly a far cry from the first timbale shape. "Timbale" means kettle and originally the name was used only for molds, large or small, or what we now call the melon shape. Today, however, timbale mold designates any shape of mold in which creamed mixtures of suitable material are baked. The mixture may be of chicken, cheese, fish, peas, ham in jelly, or lobster in jelly, but it must be delicate enough to slip out of the mold easily, since the mold is not sent to the table.

Timbales are evoked by poaching, that is surrounded by a bath of water that does not boil. The molds are greased and filled two-thirds full with the mixture. The molds are set into pans of hot water in a moderate oven and poached for about thirty minutes. The water in the pan must never boil during this time.

If the mixture is very delicate, several layers of cloth or paper should be put in the pan of water first.

Timbales are not easy for the inexperienced cook to make. Practice is essential if she wishes to become skillful. But the family is a good subject and will usually enjoy the experiment in the name of artistic cookery.

SPINACH TIMBALES.

Use 1 pint freshly boiled spinach. Beat one egg stiff and add it. Fill buttered timbale molds with the mixture and put them in a pan of hot water in a hot oven [450° F.] for 15 minutes. Then turn them out of the molds and serve as a vegetable with cream of Hollandaise sauce poured over. They may also be served cold as a salad with dressing.

FARM and GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

ABOUT ROCK GARDENING.

With many persons this fall out gathering rocks for grouping next spring into a rock garden, some of the bids of advice coming from Frans A. Aust of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin will be useful. Even those who plan to enlarge or select new stones and simplify their rockeries will be interested in pointers he gives just on rocks.

Five kinds are available, he says. The igneous include the granites and their relatives. Then there are the boulders to be found in glaciated regions; the sedimentary, including the stratified limestones and sandstones; the eroded sedimentary stones, which show water action; and the fifth kind called tufa, which are porous and consequently light in weight.

"Whatever kind of rock is used, there can be but a poor attempt at personality in the completed garden, unless first a study is made of the placing of these rocks as nature laid them down," comments Mr. Aust. "In planning the rock garden it is the bold and forceful expression of nature that should be studied and interpreted to obtain both design and order.

"In the case of large boulders this dramatic expression may be looked for at the point where the boulders end and the plain begins. In the glaciated section of the country a study of a cut in a bank will show that for every large boulder there are many small ones. Typical sedimentary rock, such as that in a limestone quarry, will always show horizontal lines. Eroded sedimentary rocks will do the same, although they have cavities filled with soil which are known as soil pockets."

In many rock gardens one finds tufa, a light porous rock formed by a deposit of carbonate of lime from water. It is usual in the vicinities of Hot Springs and Yellowstone park and in portions of Indiana and Ohio. Whatever type is selected, Mr. Aust says, should fit in with the architecture of the home, the tradition of its style and the spirit of the region and of the home grounds.

Clothes Will Help.

"I am 17 years old have no parents. I need a suit, medium size, and shoes, size 7. I think I could get a job if I had presentable clothing. J. C."

Perhaps this young man's chances of locating employment would improve if his appearance were less shabby. I am sure the garments you are discarding would help him a great deal.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Truth Vs. Tact.

Some time ago I entertained several out of town relatives whom I had never met and naturally wanted to make a favorable impression.

I had prepared a fine dinner and everything was going along nicely until our meal was nearly over, when our young son embarrassed me by crying, "Mother, if you cooked like this every day, I could always eat a hearty meal."

Mrs. L. K.

Return of the Recipe.

Imagine my embarrassment upon leaving the church after a service to have its treasurer approach me and ask if I would like my chili recipe back. Then I recalled giving a small check, inclosed in a church envelope, the previous Sunday, and that I had put the recipe in the envelope for safe keeping and in my haste forgot to remove it.

ELIMINATES APE AS MISSING LINK IN HUMAN FAMILY

Savant Puts Ancestry of Man Further Back.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Man's blood relationship to the anthropoid ape, the diagnosis of paternity, and the identification of blood stains as applied to criminal cases were discussed this afternoon by Dr. Karl Landsteiner, winner of the Nobel prize for medicine, in an interview at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. Dr. Landsteiner received the award, which carries a money grant of $48,000, yesterday for his discoveries in classifying different types of human blood.

This year's Nobel prize winner in medicine is a grayish, thin faced man of 62, who was born in Vienna, but who has been doing research work in the New York institute since 1922. Today he came direct from his laboratory, shook hands with his questioners, lighted a cigaret, and spoke rather shyly of the important work he has done and is doing.

Immunology Research Work.

The studies of Dr. Landsteiner are mostly concerned with research in the field of immunology. This science is of comparatively recent development, starting with the successful immunization against infectious diseases by Pasteur, and the discovery of toxins and antibodies of their action in the last decade of the nineteenth century. The goal is immunization by synthetic serums.

Guardedly discussing his experiments with the blood of apes, Dr. Landsteiner said it had been found that a much closer relationship exists between man and the ape than exists between the ape and the monkey.

The ape, according to the immunologist, has blood almost identically like that of man, but the blood of the ape and the monkey does not mix so readily when put into the test tube. This eliminates the ape as "the missing link" and advances the theory that both the ape and man originated from an ancestor even more remote than the anthropoid.

"The diagnosis of paternity by blood comparison," said Dr. Landsteiner, "has proved successful in many cases but it cannot be relied on in every instance. There are four major types of blood and in my work I have further divided them into more than thirty classifications. Most of the experiments have been to determine the father as the mother is seldom in doubt except in hospital mixups like the one in Chicago some weeks past. It is possible that two persons might have similar blood, but in Europe the blood test to determine parentage has been generally accepted."

Blood Stain Identification.

Regarding the identification of blood stains, Dr. Landsteiner said the discovery had not been put to much practical use in criminal cases. It is easily possible, he said, to determine whether the blood on a suspected criminal's clothes belonged to the criminal or the victim.

"The comparison of the cells in the blood stain with those of the blood of the suspected criminal," said the doctor, "will immediately reveal whether or not they are related. If not of the same type the next step is comparison with the blood of the victim. If they match, guilt should be easily determined."

Dr. Landsteiner's study of the human blood groups started in 1900, and led to the establishment of definite individual differences in human blood. The practical outcome of these findings was their application to the selection of donors for blood transfusion whereby this formerly dangerous operation became a safe and frequently used procedure.

First to Infect Monkeys.

Dr. Landsteiner was the first to infect monkeys with the virus of poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis, thus putting into the hands of bacteriologists a means of studying the disease in animals and experimenting in attempts to immunize humans against it. Eventually it led to the discovery that the serum of infantile paralysis convalescents might be used as a protective or checking agency in patients who had the disease in its incipient stages.

The research in immunology, as explained by the doctor, was first to determine the action of serums on the blood. "One of the most remarkable and puzzling features of the immunity phenomena," said Mr. Landsteiner, "appeared to be the specific action of the antibodies on certain substances which had been introduced into the body by spontaneous infection or artificially."

"First, the doctor discovered that actual chemical reactions took place and for the first time immunology was placed in the field of chemistry. A man who has had smallpox was given as an example. Some chemical reaction takes place and if he recovers he is immune from that specific disease? That is what Dr. Landsteiner is working on.

Live germs and dead germs were just germs until Dr. Landsteiner began taking them apart and classifying their chemical makeup. Now his work has progressed to the point where the chemical structure of a disease fighting substance may be correlated to the chemical structure of the germ involved.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

TWO ROBBERS CONFESS KILLING BANKER MERRILL

Police last night planned swift action against John Popescue, 1513 Fillmore street, Gary, and Charles Rocco, of 2911 East 91st street, both 23 years old, who confessed the murder of Courtney R. Merrill, vice president of the Union State bank of South Chicago.

The two will be arraigned in felony court today. Indictments for murder will be asked early next week. Arrested with the two was Miss Rose Miller, alias Morris, sweetheart of Rocco. She was implicated, detectives said, as an accessory after the fact, because she had knowledge of the stabbing of Merrill.

Popescue and Rocco were seized at the 91st street address on information from Gary authorities, and questioned originally as bandit suspects. Later Lieut. John Ford asked them about the Merrill murder and Rocco broke down. He named Popescue as the actual slayer. Popescue later substantiated the story.

DR. E. L. M'EWEN DIES; FUNERAL TO BE HELD TODAY

Private funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today for Dr. Ernest L. McEwen, 63 years old, who died on Thursday night at his home at 1703 Chicago avenue, Evanston.

Dr. McEwen, who was 63 years old, had been a practicing physician in Chicago for more than 30 years. He was stricken with a heart ailment while on a tour of Europe and had been in failing health since a subsequent attack last August.

He was a graduate of Rush Medical college and specialized in diseases of the skin. He also was the author of several works on dermatology.

GUNMEN ADD 3 TO THEIR LIST IN A NEW YORK DAY

One on Street, Other Two in Battle.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Gunmen killed three more in New York today.

Flat on his back in the rain and the mud, a Bronx butcher, believed to have been a figure in a local alcohol racket, was found dead in the roadway of Hughes avenue, a short distance from the campus of Fordham university. He had been shot six times through the head. Nearby, stalled, stood his automobile.

And over on East 4th street, in a resort called the Black Bottom, police found two men dead on the dance floor with only a handful of frightened Negro jazz players to supply scanty clews to what had happened.

Three Suspects Taken.

The early morning hours also saw the pursuit of five men in a sedan along upper Broadway. Three were caught and one wore a bulletproof vest. They were arrested in a chase which took place at about the same hour that other police were pursuing and shooting at two suspicious characters on Stanton street.

The Bronx victim was Nicholas Candido, who lived over his butcher shop. His body was found by a patrolman who heard the shots. The neighborhood is almost wholly residential, and though some persons were found who also heard the shooting, none had witnessed it.

Engaged in Bootlegging.

A squad of detectives in a department automobile, who arrived almost simultaneously with the patrolman, began an investigation. They reported that Candido ran the butcher shop jointly with his father, but latterly had been giving most of his time to bootlegging.

The victims of the Black Bottom murders were both men with police records. They were killed in a shooting fray the origin of which the police have been unable to learn. They have been identified as Lawrence Viscordi, known as "Cowboy Larry," and Charles Greco.

CHARLES G. RUSH, JUDGE'S BROTHER, DIES SUDDENLY

Charles Goethe Rush, veteran Chicago electrical contractor and brother of Judge George Fred Rush of the Circuit court, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack at his home, 5701 Blackstone avenue.

Mr. Rush was born in Milwaukee and was educated in the Chicago public schools. He received his early electrical training with the Chicago Telephone company and in 1892 began the electrical contracting business. He was assistant electrical engineer for the sanitary district in 1906 and 1907.

He is survived by his widow, Marjorie. Funeral services will be held from the home at 5701 Blackstone avenue Monday at 11 a. m., with burial at Oakwoods cemetery.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Scott Harrison McKee, daughter of President Benjamin Harrison, were held here today. Her body was brought here yesterday from Greenwich, Conn., where she died.

NEW YORK APARTMENT BURNS.
New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin swept up the stairway of a five story apartment house in East 117th street today, driving the 35 tenants to fire escapes, from which they were rescued by police and firemen.

SIX RADIO STATIONS ORDERED OFF AIR BY FEDERAL COMMISSION

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Six broadcasting stations were ordered off the air today by the radio commission because of their failure to apply for renewal of licenses within the time specified by law.

The stations ordered discontinued were:

WCOC, operated by the Mississippi Broadcasting Company, Inc., at Meridian, Miss.

WMAY, Kings Highway Presbyterian church, St. Louis.

WMAF, Round Hills Radio corporation, South Dartmouth, Mass.

WCSO, WGAR Broadcasting company, Springfield, O.

ASKS VETS TO AID PROSECUTION OF INDICTED OFFICER

Joseph B. Lynch, commander of the Woodrow Wilson post of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, yesterday called on all disabled veterans in Illinois to assist him in the prosecution of Nicholas Isaacson, state commander of the organization, who was recently indicted, with ten others, on charges of racketeering. In a letter to all commanders Lynch urged a meeting of all chapters in Chicago within two days.

"There is danger, he said, "that these men, whom we have finally indicted, may not be prosecuted vigorously enough. We are anxious to have the veterans meet and make plans to force a speedy prosecution."

Lynch announced that the organization will seek the coöperation of Col. A. A. Sprague, Robert Isham Randolph, and Frank J. Loesch. He commended the work of Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Mueller and Charles Lounsbury in exposing the alleged leakage of tag day money into the pockets of the indicted men.

Wealthy Realty Operator Refused Cut in Alimony

Circuit Judge Lynch yesterday denied Theodore Heman, real estate operator, a motion for a reduction of alimony payments to his former wife, Mrs. Louise Heman, 4700 Malden avenue. Heman was ordered to pay $300 a month after a long hearing before a master in chancery, who found that Heman owns property worth $250,000 and has an income of $10,000 a year.

Tortured With Acid Indigestion for Months. Not a Sign Now

Amazing Prescription, ACIDINE, Ends Gas, Pain, After All Else Failed

"I suffered for months with acid indigestion and gas on the stomach," writes Mr. C. Bedford of Detroit, Michigan. "Couldn't eat a meal without being troubled with gas and pain, also dizzy feeling. I tried all kinds of medicines, but nothing really helped until I took ACIDINE. Got relief from the very start. Now I am entirely well, no pain at all."

In the space of one year thousands of people have bought ACIDINE at drug stores everywhere and are enthusiastic users. They are astonished how this new scientific prescription, ACIDINE, succeeds where other known remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different. Contains the marvelous digestant, Japtase. In laboratory experiments Japtase has been tested on certain very heavy, lumpy, starchy foods, which cause so much distress. It digested 800 times its weight of such foods in only 10 minutes! Five other ingredients in ACIDINE stop burning acid, soothe irritated stomach lining, stop gas and headache from acidity. No other known remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach. Physicians are prescribing ACIDINE, and thousands of people have found it the only real relief from acid indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, dizziness, gas and headachs from acidity. Pain goes like a flash.

Don't take chances with acidity and gas that often lead to serious and more painful troubles. Get ACIDINE at any Walgreen or Economical drug store today. Watch how quick pain and gas end. Smoke, eat and drink what you want. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

ABSINTHE SEIZED IN POLICE RAID ON MAISON RITZ

The Maison Ritz, a cabaret at 20 East Adams street, said to be operated by David (Cockeyed Mulligan) Ablin, was raided yesterday by police of the central station under Capt. Willard Malone. David Zinnamon, the caretaker and the only occupant of the premises found by the raiders, was arrested.

While investigating the luxuriously furnished rooms, Capt. Malone saw a delivery man carry in two cartons. In them were twelve bottles of absinthe, which were seized. Capt. Malone stated he would seek to have the resort's license revoked. Three other places opened by ablin on the north side at various times have been closed in the last year.

The license was issued, according to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, to Milton Weil, campaign song manager for Mayor Thompson and a former assistant commissioner on the Illinois commerce commission. The license was issued to Weil, Capt. Malone said, after one had been refused to Ablin.

Tory Food Taxes Triumph at By-Election in London

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Lord Beaverbrook, after a setback yesterday when the Conservative party gave a vote of confidence to Stanley Baldwin's leadership, won a victory today in the South Paddington by-election when his candidate, Vice Admiral E. A. Taylor, running on a food taxing platform, won by a majority of 941. Admiral Taylor polled 11,209 to 10,268 for Sir Herbert Lidiard, the official Conservative candidate, and 7,794 for Miss Dorothy Evans, the Labor candidate.

Order Sale of $12,500,000 Bonds to Pay Teachers

At a special meeting of the board of education yesterday a resolution was passed directing City Controller George K. Schmidt to sell $12,500,000 worth of bonds authorized by the legislature financial relief measures. The money will be used to pay teachers' salaries. The bonds were validated by a decision of the Illinois Supreme court Saturday.

Supposed Alcohol Dealer Is Shot Dead in New York

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Nicholas Candido, 35, said by police to have been engaged in the alcohol trade, was shot to death early today. The body with six bullet wounds in the head was found near Candido's car. Police said they believed he had been slain by rival alcohol dealers.

ITALY PEELS OFF COAT TO REBUILD QUAKE DISTRICT

Toll of Dead May Reach Forty.

ANCONA, Italy, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A new city is rising phoenixlike from the ashes of Ancona laid waste by yesterday's series of earthquakes. The people who fled in terror as the earth rocked under their feet have turned to the job of reconstruction.

It was believed possible the toll of dead and injured might be somewhat larger than the official lists indicate, but the count remained at four dead here and thirteen at Senigallia, where the quake struck its heaviest blow. Public officials said in private they believed the Senigallia dead actually numbered 35 or more.

Some of Injured May Die.

Some of the injured probably will die, too, for harassed physicians despair of saving the lives of all the 300 officially listed among the casualties.

Meanwhile, homeless hundreds already today had relegated the excitement of the quake to the background of conversation, and the talk was all about the task of rebuilding and repairing which faced them now.

New communities of makeshift sheds have sprung up overnight and parts of the stricken towns and villages look like boom mining towns of the American west.

Line Up at Field Kitchens.

Temporary shelters of any kind have been built by those whose homes were wrecked by the earth shocks. Vast numbers of families who yesterday morning had a little stake in life today lined up in long queues to get a pot of soup or a tin of meat from army field kitchens.

There can be no government appropriation for reconstruction until the council ministers meet next week, but it is taken for granted there will be some auch plan as was adopted last July after the terrific quake in the Vultura region took 1,500 lives and caused enormous property damage.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31.—Purdue, champion of the western conference and still hopeful of a second title despite a one point defeat by Michigan, meets an inexperienced and crippled Illinois eleven in Memorial stadium tomorrow afternoon. The Boilermakers have defeated Iowa and Wisconsin this season, while Illinois has yet to gain a conference victory.

Regardless of title possibilities, Purdue has an opportunity to score its first triumph over the fighting Illini in 25 years. Moreover, if the Boilermakers win it will be the first time a team coached by Zuppke has lost to its neighboring rivals.

Purdue and Illinois began their competition in 1895 and have met 21 times on the gridiron. Fifteen games have been won by the Illini, three by Purdue, and on three occasions the score has been tied. In 1905 Purdue won its last victory, 24 to 0. Its other triumphs were registered in 1895, 6 to 0, and in 1899, 5 to 0.

Should Win Remaining Games.

If Purdue wins tomorrow it is favored to finish the season with five victories against one defeat for the remaining games are with Chicago and Indiana. The Boilermakers pin their championship hopes on the Gophers and Badgers, believing either may upset Northwestern, while Minnesota is the most serious opposition yet to face undefeated Michigan.

With favorable weather 30,000 are expected to watch tomorrow's battle. Four thousand will follow Purdue in the morning to the battle site, accompanied by the Boilermaker band.

Although clear skies are forecast, it is immaterial to the players, since the stadium gridiron is protected by a huge canvas coat from the weather's vagaries. The weather, however, does make considerable difference to Charles Bowen, football ticket manager, for attendance this year undoubtedly will fall far below the records in recent seasons. Northwestern did not attract the expected crowd, and if Illinois again fails of victory tomorrow the Ohio State game, which concludes the schedule here Nov. 22, also will sag below normal sales.

Need Miracle to Win.

Only a gridiron miracle can give Illinois a victory over Purdue tomorrow. Zuppke, while not giving up hope, has lost his optimism of the earlier part of the week, for he has seen a succession of injuries rob the Illini of its attack.

The squad came through the struggle at Michigan apparently in good condition. However, after one day's drill Olaf Robinson, ranking full back, was sent to the hospital for attention to his hip bruised in tackling Simrall, a tackle which put the Michigan leader on the retired list for several days. Robinson is the best defensive man on Zup's squad and with Hank Schumacher, center, has bolstered up the line against running plays.

Robinson will play, however, despite the injury. Then Hunter Russell, half back, and Cas Bennett, an end, were lost. Neither is expected to appear tomorrow. Arthur Schultz, Robinson's understudy, remains on the sidelines because of a sprained ankle tendon. John Snook, Aurora sophomore, is the only full back marked for duty without reservation.

Pete Yanuskus Back.

Russell's incapacity has brought Pete Yanuskus back to the varsity. Yanuskus is particularly weak on passes and Illinois lost to Northwestern and Michigan through inability to stop an air attack. Add to these misfortunes the fumbles and misplays typical of an inexperienced team and Zuppke's problem is apparent. At Michigan, a fumble presented the Wolverines with their first scoring opportunity, and a bad pass from center halted a second quarter attack on Michigan's four yard line.

Despite the blues, Illinois' spirit is excellent. The players possess sufficient ability plus a natural scrappiness to upset the Boilermakers barring mistakes. Zuppke has drilled all week on a defense for passes and tomorrow will test whether these efforts have been in vain.

Practice tonight was light, comparable to last night's workout on the stadium field and consisted of a com-

Roper's Last Season.

Bill Roper, head coach at Princeton, after the season closes, returns to Philadelphia as William W. Roper, attorney and member of the city council. Hereafter his football services to Old Nassau, if any, will be only occasional and advisory.

Roper was graduated in 1902 after serving on the football eleven, outfielder on the nine, and captain of the basket squad. His law degree was taken at the University of Virginia in 1908.

Except for 1909 at Missouri, Roper was Princeton's head coach from 1906 to 1911. Following the world war he was recalled by his alma mater. Since that time Princeton has beaten Yale six of eleven times, and vanquished Harvard before severance of athletic relations five times with one defeat and two ties. Princeton's record in this period was 52 victories, 11 ties, and 18 defeats, including two by Chicago, which the Tigers are out to avenge today to bring this particular intersectional series to two all.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Princeton's football hosts arrived in Chicago yesterday with a very definite purpose in mind. That purpose is to even up the intersectional series against Chicago when Tigers and Maroons meet this afternoon on Stagg field before 32,000 spectators, of whom 10,000 will be supporters of Old Nassau.

Defeat of Chicago is the immediate business at hand for this bunch of young fellows who in their street clothes actually look like collegians rather than a bunch of recruits, if one may use such a word as "recruit" in college football circles. Out on the field where they took final signal practice and unkinked their arms and legs after the train ride, these Princeton chaps also looked like a football team physically, enough so that one wondered how Navy scored five touchdowns against them last Saturday.

Eye Clash with Yale.

Back of this desire, this intention, and this confidence of beating Chicago, lies the Princeton main objective of the season, that annual clash with Yale at Princeton on Nov. 15.

As they trotted off the field after their workout, we said to Head Coach Bill Roper, "Why, that looks like a football team."

"That's what I have thought all season," he replied with the smile and affability which has made him a power in Philadelphia Republican politics and a member of the city council, for which duties he will retire as Tiger coach at the end of the present season.

"If we beat Chicago, we'll beat Yale," he continued. "We're a young team, intelligent, but not experienced. What we need is confidence."

Keyed to Beat Maroons.

That spirit is what Roper and his assistant coaches, including Al Wittmer, who will direct Princeton gridiron destinies in 1931, have imparted to the squad. So not only the memory of three previous hard fought Princeton-Chicago battles, of which the Maroons bagged two, but the thought of Yale in the offing will spur these easterners to give the Maroons a busy and interesting afternoon.

Football followers will understand the psychology of this situation. It is not lack of respect for Chicago nor underrating of the Maroons—memory of last year's "flanker" attack is too recent for that—but the feeling that there must be a start somewhere and this is the time, with only two more games on the Tiger schedule, one against Lehigh next Saturday.

The visitors arrived in the morning on a special train which also bore a delegation of alumni, including Jack Cleaves, the chap who in 1922 passed from behind his own goal line in the daring play which started the Tigers on their way to a 21 to 13 victory when the score was 13 to 7 against them in the fourth quarter.

Tuffy Griffith Wins Eight Round Decision Over Neron

Tuffy Griffith of Chicago won an eight round decision over George Neron, Greek heavyweight, in their fight at the Coliseum last night.

Neron was an easy target for Tuffy's left hooks in the first round, but midway in the session he forced Griffith to retreat from right hand shots.

Griffith was too experienced and ducked most of Ueron's leads in the second round, meanwhile whipping across his left hook. Tuffy pounded six rights under the heart in a half clinch, but caught a right to the jaw later. Neron was a bit shaky at the bell. In the third round a left hook staggered Nerson. Tuffy's right started landing on the jaw. Griffith had things his own way, landing to the head and body almost at will and making his heavier opponent miss frequently.

Neron fought his best in the fourth and they engaged in several spirited skirmishes. Tuffy plays dat attoo on the body and then jarred Neron with a right to the head. Griffith continued his sharpshooting tactics in the fifth round, shooting stiff lefts to the head and solid rights to the jaw.

Starting the sixth, the jabbed away for a while and then Griffith started sending in hard rights. After an exchange, Griffith's eye bled.

The seventh round also belonged to Griffith, who was forcing the fight and landing the cleaner punches. Griffith managed to duck under most of Neron's clubilke rights.

The judges in the main event were Ed Klein and E. A. Hintz. The referee was Phil Collins.

The attendance was estimated at 6,000 and the gate receipts at $10,500.

Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro heavyweight, beat Natie Brown of San Francisco in eight rounds. The crowd expected the western boy to fold up early, but Johnson's sharp punches could not find their mark. Johnson was the aggressor.

In the opening bout Jack Robinson of Cicero and Knute Dane of Denmark, heavyweights, went four rounds to a draw.

Buck Everett, winner in the intercity Golden Gloves tournament last winter, was knocked out in the third round by Marian Matuszak of Chicago. It was Everetts' pro debut. He failed to duck Matuszak's right, which floored him for a nine count in the first round and which put him down for the full count in the third.

Paul Pantaleo, Chicago Italian, pounded out an eight round decision over Harry Dillon of Winnipeg. The verdict was greeted with cheers and boos. Dillon kept forcing and made it a lively fight for a pair of heavies.

Wisconsin-Ohio Game Today a Flop, Box Office Mourns

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 31.—Something appears to be lacking from the warm-up for Ohio State's annual homecoming battle tomorrow. It may be the times or it may be that the prospect that the Buckeyes will be run all over the lot by the big Wisconsin boys has killed the interest. Anyway, there will be only about 35,000 present in the giant horseshoe which only a few years ago set the then high water attendance mark of more than 90,000. Intercollegiate football needs another stimulant of Red Grange's potency.

That Wisconsin will win by just as big a score as it can possibly pile up seems to be accepted as a certainty. The Badgers want to wipe out the gloom that settled over them when Purdue nosed them out by a lone point. Even the ardent Ohio backers, who a few years back were 100 per cent rabid, are making no claims.

Ohio Relies on Pass Attack.

Wisconsin, of course, admits it isn't worried, at least not about the outcome. Badger athletic officials, however, don't like the thoughts of a 35,000 crowd. Unless business picks up, the Wisconsin athletic department will be in the red at the end of the fiscal year. Other conference schools face the same predicament.

Whatever hope lingers that the Buckeyes might come through after their plasterings by Northwestern and Michigan centers around the forward pass game. The Ohioans have drilled for two weeks on this, with the idea that by going into the air and staying there when they get the ball they might outpoint their bruising cardinal clad foe.

There seems to be no expectancy that Wisconsin's line can be torn apart or its wing defense so turned in that a wide running attack will avail anything. The Badger line is supposed to be the best it has boasted in a decade and it probably is just that. Wisconsin also stopped, to a certain extent, Purdue's excellent pass attack.

Gantenbein a Great End.

Ohio's offense, so far as can be judged from the secrecy by which coaches endeavor to add to the importance of their efforts, is going to be mainly a matter of Wesley Fesler, who has an all-American rating of some variety. Fesler will act as an end on defense and probably as a full back on offense, and also will call signals. He will do most of the passing, and what he doesn't throw he'll probably try to catch, but the Badgers have been well drilled on the job of keeping him under leash.

Wisconsin will have a double purpose in trying to prevent depredation by the well publicized Fesler. First of these will be that Wisconsin will avoid hostile touchdowns if possible. The other will be that the Badgers themselves have an end for all honors of a sectional or national nature. He is Capt. Milt Gantenbein from La Crosse. Thus far this season he has deserved whatever has been said about him, and no particular effort has been made to give him undue publicity. Fesler's skill, of course, has been stressed by all reports out of the Buckeye camp.

Ohio will be handicapped, so it is thought, by the fact that three of its line stalwarts are not exactly tip-top physically. They are Bert Nasman, center; Sam Selby, a guard, and Bob Haubrich, a tackle. Williaman, the Buckeye coach, would like to start the trio, but probably will have to arbitrate the matter with himself by using only Haubrich at the kickoff. Haubrich has a bum shoulder and one play, if he starts, probably will be enough to unload him on the sidelines, as was the case when Fried had to relieve him in the struggle with Michigan.

Badgers to Unload Tricks.

That Wisconsin at the very start will reveal everything in its category and keep on going as well as the opposition permits became probable today because of hints dropped by Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite. He has been known as a coach who believed that a good defense was the best offense. It is thought that the happenings at Purdue last Saturday changed his theory. In that game the Badgers cut loose toward the finish and not only went 99 yards for one touchdown, but were on the trail of another when the final pistol barked. From now on Thistlethwaite is going after "them touchdowns" right from the jump.

TWO GOVERNORS BACK GREEN ON CHARITY GAMES

Kohler and Christianson Hit Big Ten's Stand.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Gov. Fred W. Green's efforts to arouse support of executives in six other states where Big Ten universities are located in favor of charity football games had resulted today in the backing of two.

Gov. Theodore J. Christianson of Minnesota telegraphed the Michigan governor as follows:

"I agree that the present emergency justifies a deviation from rules against post-season games, and I am communicating this opinion to the president of our university."

Gov. Kohler Backs Game.

Gov. Walter Kohler of Wisconsin wired Gov. Green, calling attention to his position on charity games as it appeared in newspapers prior to the Michigan leader's request. Gov. Kohler was on record as favoring a post-season game between the University of Wisconsin and Marquette university, the proceeds to go to charity.

The text of the message Gov. Green sent to the five executives follows:

"Because of the unusual economic situation now existing throughout the country, I respectfully urge that you immediately call upon the president of your state university to instruct his faculty committee on athletics to reconsider its action allowing a rule to block charity football games.

"The Big Ten committee on athletics has taken the attitude that no rule can be broken, or no precedent set even in this present emergency.

Raps Faculty Ruling.

"Let us join in urging the presidents of our universities to say that the Big Ten committee on athletics must stand aside and permit each university individually to pass upon the merit of charity football requests. Faculty rulings which stand in the way of public welfare should be abrogated. Ten professors should not permit a technicality to block any great university's opportunity to do a social service.

"You realize better than any other citizen of your state the deplorable situation in which hundreds of thousands of people find themselves. No rule governing a sport should stand between the unfortunate and a great help at such a time as this, when every good citizen led by our President is striving to be helpful.

"Will you join me in giving this matter your immediate attention?"

MICHIGAN VOTES TODAY

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—While letters, telegrams and petitions bearing 1,004 signatures reached the administrative and athletic offices of the University of Michigan today, the large majority of them favoring a postseason charity football game with the University of Detroit, indications this afternoon were that the board in control of athletics would turn its thumbs down on the proposal when it meets Saturday noon.

Members of the board refused to comment and President Alexander G. Ruthven of the university had not yet returned to the city, but the sentiment of officials seemed to be that the Western conference is opposed and that Michigan would hardly be playing fair by approving the proposal and shifting the responsibility to the conference faculty committee.

Of the numerous letters received today, only 51 were opposed to the game.

Stribling Knocks Out Christner in 2d Round

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling won from K. O. Christner, veteran Akron, O., heavyweight, by a technical knockout in the third round of their scheduled ten round bout here tonight.

Why Should Intellectuals Rule Sport?

BY ARCH WARD.

Governors of six states are giving their attention to what appears to have been another blunder in the administration of athletics in the Western conference.

Ten professors recently ruled that Chicago's poor were to be deprived of $150,000 because the donation would have violated a technicality which twice this season has been abrogated. The fund would have been used to help provide food, clothing, and shelter for a great city's unfortunates.

The public, whose taxes make possible the existence of state universities, is denouncing the Big Ten action. Governors say it was a mistake. Athletic directors were surprised at the faculty group's ruling. Nearly every one except the professors themselves regard it as an error.

Men high in collegiate athletics predict that the time is not far distant when the system of sport control will be changed. Either that or there will be no intercollegiate athletics. One university in the Big Ten already has gone on record as favoring abolition of faculty committees. It suggests that control of athletics be vested in the athletic department.

It seems that men like George Huff of Illinois, A. A. Stagg of Chicago, and Fielding H. Yost of Michigan ought to be able to run their departments without interference from a group of professors, most of whom have had no training in physical education. Athletic directors are members of the faculty. At none of these schools is the athletic director called to pass upon problems of the school of engineering, journalism, or commerce. Few would be prepared to give intelligent counsel.

The nature of the university protects professors from vicissitudes. They know little about every day life. They don't rub elbows with the man in the street. They are all intellectual. The world for them revolves about their particular orb.

Secrecy is their rule of action. A year ago they refused to tell why they had ousted the University of Iowa from their select group. Now they refuse to disclose their vote on an issue with a great charity at stake. They don't like to face competition. The only way you can measure their worth is by their degrees and number of credit hours. Almost anybody with perseverance could do equally well.

Isn't football and other forms of athletics part of the curriculum of education, not only physically, but mentally and emotionally as well? If so, shouldn't this department of the university be operated by men skilled in this particular line? Is it fantastical to presume that the president of a school could trust the head of an athletic department with responsibility for the conduct of the physical side of a boy's training?

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—Tscalpers are asking $25 a pair and $ for single tickets for the Minneso homecoming game against Northwestern tomorrow, and those who alreat have their tickets at regular rates a rejoicing at this sign of returning pr perity. Political candidates throu out the great northwest all are cla ing credit tonight for this healthy co dition.

What the scalpers have been doi since they last had the opportun to scalp for a football game is a qu tion beside the point. We can on hope they have been engaged in la ful pursuits. But whether or not th recent past has been pure they ha been out in force today, and oth forms of crime as a consequence we reported at low ebb in Minneapo today.

Mr. Hanley Makes Speech.

Dick Hanley and his Purple boys rived this morning in prime physi condition and after eating a lig breakfast Mr. Hanley went to wo on his radio speech, which he del ered at 7:30 tonight. Wit gestures, course, the gestures didn't regis over the radio, but they just went show how intense Dick is in the c rent emergency.

Of course Mr. Hanley knows th the betting on his lads is 3 to 1 their favor and he isn't denying th that is a good ratio, although mu of his effort since the Illinois debac some weeks back has been to ke the fellows from becoming overco fident.

Coach Crisler's poise rivals that Mr. Hanley, though, of course, words are not so index with optimis This afternoon, instead of getting secretive and everything, Fritz thr open the practice field to the studs body and 5,000 students and the ba responded to the invitation.

Each Knows Foe Well.

Each team seems to have more th the usual grasp of the other's strengt and weaknesses and, of course, b drilled with these things in view. Mi nesota has heard that the weake part of the Purple party is the ce ter of the line. Northwestern h heard that Minnesota has a line th is its strongest asset, but that th Gophers are not so hot on pass d fense. And so on. Tomorrow w shall see about all these reputa strengths and weaknesses.

The crowd of 54,000 which will pa Memorial stadium will include ma thousands of Minnesota homecomi and undergrads and a record group Northwestern followers, but ticket a plications have indicated that th also will be thousands of football fa who journey about the conference see the games involving possib champions.

Both Have 1,000 Rating.

Each of tomorrow's starters has 1,000 rating in the Big Ten percentag tables, but this fact alone doesn't mea so much. Importance is attached t the fact that Northwestern is rated favorite to win at least at the wil Michigan for the championship.

But we still think that the bi steamup is the old one of star There won't be a bug in the stadium tomorrow who won't have Han Bruder spotted from the minute h steps on the field, and there are othe reputed standouts who will be watched in their every move. Capt. Win Brockmeyer of Minnesota, for in stance, will be playing his last home game, and Win has a large following in this section.

Hanley will have another back field star besides Bruder making his first conference start of the year in Rob Russell, who did not get into the Illini game.

Both in Good Shape.

Physically, both teams are said to be in the best shape of the year, al though Hanley emitted a few moans because of casualties among his reserves.

Oliphant and Fencl are not feeling so good, it is said, and Eylar, under study to Baker, was left in Evanston because of a touch of blood poisoning. These things are not dwelt on at length by the Purple handlers because of the rejoicing over the fact that the first string back field, Bruder, Russell, Rentner, and Lee Hanley, will be intact when the opening whistle is sounded.

Fears of bad weather, which were pronounced Thursday and this morning, have been dispelled. The only look is for a perfect football day.

SOUND TAPS FOR CHICAGO'S 1930 RACING SEASON

Cog Air Beats Battle Ax in Final Feature.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Chicago's 153 day racing season ended at Hawthorne yesterday with 10,000 shivering racegoers at attention or at near attention when the bugler sounded taps. The racegoers had a right to shiver, for the weather was close to freezing and a strong wind from out of the north was sweeping through the clubhouse and stands and across the lawns. Even the horses seemed to be shaking from the elements as they went into the final battles.

When Cog Air from the stable of Mrs. R. Pollard of Texas won the Au Revoir handicap at a mile and a sixteenth it marked the end of the most notable racing season ever offered in Chicago, for all the great horses of the year have raced here. Gallant Fox clinched the 3 year old title in the Arlington Classic run at Arlington Park, Sun Beau laid claim to the all age championship when he won the Hawthorne cup, and some of the best 2 year olds in the land performed at different Chicago tracks during the season.

Sun Beau Fall Champion.

Sun Beau was the champion of the fall season at Hawthorne as a result of his brilliant victory in the Hawthorne cup. As a result of this triumph he made Willis Sharpe Kilmer, Binghamton, N. Y., sportsman, the leading owner with earnings of $33,300 to his credit. A. A. Baroni of Nevada was the leading trainer. He saddled 10 winners before shipping to California nearly a week ago. Willie Johns was the champion jockey, having kicked home 39 winners before he left for the far west, five days before the Hawthorne season ended.

Racing in Chicago has been as successful as it has been any place in America this year. Attendance figures were slightly off from the year previous and the betting handle was off even more than the attendance. But according to the statistics from the various turf centers the game in Chicago held up better than it did in New York, Maryland, and Kentucky.

Cog Air Pays $6.52.

Cog Air, paying $6.52 in the mutuels, had little trouble heading the band of overnight handicappers which trailed him home in the Au Revoir. Jockey Buddy Hanford sent him to the front as the struggle started and never left the result in doubt, although Hanford was at the whip hard in the last sixteenth, where Cog A shook off the stubborn Battle Ax and went on to win by two lengths. Tonto Rock, the favorite, was never able to keep up with the two leaders and was badly beaten, even though he was able to save the show money.

There was none of those long shot getaway specials, which are usually expected on the final day of a racing season. Jim Shanahan, a 3 year old from the stable of Dr. L. M. Holmes of New Orleans, almost turned out to be such a horse, but he was beaten by Orestes II. in the third race of six furlongs. Jim Shanahan sort of cheered up the getaway crowd when he paid $74.40 to place and $44.52 to show. Orestes II. was a 10 to 1 shot in the betting.

TWO RICH STAKES ON LAUREL RACE PROGRAM TODAY

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The 1930 racing season is nearing an end, but such is not evident in Maryland where $35,000 will be distributed in two stakes at Laurel tomorrow.

In fall racing Maryland attracts the class of the thoroughbreds in training. Tomorrow is no exception with 13 three year olds named to go to the post in the $25,000 Washington handicap and the same number of juveniles slated to answer the bugle call in the $10,000 added Spalding Lowe Jankins handicap.

Chance for Sun Beau.

The Washington handicap, run over a mile and a quarter, offers another opportunity for Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau to strengthen his claim to the handicap division championship. The five year old son of Sunbriar has been asked to pack the heavy impost of 126 pounds.

Latonia offers the $5,000 Fort Thomas handicap for two year olds with 13 starters, while Empire City will feature the $4,000 Scarsdale handicap, which has attracted seven runners of all ages for a mile and 70 yards.

Players of long shots had their innings on all of the four major tracks today, but the best thing of the day was the victory of Backwoodsman in the first race at Laurel. The two year old went over at the long odds of $134.50 for a $2 mutuel ticket. In the Savage claiming handicap Chatover, from the E. F. Woodward barn, made good and paid $18.80 for $2.

James Rides Second.

Eugene James has scored in two features this week with Johnson N. Camden horses, but failed today when Camden's Honey Locust ran second to C. Bunteis' Starboard Light in the halloween purse at Latonia.

Phil H. Sams' Floesine, on a track to her liking, easily scored in the third race at Empire City. After receding in the betting from 3 to 1 to 11 to 5, she rushed away to an early lead and at the finish was four lengths in front of Don Pedro, with Captain Hook third.

EXPECT HARD GAME

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Purdue's football squad seems to be a doubting Thomas as far as the bear stories from Illinois are concerned. In tonight's final tapering drill for the clash with the Illini at Champaign tomorrow afternoon, the entire Boilermaker troupe made it evident that it is taking the game seriously and expects to bump up against an Illinois eleven of vastly different spirit from the group that was trounced by Northwestern.

The Purdue squad of 35 players will leave here tomorrow morning by special train, arriving in Champaign just in time to dress for the game. The squad that will make the trip follows:

Batteman, Boswell, Buttner, Calvert, Chasey, Christman, Dornte, Fassler, Helmer, Hoagland, Horstman, Huguenard, Husar, Janecek, Keegan, Kissell, Merz, Miller, Montanus, Moon, Moss, Oehler, Pope, Purvis, Risk, Sherbeck, Stears, Trimble, Ungers, Van Bibber, Volnoff, Weaver, Westerman, White, Yunevich.

Hunters Warned to Be Wary of Rabbit Fever

BY BOB BECKER.

The scientists are sounding another warning against tularaemia as the opening of the rabbit season in Illinois draws near. Dr. Lloyd Hunter of the University of Illinois College of Medicine has just sent out such a warning to hunters, with the added prediction that tularaemia is apt to be more prevalent than it was last year. It's sad news to cottontail shooters, because rabbit hunting is lots of fun and the crop is good this year.

Rabbit fever or tularaemia is a disease which can be and is transmitted to men. It is caused by a bacterium which makes the rabbit a natural host. Last year Illinois had 29 cases of the disease on record, an increase of six over the previous year.

Lawrence and Livingstone counties led in 1929 with four cases each. Other counties reporting one or more cases of tularaemia were as follows: Clark, Coles, Crawford, Effingham, Franklin, Jefferson, Kane, Knox, Macoupin, Montgomery, Richland, Wayne, and Williamson.

In calling attention to the spread of the rabbit fever in this state Dr. Arnold said a few days ago:

"One way to prevent tularaemia is to avoid contact with the infected carcass, infected woodticks, and the contaminated horsefly, as the latter can transmit the disease.

"The disease is transmitted from rabbit to rabbit by ticks and flies. These infected ticks can cause the fever when they bite man. But the common means of infections in man is to dress or handle a rabbit infected with disease."

Here is an important point to remember about tularaemia. You can get the disease merely by touching an infected rabbit. Formerly it was thought that one could pick up the germs only through an open wound.

Hunters should kill but leave untouched any cottontail that shows little inclination to get out of their way. It's probably a sick specimen. In other words, a "set up" shot at a sluggish, dopey, pepless rabbit is all right, but leave the animal alone or better yet, bury it. Chances are that a lively rabbit, that flushes and goes bouncing away in true cottontail style, is well and sound. But by all means avoid the other kind. They may have tularaemia and probably have. The disease in man has been known to linger a year and some deaths have been reported from it.

BY HOWARD BARRY.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 31.—South Bend folks are frolicking through a Halloween festival tonight, but the boys on the Notre Dame campus, off to the north of town, haven't the spirit at all. Nobody has come forward to tell the football team that eleven goblins from Indiana will get 'em tomorrow if they don't watch out.

A total lack of awe and trembling is apparent in the student body, and this is rather scandalous when one reflects that two ancient rivals are always expected to regard one another with something akin to fear. This being Halloween, some public spirited students might at least carve eleven pumpkins to the likeness of the Indiana boys and hold these up to the windows of the football players while they shout "Boo" ferociously and with emphasis. But no such goings on are planned, so the Irish will have to go into battle here tomorrow totally unscared.

Opportunity for Bear Story.

It is very mystifying why the cheer leaders have overlooked the opportunity for a gigantic pep meeting when one considers the wealth of material available for bear stories. For instance, one might begin something like this:

"Well, fellows, remember how Indiana tied us in '07? Remember how they licked us in '06? You all know how history repeats itself. Well, if it hasn't repeated itself in 23 years when do you think it's going to repeat itself? Why, tomorrow, of course. But are we licked yet? No, we're not licked yet; not till the last whistle blows. Now, fellows——"

The general spirit of relaxation is not to be interpreted as a sign of disrespect for sincere foes who will do their best against rather discouraging odds. But facts are facts and even Indiana supporters will say that, judging from past performances, their boys are likely to get little more satisfaction out of the afternoon than the knowledge that they've kept a date.

Rockne Thinks He'll Win.

Here's what Coach Rockne has to say:

"I believe that we'll win, but I have all the respect in the world for these Indiana boys. They've frequently popped up with victories which were totally unexpected—for instance the year they licked Minnesota, the conference leader. If we let down very much they're liable to take us."

Rockne plans to start the second string, but it is expected that the regulars will go in for at least a quarter, regardless of the score. Jaskwhich, Koken, O'Connor, and Mullins will make up the starting back field, though Rockne wants it understood that he doesn't consider Mullins a second stringer.

The regulars are completing the softest week of the training season as the plan has been to get the shock troops in shape to win without calling for help.

Expect Only 15,000.

Snow fell today, melting as it reached the ground, but tarpaulins prevented any damage to the field. The game is not expected to draw much more than 15,000 spectators.

The Hoosiers are not looked for until tomorrow as Coach Page plans to have his men spend the night in Hammond. It is said that Indiana will depend on a mystifying variety of plays and a fighting spirit.

Indiana Is Honored

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Contrary to former custom, the Indiana university football team remained here for practice this afternoon and left at midnight to play Notre Dame's flashy grid squad tomorrow.

Coach Pat Page took 31 men on the trip. In regard to the game he said: "Our men realize it is a great honor to play the national champions. We don't concede them a thing. I'm sure that we will be able to give a good account of ourselves. All it takes is eleven men to stop every play."

Indiana reserves will play Notre Dame B team in Memorial stadium here tomorrow.

DETROIT TO SEEK 5TH WIN AGAINST HAWKEYES TODAY

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Thirty-three University of Iowa football players reached Detroit early today for their game with University of Detroit tomorrow afternoon. Barring unfavorable weather at least 25,000 spectators will watch the battle.

A wet field will favor the Hawkeyes, as they not only have a heavier team but Detroit plays best on a dry field.

Dorais Makes Charge.

Coach Dorais of Detroit said he would make one change in the regular lineup. Anthony Nader, right guard, was kicked in the knee in scrimmage Monday and his place will be taken by George Hess, a junior.

Although the Hawkeyes have not played for two weeks, three of their regulars may watch tomorrow's engagement from the sidelines. A sprained shoulder promises to keep Jim Hay, left end, on the bench and it is doubtful whether George Rogge, right end, will be able to play because of a "charley horse." Ray Story is due to replace Hay with Gus Mastrogany at the other flank.

First Hawk Road Game.

The game will be the first Iowa has played away from home this season and Detroit will be trying for its fifth successive victory of 1930.

The probable lineup:

U. OF DETROIT.		IOWA.
Wrathel	L.E.	Mastrogany
Metras	L.T.	Benjamin
Weiss	L.G.	Tompkins
Fitzpatrick	C.	Dolly
Hess	R.G.	Riordon
Masucci	R.T.	Ely
Hackett	R.E.	Rogge (C.)
Parasca	Q.B.	Lloyd Jenvold
O'Neill	L.H.	Nelson
Berg	R.H.	Leo Jenvold
Storen (C.)	F.B.	Sansen

Referee—Jos. Madigrohn (Michigan). Umpire — H. G. Hedges (Dartmouth). Field judge—Jack Dunn (Michigan). Head linesman—Arlie Mucks (Wisconsin).

COE, CORNELL STUDENTS RIOT ON EVE OF GAME

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Police are guarding the campuses at Coe college here and Cornell college at Mount Vernon tonight to prevent a repetition of the riot at Mount Vernon this morning in which several Coe students received black eyes and skinned shins when they attempted to paint "Beat Cornell" on the sidewalks of Mount Vernon.

The Coe students were forced to wipe off the paint while the Cornell supporters deflated the tires of their cars. A general fight followed. While the trouble was going on at Mount Vernon, students from Cornell were using yellow paint on the Coe campus. The annual football game will be played tomorrow.

Navy, West Virginia Wesleyan Clash Today

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Navy and West Virginia Wesleyan football squads went through limbering up drills this afternoon in preparation for their clash here tomorrow. The Wesleyan team arrived early in the day and was reported to be in first class condition. Kirn, Navy's star half back, is ready to play if needed, but may be rested for the Ohio State game next week.

Loyola and De Paul End Drills for Benefit Game Tomorrow

A three hour workout yesterday concluded Loyola university's preparation for its meeting with De Paul in the benefit football game at Soldiers' field tomorrow. Two hours were spent drilling on fundamentals and then as it grew dark the stadium lights were switched on and another hour was spent brushing up offensive plays.

The back field which Coach Eddie Norton had working out on the varsity team was vastly different from the quartet which started the season for the Ramblers. Capt. Les Molloy, at left half, was the only back who was a regular at the opening of the season.

Furchess at Quarter.

Steve Furchess was at quarter, Tommy Howland at right half, and Vic Napolilli at full. The same line that played against Coe last week will start against the Blue Demons.

De Paul culminated its workouts with a long dummy scrimmage and drill on aerial defense. Gene Murphy, former St. Mel High school player, was shifted to right tackle on the first team, replacing Hal Cherne, whose defense play has not satisfied Coach Eddie Anderson.

Borelli vs. Cowhey.

Frank Hamilton, veteran of 1929, will be at left tackle. Capt. Paddy Driscoll will start at center. McLean's consistent work will make him a certain selection for right guard. However it has not been announced whether Bud Borelli or Emmet Cowhey will start at right guard. An injury will keep Eddie Lyons from starting at left end. Coan and Jim O'Connor will be at the flank positions but Lyons and Cullen will probably see action before termination of the contest.

More than 50,000 saw the teams play last year when Loyola won, 13 to 0. Loyola also won, 7 to 0, the year before, while De Paul was a 13 to 0 victor in 1927.

Tigers Out to Square Series with Maroons

Bill Roper, Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick, Assistant Coaches Al Wittmer of the '22 eleven, Stan Keck, e all-American tackle, who played against Chicago in 1921; Ned Poe of the famous Poe family, who was quarter back in 1897; Jack Winn, Jake Slagle, and Gene Blake.

After luncheon at Hotel Windermere East, headquarters, the team indulged in its workout and then those who so elected were taken in closed cars on a sightseeing trip over the city boulevards. Coach Roper decided it was better for the boys to choose between a movie or rest in the evening rather than be guests of honor at the Princeton banquet at Hotel Stevens.

Maroons followed their foes of tomorrow onto the gridiron for their final drill to nurse their hopes of winning their first major victory of the season.

Maroons Recall Last Year.

It was upsetting Princeton at about this time last year that heartened the Maroons for the final effort in which the strong University of Washington team was buried under an avalanche of passes. Absence of Capt. Van Nice, best offensive Maroon, militates materially against chance of such repetition.

Chicago alumni and sympathizers will turn out in greater numbers than at any time this season. To them, this is still a football game against Princeton, and, win or lose, it is a great occasion.

Brookins, Olympic Hurdler, Marries at Valparaiso

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Charles Brookins, Olympic hurdler and assistant coach at the University of Iowa, and Miss Dorothy Cobey, Iowa City, Ia., were married here today. They left for Detroit, where Iowa plays Detroit Saturday.

FRANKFORD AND IMPROVED CARDS HERE TOMORROW

The Cardinals will have their full strength for the first time this season when they meet the Frankford Yellowjackets at Comiskey park tomorrow. Howard Maple, quarter back, and Ernie Nevers, full back, whose playing has been retarded by injuries all season, are in excellent physical condition again.

Gene Rose and Bullet Baker will complete the Cardinals' back field. Belden and Boyd will be held in reserve.

Among players on the Yellowjackets' team is Clyde Crabtree, one of the greatest open field runners in the American professional league. The occasion will be known as McDonough day in honor of Joe McDonough, who was a Cardinal rooter back in the days when Cris O'Brien started pro football on the south side.

IOWA FIGHTER DIES; OPPONENT HELD BLAMELESS

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Chuck Patterson, Wisner, Neb., middleweight, today was absolved from blame in the death of Sammy Disalvo, 20, Council Bluffs, Ia., boxer, who died this morning from the effects of a blow suffered in his bout with Patterson last night.

The fatal blow, a hard righthand punch, was delivered near the end of the third round. Patterson had just regained his feet after taking a 9 count. He swung wildly and connected, the punch landing in the pit of Disalvo's stomach. Disalvo, almost helpless, survived the round.

Elkville Runs Up 110 to 0 Score on Pinckneyville

Duquoin, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Elkville High school football team defeated Pinckneyville by a score of 110 to 0 here last night. Elkville was never forced to punt.

ALEX WOOD, NEW GOALIE, REPORTS TO BLACKHAWKS

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Alex. Wood, new goal tender of the Chicago Blackhawks, reported to Coach Dick Irvin today and took part in the workout. Wood, a native of western Canada, looked exceptionally good in the Hawks' net and will be understudy for Chuck Gardiner.

Harold March, right wing for the Chicago sextet, gives promise of being the sensation of the National Hockey league this coming season. March has developed more speed than ever and in the workout was outstanding. He is a great stick handler and effective around the nets.

Four Sets of Forwards.

The forward line, with March, right wing; Somers, center, and Arbour, left wing, worked smoothly, and in the scrimmage against Ingram, Des Jardines, and Rommes won, 3 to 1.

Four complete forward lines and three pairs of defense men make it necessary for the team to work in relays. Taffy Abel, the giant defense player, was in old time form. He used his body to check opposing forwards and did considerable offensive work. Teddy Graham paired up with Marvin Wentworth on defense.

Face London Friday.

The Blackhawks will continue daily workouts until Thursday. On Friday they will stage their first exhibition game against London and will jump to Cleveland to meet the Indians, last year's International league champions. Saturday. On Nov. 11 they will complete their exhibition series when they face the Windsor Bulldogs in Windsor.

WESLEYAN FACES EUREKA; NORMAL PLAYS TEACHERS

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan will seek its third Little Nineteen conference football victory here tomorrow against Eureka college. A second team will start for Wesleyan and several freshmen will receive their baptism under conference fire.

Illinois State Normal entertains Western State Teachers here tomorrow with a varsity team greatly changed from that of a week ago. All of the ineligibles and those placed on probation for violations of training rules are now back in the good graces of the faculty. Twenty of the first squad were suspended a week ago, but they all remained every night for practice in order to be ready for the game this week end.

DADS HAVE DAY ON U. OF ILLINOIS CAMPUS TODAY

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Hundreds of fathers of students enrolled in the University of Illinois from Chicago and suburbs will be among the several thousand who invade the campus tomorrow for the eleventh annual Dads' day celebration which opened tonight with a pep meeting and a men's glee club concert. The main attraction of this year's celebration will be the Purdue-Illinois football game tomorrow afternoon.

A business meeting of the county chairman of the Dads' association will be held tomorrow morning and the annual meeting of the organization will take place at night. Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, who assumed the presidency of the university last July, will address the dads and explain his aims for the future. Oscar Carlstrom, attorney general of Illinois, also will speak. Various sorts of entertainment have been planned for the visitors.

TIM MARA TELLS OF DEAL TO GET TUNNEY MATCH

Says Champion Offered Him 10% of Purse.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Tim Mara, broad shouldered sports promoter, told the story of his relations with Gene Tunney on the witness stand today in Supreme Court Justice Hasting's court.

Mara, who is suing Tunney for $405,000, testified about a conference with the boxer a few days after Tunney had won the heavyweight championship of the world from Jack Dempsey. It was at this conference, he said, that Tunney refused to pay up on a contract made six months before.

Suing for 10 Per Cent.

Mara is suing Tunney for 10 per cent of his $200,000 purse in the first Dempsey match and 25 per cent of his earnings as champion. This alleged agreement was the subject of a stormy interview in Mara's office a week after the fight.

"Gene was very agitated and he kept running his fingers through his hair," Mara said, "and in a loud voice he said to me, 'how can I afford to pay you 25 per cent, Billy Gibson 25 per cent, and that 25 per cent that Gibson tied me up for in Philadelphia?'

"'Gene,' I said, 'don't you know what we agreed on in this office? Can't you realize what I've done for you?'

Can't Afford It, Tunney Says.

"'Well,' Gene said, 'I can't afford to pay it.'"

That "25 per cent that Gibson tied me up for in Philadelphia" has not been mentioned in the suit and Mara gave no explanation of the phrase. Sports fans, however, recalled that several years ago the famous Max [Boo-Boo] Hoff sued Tunney and Gibson, his manager, for a similar percentage.

Mr. Hoff is known as a racketeer and political power in Philadelphia and it has been reported that Tunney cut him in on his purse to make sure that he got a square deal from the officials there.

Tunney Lawyers Score.

Tunney and his lawyers landed a sound punch late in the afternoon when Emory R. Buckner, the ex-champion's attorney, handed the witness what purported to be a contract signed between the boxer and Tex Rickard, obligating Tunney to fight Jack Dempsey. This alleged contract was signed in January, 1926. That was three months before Tunney met Mara in the promoter's New York office and, according to Mara's claim, hired him to negotiate a match with Dempsey.

Mara contends that he was retained not to bring the match to New York City, as Tunney claims, but to land it for Tunney anywhere.

Mara insisted that he had never seen the Rickard contract and stuck to his story that the job for which he was to be paid nearly $500,000 was to "cooperate, advise and assist" Tunney in getting a match with Dempsey.

Tunney Sought Match.

Tunney, ploughing toward the title in 1926, believed that Jack Dempsey was through and that the first good man who met him would win the championship. It was for this reason he is said to have played with political influence in a desperate effort to get the match.

This was revealed through a series of telegrams and letters from Tunney in Hollywood to Mara in New York.

RESUME CHICAGO STOCK TRADES IN DIGGS CO. ISSUES

Suspended Utilities Open Sharply Lower.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks sold off again yesterday on the Chicago exchange in a market characterized chiefly by its listless trade. While a few new low quotations were set, the spread from the previous closing quotations was narrow except in the case of the three issues sponsored by E. R. Digge & Co., which were traded in again after several days of inactivity.

Dealing in the stocks was suspended last week just a few hours before a receiver was named for the Diggs concern. Prices at which the issues were exchanged yesterday broke sharply from the previous quotations. Inland Utilities, which had dropped from 17 to 12 last week previous to the suspension, was quoted between 8¾ and 7¼, the last sale being made at the latter price. Twin States Gas slipped to 3¾ and finished the day at 4, as compared with its previous price of 10½. Midland Natural Gas, whose previous low for the year was 10, sold as low as 2, then recovered to finish at 5¼.

Banking Support.

Trading in the stocks was reopened despite the fact that no additional banking support has been gained for the issues. While it was reported several days ago that a strong group was buying into the companies, official announcement of such action has not been forthcoming. Because the United Founders group was known to hold blocks of the stock of two of the firms it was thought not unlikely that the issues would win some new market support.

Insull stocks displayed fairly good resistence to the selling and finished the session with minor losses. In the higher priced shares the recessions ran as high as 5 points and among the cheaper stocks kept around a point.

Grigsby-Grunow broke through 5 for the first time this year, but recovered to finish at its previous low. Majestic ranged between 15 and 16 on comparatively light sales.

Move Counter to Trend.

In a few isolated instances stocks were able to move counter to the general trend. Quaker Oats was an example, moving ahead 2 points on a 500 share volume.

With most of the dealing in the stock centered in New York, Auburn received little attention, but a block of 100 shares was sold during the afternoon at 66, 4 points under previous day's quotation and a new minimum price for the year.

Lincoln Printing company yesterday reported net profit for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $515,827, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.49 a share on the 175 shares of common stock, as compared with $440,5gg, or $2.04 a share in the corresponding period of 1929.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Chicago curb stocks reflected liquidation all along the line yesterday. Commonwealth Edison rights were the center of attention, easing fractionally, while Public Service rights sagged over a point.

G. M. C. DIVIDEND SEEMS ASSURED, EARNINGS HINT

Third Quarter Net Is $25,470,697.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The General Motors corporation issued its quarterly report last night. While it showed a sharp decline in earnings, which was a foregone conclusion in view of the depressed condition of the automobile industry, still it left little doubt that the premier motor concern will both earn and pay its present dividend rate this year.

ALFRED P. SLOAN.

Net earnings for the third quarter of this year were $25,470,697, equivalent after preferred dividends to 53 cents a share on the common stock. This compared with $53,386,768, or $1.17 a share, in the second quarter and with $70,988,025, or $1.58 a share, in the third quarter of 1929.

Net earnings for the nine months this year totaled $131,403,125, equivalent to $2.85 a share on the common stock. Thus, the company needs to earn only 15 cents a share during the current quarter to cover its annual $3 dividend.

Nonrecurring Profit.

However, net earnings this year include a nonrecurring profit derived from the sale of General Motors common stock to the General Motors Management corporation. Without this profit, net earnings would have been $123,826,052, or $2.68 a share. Net earnings for the first nine months of 1929 totaled $222,848,335, or $4.96 a share on the common stock.

"The progress of the corporation cannot be measured entirely by these results," President Alfred P. Sloan Jr. commented. "Two additional factors of greater relative importance this year than last year, are: First, General Motors obtained a larger percentage of total automobile business, as measured by new car registrations, than in 1929 and in August obtained over 26 per cent; second, net profit is not greatly out of line with volume of production.

"While earnings have declined when compared to 1929, I believe the General Motors organization has established an operating record more outstanding than in previous years. We have an appreciation of the necessity of continuing the efforts we have put forth during this period. Any organization which will recognize this job and accomplish it is bound to enter the next forward movement with an attitude of mind and an intensity of purpose and effectiveness that will enable it in every sense to justify its existence."

Reduces Inventories.

Mr. Sloan also pointed out that inventories of raw materials and finished products have been reduced from $188,472,999 to $113,530,106 in the last nine months, stocks of cars throughout the world have decreased 42,851 and working capital has been increased to $285,771,740 from $251,287,782. Cash and marketable securities stand at $202,064,960, compared with $127,351,530 on Dec. 31, 1929.

While General Motors dealers in the United States took only 896,329 cars in the nine months this year, compared with 1,361,086 a year ago, their sales to consumers were 900,207 this year, compared with 1,271,275 last year. Total domestic and foreign sales this year have totaled 1,008,597, compared with 1,675,964 in the same period last year.

Although commercial activities have failed so far to measure up to seasonal expectations, some encouraging signs in business have developed and more hopeful view of the outlook is taken by R. G. Dun & Co. in its weekly summary.

Hopeful Auguries.

Pointing to the severity and breadth of the readjustment, the report contends that "fluctuation in the weekly rate of activity in any given line is of less importance than underlying forces which determine basic trends. Progress in the latter connection does not yet show in the principal statistical barometers, but the closer balancing of production with consumption, the working off of some surplus stocks of goods, the naming of more attractive prices, and the efforts to mitigate unemployment are among the hopeful auguries.

"In the main, there has been a better sentiment in financial circles, while markets for the great agricultural staples, although highly sensitive to speculative influences, have moved with diminished violence. Any turn to great stability in prices for commodities would be advantageous to trade uplift."

Merger Plan of Thomas Clock Includes Holding Co.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—Terms for the proposed merger of Seth Thomas Clock company and Western Clock company, on which stockholders will vote Nov. 12, include the formation of a holding company and the exchange of shares of this new company for those of the existing companies.

Estimate U. S. Oil Output Sept. at 70,977,000 Brls.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Production of petroleum in the United States during September was estimated by the bureau of mines today at 70,977,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,366,000. This was 49,000 barrels a day less than August and 549,000 under the daily average production for September last year.

Utility Executive Prefers Family to Corp. Farming

BY SCRUTATOR.

Farming on the mass production scale, with big corporations hiring agriculture labor and directing it with high powered executives, has been advocated as a means promising prosperity. But the almost unanimous voice of the American public has rejected this solution.

Our legal enactments are directed toward the preservation of unit, family worked farming as a mode of living as well as a means of gaining a livelihood. It has not, in fact, been clearly demonstrated that this is a less efficient way to get agricultural production than the chain or the corporation farm.

There have been isolated instances where, favored by special conditions of land tenure and complete use of machinery, capitalists have been able to show that crops like wheat can be sent to market more cheaply even than is necessary to meet the present low prices. How low these are may be shown by a quotation from Lamson Bros. & Co., a Board of Trade firm, which asserted yesterday that the purchasing power of the September, 1930, bushel of cash wheat was lower than the average purchasing power of a bushel in any other year since 1840.

Popularity Doubtful.

Even if such exceptions were to become typical, it is doubtful if the big scale operation would be popular. The opposition comes from widely divergent sources. During the last week Chairman Legge of the farm board declared it was not necessary to go to the corporation extreme to solve the production problem. Yesterday Dempster MacMurphy, vice president of the Middle West Utilities company, told an audience of Texans interested in agriculture that the public utilities were engaged in something like a holy war to preserve the ideal of one family happy on one farm, with rural electrification as a pertinent aid.

Mr. Legge admitted that the farming units in many cases were too small. He quoted other authorities who believe that 400 acres is the minimum from which a middle western producer can get the full benefit of machine methods in cultivating small grains or corn, while 800 acres would be needed for wheat growing in Montana. Combinations to reach such size, Mr. Legge indicated, might have to be made to get low costs; beyond these nothing.

Individual Enterprise.

The utility executive said that the suggestion for corporation farming, or concentration in gang worked estates such as proved the ruin of Egypt and Rome, came at at time when keen engineers and economists were growing doubtful of the efficiency of the largest scale industry.

Maximum social service, he asserted, depended on individual enterprise, and even if it could be demonstrated that corporations were more efficient than single farmers, or that government ownership of utilities was better than private on the efficiency rating basis, Americans would still be in favor of the more individualistic program.

"Efficiency Made for Man."

"The American spirit is not idolatrous of mere efficiency," he said. "Although we talk business and efficiency all the time, our hearts are moved by other ideals. Although we rarely say it, we know that efficiency was made for man—not man for efficiency."

This philosophy is recognizably that of the advocate of the family farm. From a utility executive it has rather an odd ring. It might be taken as an earnest that American business is striving in a practical way toward the goal that dreamers want to reach at once. It is certainly an additional evidence that one of our largest utility enterprises wants to see corporation farming squelched.

GILLETTE RAZOR DIRECTORS DENY PROFIT ON STOCK

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The directors of the Gillette Safety Razor company in a statement issued today denied that any of them had made a profit from the sale of stock to the company, as charged in a bill of equity filed by a group of minority stockholders yesterday.

The directors said they had repaid the corporation the purchase price of the stocks, with interest, after the decline in the market price of the stock that followed its sale. The minority stockholders in their bill held the directors liable for $8,566,840 damages and for impairment to the company's capital of $13,000,000.

"With respect to Mr. Gillette, who is seriously ill in California and has not been able to attend any meeting of the board for a long time," the directors' statement said, "he was persuaded by representatives of the corporation against his wishes to sell the company some of the shares in which he is interested."

The bill filed yesterday charged that King C. Gillette made $1,000,000 profit from selling the company 20,000 shares of stock at a high price.

BOND MARKET IS IRREGULAR, TRENDING DOWN

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Moving out of its narrow trading rut, the bond market again developed highly irregular tendencies today and closed the month much as it began it, with a downward trend in evidence.

Ignoring further evidence of the ease of money given in the reduction of 5 and 6 months bill rates to July levels, the majority of active domestic issues moved lower and gains where they occurred were small fractions. The sharp reactions in railroad bonds had the appearance of week-end realizing and some genuine liquidation was influenced by a sagging stock market.

The forword pace of foreign bonds slowed up. German bonds and some of the Latin American issues that have been strong reacted.

While activity in United States governments diminished, the upward trend was maintained. Liberty 1st 4¼s set a new high at 102 22-32nds. Treasury 4s were soft. Strength of governments which more than any other investments accurately reflect the trend of money rates has been the strong feature of the week's trading.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

A. G. Dixler, vice president of the National Biscuit company, is quoted in the current issue of Printers' Ink, in an article on "Weathering the Depression," as saying that in 32 years of national prosperity and depression the company has steadfastly pursued the same policies year after year. "We advertise steadily," he said.

Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and First National Studios plan to reopen within 30 days to begin production of the 1931 picture program, which calls for 40 to 50 feature pictures each.

September's demand for gasoline was 37,823,000 barrels, an increase of 9 per cent over September, 1929.

A New York City budget of $620,540,183.37, the largest in the city's history, for 1931 was adopted yesterday by the board of estimate.

Agricultural income for the current year will fall roughly $2,400,000,000, or 19 per cent, under that of 1929, Standard Statistics company estimates in a survey.

Charles E. Denney, president of the Erie railroad, said that constructive elements now at work will bring about a gradual and well sustained recovery in business before many months. The Erie, he said, is spending $30,000,000 this year for improvements, new equipment, and maintenance.

The Royal Bank of Canada has engaged $1,000,000 in gold to be shipped to Canada, bringing the total movement to $6,000,000 in three days.

Eastern Air Transport, Inc., announced yesterday that all records for air mail poundage in the history of the New York-Atlanta-Miami line were broken during October. A total of 61,091 pounds were carried. The largest amount heretofore carried was 58,591 pounds in May.

Seasonal increases in retail and wholesale trade and a promising outlook for the Florida citrus crop were reported in the monthly review of the Sixth federal reserve banking district.

Natural gas has been turned into the major part of the new 390 mile pipe line system of the Albuquerque Natural Gas company, subsidiary of Southern Union Gas, according to an announcement made by T. F. Murchison, president.

Eugene L. Norton, president, in a letter to stockholders said third quarter earnings of the Freeport Texas company were in excess of the quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock.

The radio show held last week helped to stimulate radio sales in general, believes L. T. Johnson, Chicago branch manager of the Brunswick Radio corporation. "There has been an increased activity in radio sales since the show," states Mr. Johnson.

The furniture industry is showing marked seasonal improvement, according to the September bulletin prepared by Seidman & Seidman, certified public accountants.

Manufacturers of domestic oil burners are enjoying the most prosperous year in the history of the industry, it was revealed at the quarterly meeting of the directors of the American Oil Burner association. Sales for the first nine months of this year were reported more than 11 per cent ahead of those in the same period in 1929.

Trading in butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange during October established a monthly volume record for this year and lacked only 200 cars of beating the all time monthly record. There were 5,270 cars of butter sold, a total of over 100,000,000 pounds, with a monetary value of $34,687,656. For the year to date 28,421 cars have been sold. Egg trading showed a total of 5,451 cars for the month and the total trading of 10,721 cars of both butter and eggs has been exceeded only three times previously in the history of the exchange.

BELIEVE DECISION ON SINCLAIR-PRAIRIE OIL COMBINE IS NEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—It is understood that negotiations long pending between the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation and the Prairie Oil and Gas company looking to a merger have been actively renewed following the recent return of H. F. Sinclair from Europe. According to information obtained today, the prospects of an early agreement on terms are better than at any previous time since the discussions started. Whatever the outcome, it is expected that a decision either for or against the deal will be reached shortly.

The way was paved for the resumption of the discussions when the Sinclair Consolidated Oil company's sale of its interest in the Sinclair Pipe Line company and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was ratified by Sinclair stockholders on Sept. 17. The Sinclair Consolidated received $72,400,000 cash for that interest, making a profit of about $28,000,000 on the original investment.

Until it had sold its pipe line and oil purchasing organizations there was no point in acquisition by the Sinclair of the Prairie companies. Now that it has no pipe line or oil buying organizations of its own Sinclair is in a position where it would be advantageous to acquire new pipe line and oil buying organizations, which the Prairie companies could furnish.

While the Prairie Pipe Line company is entirely independent of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, the present negotiations also include that organization because Sinclair needs both to complete his organization.

W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and N. K. Moody, president, arrived here several days ago for the negotiations. Neither would comment today on the deal nor was any statement forthcoming from the offices of the Sinclair company.

DIRECTORS VOTE TO MERGE TWO MAYWOOD BANKS

Directors of the Maywood Trust and Savings bank and the Maywood State bank have approved consolidation of the two institutions. The merger is effective Oct. 31 and the new institution will be known as the Maywood State bank. Announcement of the action was made by W. G. Hademann, president of the Maywood State.

Combined deposits amount to $2,600,000 and combined capital totals $550,000. The announced purpose of the merger was the strengthening of the suburb's banking facilities.

Unemployment Relief! Brokers Raffle Off Apples

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Red apples were traded on the New York Curb exchange for a time today. A group of brokers rounded up several men in the financial district who were selling apples on street corners for the benefit of the unemployed, and raffled off their boxes on the exchange floor to the highest bidders. Bidding was active, but the modesty of these brokers prevented the sale prices from being printed on the ticker tape or elsewhere.

Asserts Holding Company Spreads, Diminishes Risks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Amboy, N. J., Oct. 31.—Speaking at the dedication of a new generating station of the Jersey Central Power and Light company here today, Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities company, declared that the Public Utility Holding Investment company is designed to absorb the risk in financing operating companies and then to spread and diminish the risk.

The Jersey Central Power and Light, one of the eastern units of the Middle West Utilities company, has completed its new station here. It has initial capacity of 50,000 kilowatts and ultimate capacity of 300,000 kilowatts.

"The financial structure of an operating company in its simplest form consists of bonds, preferred stock and common stock," Mr. Insull said. "The interest on the bonds and the dividend rate on the preferred stock are generally lower than the rate of return on the value of the physical property allowed by the regulating commissions.

Dividend Return.

"This results in the possible dividends on the common stock being at a rate theoretically and sometimes actually higher. This has been the subject of adverse comment, notwithstanding that the rate of return on common stocks must necessarily be high to attract investors—be they individuals or holding investment companies—to this equity security, the principal and dividend return on which is the least sure.

"The return allowed by the regulatory bodies has been redistributed among the various security holders according to the varying degrees of risk incurred. This transaction is completely divorced from the question of the earnings of the property as a whole. In effect, the investor making the high return has made a trade with the one receiving the low. It is thus possible to attract capital to the common stock which thereby takes the maximum risk and which would hardly be attracted by the return allowed by the commission.

Absorbs Risk.

"This common stock holder, in the case of a great many operating companies, is a public utility holding investment company. It is thus an instrument designed to absorb the risk involved in the financing of operating companies and then to spread and diminish this risk.

"This it does since its money is invested in several operating companies having both a geographical and industrial diversification, thus spreading the risk on its securities issued to provide this money."

AMERADA NET IS $3,772,810 FOR THIRD QUARTER

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Amerada corporation today reported for the September quarter net income, including profit from the sale of one-half interest in the Kettleman Hills lease to Union Oil company of California, totaled $3,772,810, equal to $4.09 a share, compared with $477,645, or 52 cents a share in the preceding quarter. In the third quarter last year the company reported net income, including about $1,900,000 received from Dixie Oil company as part payment for one-half interest in nonproductive leaseholds in Oklahoma and Kansas, totaled $2,259,185, or $2.45 a share. Excluding the amount received from Dixie Oil company, net income for the third quarter was equal to 39 cents a share.

National Tea company reports for the first nine months net profits of $776,390, equal to $1.05 per common share, against $1,759,732, or $2.45 per common share, in the like period of 1929.

Chadbourne to Meet with Sugar Producers of Java

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Thomas L. Chadbourne, originator of the so-called Chadbourne plan for control of Cuban sugar production, said today he would go to Amsterdam on Nov. 12 with Dr. Viriato Gutierres, chairman of the Cuban sugar sales agency, for conferences with Java sugar producers. They also hope, he said, to talk with producers in Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Hungary, Germany, and Belgium at a general conference.

RALLY MARKS STOCK ACTIVITY OF A YEAR AGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—The sixth and penultimate day of the seven that comprised the 1929 stock market panic fell on Oct. 31, 1929. One year ago today people were excited over such items as these:

Turnover: 7,149,390 shares in three hours. The opening was postponed until noon to allow Wall street workers to catch up.

Market's action: Rallied sharply on flood of "investment" buying, odd lots bulking large. Bankers' pool did no buying as natural demand put stocks up 2 to 30 points. Trading suspended at 3 p. m. Thursday [Oct. 31, 1929] until Monday morning.

Federal reserve: Cut New York rediscount from 6 to 5 per cent. Brokers loans dropped $1,096,000,000, a record decline.

Week's Business Failures Increase; Lower in West

New York, Oct. 31.—Commercial failures in the United States for still another week are unusually high in number, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. The total of 502, while only 11 above the figure for last week, was 42 in excess of the number two weeks ago. The figure also was 88 in excess of the 414 defaults reported in the like week of 1929. The insolvencies this week, in comparison with last week, increased in the east and the south. Failures decreased in the west and were unchanged on the Pacific coast.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—They toppled Allied Chemical off its perch today, dropping it below the $200 mark. They did the same for Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe. And now there are only two stocks left on the New York exchange selling above 200—Norfolk and Western and Peoples Gas.

And on this third day of declining prices the bears jumped on the whole list and drove a score of issues down to new lows for the year or longer. Today's decline just about wiped out whatever rallying power the market has shown since Oct. 22. Net losses running to several points were numerous and some of the specialties plunged down as much as 14 points.

Down Once Before.

They got Allied Chemical down for a few minutes once before—to 199¼—but they couldn't keep it there long enough to count. Since then the stock has held its own in good shape and its followers have been congratulating themselves that its position was safe. But the bear element landed on it hot and heavy today and succeeded in tumbling it for more than 12 points before it could come up for air. The low of the day was 194, but enough buying appeared toward the last to blot out some two points of this loss and leave the price at 196¾ to quit on.

Naturally there were other severe losses, but it was the fall of Allied Chemical that stuck in the minds of veteran traders as they wended their way homeward at the close of the day. All the chemicals were battered, in fact. So were the radios, the utilities, and the rails. Even the coppers which have been putting up such a front on the strength of output curtailment talk caved in in a heap. Scattered specialties fared worse than any of them.

Pound Razor Stocks.

Gillette was particularly hard pounded and fell to a new low as a result of a series of fresh developments, including word that a group of stockholders had been formed to protest the company's proposal to re-

"Would it cost less?"

MANY a person realizing the advantages—such as those we have listed here—of leaving an estate in the care of a trust company asks this final question, "Would it cost less to have a trust company handle it than to have it handled in some other way?"

There are exceptions to every rule. Estates differ in many respects. But our experience has been that in the vast majority of cases we can answer without qualification that it would.

In order to determine the status of your estate in this respect, we shall be glad to have you consult with our trust officers—entirely without obligation, of course.

A few of the advantages of appointing the Harris Trust and Savings Bank as your trustee and executor—

A group of trained men will handle your affairs.

Experience gained in handling many varied estates will be at the disposal of your heirs.

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank can never be ill or away on other business when your affairs require attention.

The costs of administration by a trust company probably would be less.

If you are interested, we shall be glad to give you a copy of our booklet, "My Estate—How Shall It Be Administered?"

WHEAT SELLING DRIBBLE SENDS PRICES LOWER

Values Drop 1¼ to 1½c from Previous Day.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Holders of the December deliveries of grains are not as confident of their position as they were a while ago. The annual liquidation by longs who do not desire to take the cash grain on their future contracts got under way. Weakness in corn and stocks yesterday had considerable influence on wheat, which dropped 1¼@1½c from Thursday's finish to a new low on the present movement, with the December showing the most weakness. Buying against bids and by shorts checked the decline, but the close was at net losses of ¾@1c, with old December at 77c; March, 81c; May, 82¾@82½c, and July, 83¾@83½c at the last.

The undertone in wheat was heavy the greater part of the day, and with an open interest of nearly 90,000,000 bu in the December delivery it is expected by the trade that the liquidating movement in the nearby month will continue for several weeks. Cash houses bought December and sold the deferred deliveries, presumably changing over hedges. The spread between the December and the May showed a disposition to widen, considerable business being done at 6c or more difference.

Wheat Mar's Season's Low.

There has been little in the general run of the news of late to induce traders to take the buying side of wheat freely, but it has been showing stubborn resistance to pressure. At the inside yesterday prices showed only ¾@1¼c above the lowest figures of the season, and sentiment was more bearish than of late, with some expressing the belief that evening up for the Tuesday election which has developed in the stock market was spreading to grains. Reports of rust in Argentina continue to be received, but so far it has not been found in the provinces of Buenos Aires and Entre Rios. The outlook there is regarded as favorable.

A lack of aggressive export demand was reported at the seaboard. Sales of only 200,000 bu Manitobas were claimed in all positions, but North American clearances of 8,320,000 bu for the week suggested that the business put through under cover was comparatively heavy, as there have been no claims of pressure from resellers of Manitobas from abroad. Liverpool closed ¼@⅝d lower. Buenos Aires finished unchanged to ⅛c higher, while Winnipeg was ⅞@1c lower. A message from the latter market estimated 100,000,000 bu wheat would probably have to be dried this season, owing to recent weather.

A decrease of 4.7 per cent in the winter wheat carryover for the 1931 American crop was suggested by the E. H. Miller-J. E. Bennett report, the total seeded this fall being placed at 41,637,000 acres, the smallest since 1926.

New Low on May Corn.

May and July corn sold at a new low for the season, the former touching 73⅛c as the result of fairly general local and commission house selling. Operators who have been long corn and short wheat were active in closing the spread. December corn dropped to nearly 4c under wheat, compared with a ¼c difference on Monday. Stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down with the best support coming from shorts and holders of bids. The close was 1⅜@1⅝c lower, with old December 73¼@73¼c; March, 76⅝@76⅛c; May, 78¾@78⅝c, and July, 80⅛@80¼c.

December corn yesterday sold within about 5c of the lowest price of the season, made at a time when the outlook was for a large crop. Since that time the prospective yield has been lowered over 500,000,000 bu, as compared with the actual harvest of last year. In August December corn sold as high as 99½c, and has reacted nearly 27c from the top. Basis on new corn was off ⅛@1c as compared with the December, with 75 per cent or more of the receipts of 226 cars from the 1930 crop. Shipping sales aggregated 158,000 bu.

All deliveries of oats sold at a new low on the crop as the result of general scattered liquidation which uncovered stop loss orders. Prices dropped as much as 1⅝c, with December touching 34¼c, and the close was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of 1⅝@1¾c. December finished at 34⅝c; March, 36½c, and May, 37⅝c. The December-May spread widened out to 3¼c at one time.

COTTON SELLS LOWER

Cotton prices were on the downgrade a good part of yesterday, although there was a little rally along about mid-day after a lower start, and finished at almost the inside figures, with losses on futures in Chicago 12 to 16 points, with New Orleans off 11 to 15, and New York 7 to 13 points. Spots lost 5 points in New York to 11.20c, with New Orleans off 10 points at 10.90c, while Galveston was 11c, and Houston 10.90c. Liverpool closed 2 to 3 points lower, with spot sales 7,000 bales.

Trade reports on the whole were better and weather conditions mainly unfavorable. Spinners' takings for the week were 385,000 bales, against 340,000 bales the previous week, and 485,000 bales last year. The into sight movement for the week was 793,000 bales, against 938,000 bales last year, and the world visible of American cotton is 7,140,000 bales, against 5,592,365 bales last year. Of other kinds 1,783,000 bales, against 1,705,000 bales last year. Great Falls sales were 500,000 pieces. Prices follow:

PLAN $150,000 CHINESE CAFE ON THE RIALTO

Oriental Gardens for West Randolph Street.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago's rialto is to have what is claimed will be the finest and most luxurious Chinese restaurant in the country as a result of a lease being signed yesterday by the John R. Thompson company with the Oriental Gardens, Inc., whereby the latter will take over the entire second floor of the five story building now under construction at 23-29 West Randolph street.

JOHN R. THOMPSON JR.

The lease is for a 10 year term.

According to John R. Thompson Jr., president of the John R. Thompson company, approximately $150,000 will be spent by the lessees in making the Oriental Gardens a gorgeous replica of a far east café. Many novelties in brilliant color effects used in expensive eating places in China, but lacking in the usual American-Chinese restaurant, it is said, will be used in the new Chicago café.

Total Rental Will Be $590,000.

Chi Wai, who operates the Rialto Gardens, on Randolph street, in the next block west, one of the city's oldest Chinese restaurants, is president of the Oriental Gardens corporation. The rental will be $29,000 annually for the first ten years and $30,000 yearly for the next decade. The space rented is 60x178. It is hoped to have the new restaurant open about Jan. 1, 1931. W. W. Walker and J. A. Kelly of the John R. Thompson company negotiated the lease.

It is an interesting sidelight on the present downtown rental situation to have what is approximately a $600,000 lease negotiated before the building is actually under roof. The John R. Thompson company, owner of the structure, will have the largest restaurant in its national chain on the first floor.

City Buys Playground Site.

The city of Chicago has purchased 240x126 on 34th place, south front, 218 feet east of Racine avenue, from the Central Manufacturing District bank, trustee, for $21,917, for use as a playground. The city also has under contract 31,000 square feet of property adjoining.

Moskin's Credit Clothing company, Inc., operating 63 units throughout the east and middle west, has leased stores in the Harvey and Roseland districts. E. R. Perlman reports the lease of the store at 191 East 154th street, Harvey, for ten years at a term rental of $18,000. The company also leased the store at 11113 South Michigan avenue, in Roseland, from Louis D. and I. Smith for a term of years.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Hover Around Lows.

Oil stocks are hovering around their lows. Although urgent liquidation has been completed, lack of outside interest has worked against decisive recoveries.

Diamond Match Dividend.

Traders are beginning to speculate on the amount of the dividend to be fixed on the new Diamond Match common stock. The splitup plan is expected to be declared operative in about two weeks, which has contributed to the increasing interest.

Pool Attempt Fails.

According to some tape observers, an attempt to attract an outside following in Syracuse Washing Machine has fallen flat. Pool efforts, these days, are mostly unappreciated.

Bears' Technique.

The bear crowd has not been idle in the stock market during the last week even though it might seem to the casual observer as though that were the case. They merely have changed their technique. Instead of attempting to depress the entire list, a small group of them have been centering their attack each day on one particular stock or class of stocks.

From 74¾ to 5¼.

Coaden Oil's advance to 74¾ and subsequent fall to 5¼ represent by far the greatest price swing in the oil group for the year to date, and with only a few months left, this record is likely to stand. The last part of the decline in Coaden was hastened by the failure of an important stock exchange firm which is said to have had large commitments in the stock.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Cotton goods were firm today and sales for the week have run far ahead of current output. Burlap mills at Calcutta are understood to have definitely decided to continue curtailing after the turn of the year. Rayon sales held in fair volume, with knitters taking on more of the finer deniers for hosiery business. Silk merchandise was in moderate demand. Raw material prices again were lower.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed easy; sales, 1,010 bales. December, $3.38; March, $3.22; May, $3.21. Spot market quotations (60 day basis): Shanghai steam extra, B, $2.75. Canton double extra A, 14-16a, $1.85; Japanese crack double extra, $2.60.

RUBBER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—RUBBER—Futures closed barely steady: December, 8.80c; March, 9.00c; May, 9.20c. New contracts—December, 8.85c; March, 9.15c; May, 9.35c. Spot smoked ribbed, 8¾c.

FEDERAL WATER SERVICE.

Federal Water service for the year ended Aug. 31 net income was $3,149,875 after interest, depreciation, amortization, federal taxes and preferred dividends of subsidiaries. This compares with $3,095,772 in the preceding year.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 1,000 cattle, 10,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep.

Hogs sold steady to 25c lower yesterday, finishing at the lowest point of the day. The extreme top butchers lowered only 5c at $9.45, and some of the heavy hogs were steady, while bulk of the new crop of 170@220 lb averages showed 10@20c loss in midsession and later.

The general average for the day was off 10c at $9.00. Arrivals at 23,000 were augmented by 10,000 carried over from the previous session and with demand from small packers and order buyers unusually narrow for Friday, larger packers filled some of the largest orders of the week. Armour, Swift and Wilson handled a combined total of about 17,000 hogs, including 8,000 averaging 170@220 lbs, that cost $8.90 mostly. Only 2,000 remained at the close.

March Hogs Bring $9.25.

March contracts were up for sale on the hog futures market yesterday and several carloads of 170@210 lb averages were sold at the only $9.25 price. Trading in other months was slow. December and January contracts were offered at $8.90@8.95, but $8.70 was the highest bid at the close. November light and mediums were offered at $9.30@9.35.

Monday hogs on the "to arrive" market were in good demand, but no offers were made. There were buyers for 15 carloads of 170@210 lb averages for Monday's delivery. Hogs averaging 210@260 lbs were bid $8.95@9.15 and 260@310 lb averages were bid $9.15@9.25. Lighter weights averaging 170@210 lbs were bid $8.75@8.90.

Yesterday's meager supply of 2,000 cattle sold slowly at the previous day's sharp reduction. Yearlings are selling 50@75c below last week's closing prices, while heavy steers show losses of mostly $1.00 for the week. Fresh receipts were augmented by a liberal carryover from previous sessions this week. Quality was lacking and the best available consisted of 771 lb mixed yearling steers and heifers that sold at $11.00.

Butcher stock finished 50c to $1.00 lower than a week ago. Calves show $2.00 loss for the week. Stockers and feeders are selling 25@50c lower than a week ago.

Lamb Market Strong.

Short receipts held the lamb market firm again yesterday, with sorting lightest of the week. Good to choice ewe and wether lambs sold at $8.00@8.25 and city butchers paid upward to $8.50 for the best selections. The best Idaho range lambs on the market brought $8.40.

Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and strong. Feeding lambs met good demand at stronger prices. Some ewe lambs sold to feeders this week at $8.00 that averaged 72 lbs and some averaging 75 lbs reached $7.25.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 10,000 hogs and 4,000 sheep, against 1,156 cattle, 9,668 hogs and 1,561 sheep on the previous Saturday and 502 cattle, 6,616 hogs and 4,869 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 40,000 to 45,000. E. E. Hubbard marked 45,000; F. Gehrmann and A. G. Welbener, 40,000; J. M. Waters, 58,000; C. Southwick, 54,000; W. C. White, G. M. Nicoll, W. S. Nicholson, and J. T. Brown, 55,000; E. S. Waterbury, 55,000; F. M. Sherwood, S. Lund, and H. Williams, 50,000; W. T. Reneker and F. B. Orb, 48,000; C. W. Chandler, 45,000, and C. Daley, 40,000.

BUTTER AND EGGS

Butter futures dropped to within a fraction of the year's low level on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing slightly above the low point, but still at record low levels for this time of the year. November ended at 32¼c, off ¾c; December at 33 3/32@¼c, off ¼@¾c, and January butter held at its opening level of 32c.

Egg futures advanced on short covering and new buying. Colder weather and firmness in the spot market, coupled with light receipts, aided the bullish sentiment. November eggs ended at 21¼@21¾c, up ⅝@¾c, and December at 22c, up ¾c. Sales: Butter, 3,634 cars; eggs, 142 cars. Receipts: Butter, 7,781 tubs; eggs, 3,215 cases. Prices follow:

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

HERE IS REAL NEWS

Brand New Hot Water Heater Given Free with Each Used Car Bought

In order to stimulate business we cut the prices of our cars lower than they have ever been in our history. The smart buyer will purchase a car from us now and make a remarkable saving.

FREE HEATER.

In addition we will give you free of charge a brand new popular make hot water heater, if you make your purchase within the next few days. This heater retails for $37.50 and will be installed without charge. 6 days' free driving trial under the terms of the famous Studebaker Used Car Pledge goes with each car sold.

HUDSON BROUGHAM. Has a sweet running motor and an attractive original finish. The interior is in splendid condition, and there are many extras. $145.

WILLYS KNIGHT SEDAN. This is probably the best Willys Knight buy in Chicago. Has thousands of miles of unused transportation, and the equipment includes dual brakes, snubbers, spare tire, heater, etc. $195.

PAIGE SEDAN. Was in storage for 17 mos., so it's tonneitch in every respect today. Has dual whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, driving light, spare tire, etc. $196.

CHRYSLER SEDAN. This six is painted an attractive olive green. Motor runs smoothly and quietly. Has 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, heater, spare tire, bumpers, etc. $345.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA. Dictator 6 pass. Coupe, with expensive mohair upholstery and a finish that glistens like a new dollar. Whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $325.

PEERLESS SEDAN. It's a late model, finished a beautiful blue. The mileage is low. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, etc. The motor is excellent. $345.

DURANT SEDAN. This car will please the most exacting buyer. It's a late model that's in shape all around condition. Special for $235.

MARMON SEDAN. Late model 8. Cannot be told from a new car. Tires are very good, and there is a wealth of extra equipment. Will not remain long at $395.

BUICK SEDAN. Mast. 6. Finish, upholstery, and motor are all in A1 condition, and there are many valuable extras. Will not remain long at $450.

ESSEX COACH. 1930, with shock absorbers, shatter front, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Actually driven only a few thousand miles. It's a beauty. $450.

AUBURN SEDAN. It's a sport model 8 with windshield wings, new tires, heater, and other extras. The green finish is not a year on it, and the upholstery appears new. Motor is smooth and powerful. $450.

DE SOTO ROADSTER. 1929. Finished a smart canary yellow. Has wire wheels, a spacious rumble seat, new tires, and every essential extra. Motor runs like clockwork. $495.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA. 4 pass., that looks and runs like a new car. The attractive two-tone green finish is near new, and the upholstery shows no signs of wear. Equipped with spotlight, hydraulic shock absorbers, safety glass, etc. $545.

ELCAR COUPE. 1929. A conv. 6 with rumble seat that is a sporty car with peppy performance. 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, spare tire, etc. $585.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT. A recent str. 8 five pass. 4 dr. Brougham, with wire wheels, fender wells, driving light, wire wheel discs, etc. Checked over by expert Studebaker mechanics, and now it's in topnotch condition throughout. $785.

LIBERAL TERMS. OPEN EVES., SUN.
